WIZARD can't see. But with help from a Westland veterinarian and some concerned friends, the 8-month-old cocker spaniel might be able to undergo surgery for removal of cataracts.

Julie Croteau of Westland has mounted a campaign to raise donations for the dog's surgery, which will cost about $1,200.

The nearly blind dog is owned by Croteau's friend, Beth Barnhart, also of Westland. Cataracts, which often strike older people and animals, are clouded tissue in the eyes.

Wizard's condition hasn't dimmed his enthusiasm around the Barnhart household, Barnhart said. The disabled dog still tries to act as playmate and guardian for her four children, she said.

Croteau said she was touched by Wizard's plight and began calling veterinary colleges throughout North America to find one that might do the operation for free or reduced cost in a classroom setting.

But, she said, schools told her such training procedures are no longer done for common cataracts.

"If he could just have one eye done (for $600), at least he could see," Croteau said.

People interested in making a donation may call Croteau, 723-0293.

THEY'LL BE running through Hines Park Saturday, Sept. 22.

Who? Participants in the annual 20-Mile Marathon Training Run co-sponsored by Wayne County Parks and the Redford Roadrunners.

This year's race is set for 8 a.m. to noon. Edward Hines Drive will be closed to vehicle traffic until after the race.

NATIONAL POW-MIA Recognition Day will be marked locally with a joint ceremony by Westland Chapter 387 of Vietnam War Veterans of America and Post 9485, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The ceremony is set for 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 21, at the Vietnam War Memorial in front of Westland city hall.

Service personnel classified as missing from World War I through Vietnam total more than 90,000, said a representative of the local organizations.

ALSO FOR VETS, State Rep. Justine Burns, D-Westland, will honor all veterans at her annual picnic.

This year's event is set for 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16, at the Lions Pavilion in Central City Park.

The picnic will feature refreshments and entertainment, along with a tribute to local veterans groups.

For tickets and information call 721-4010.

THE ORDER of the Alhambra will hold its annual fall carter drive Saturday, Sept. 23, at the intersection of Warren and Wayne roads. The group is a fraternal organization of Catholic men which raises funds to benefit local organizations.

Gene Reaves will return to play Santa Claus this December. Last year he was in the hospital with arthritis.

Down 1 sleigh, 'Santa' gets ready for holidays

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

It's already been a rough year for Santa, and he's still got three months to go before his busy season.

Gene "Santa" Reaves, Westland's resident St. Nick, has been hospitalized twice since last Christmas.

He recently completed a week-long stay for bleeding ulcers. That followed last winter's bout of severe arthritis, which left Reaves unable to walk and searching for a replacement to appear at the city's annual tree-lighting ceremony.

Now, one of two "sleighs" in Santa's colorful fleet has been retired. To the junkyard.

Reaves' 1976 Ford Torino — adorned with more than 300 homemade bumper stickers bearing names of local celebrities and just plain folks — gave out Aug. 23. "I went out and tried to start it and it went 'ugh' once or twice then died," said Reaves.

"I guess the engine finally gave out."

THE STATION wagon, with 180,000 miles on its odometer, was towed to a St. Clair Shores salvage yard last week, Reaves said.

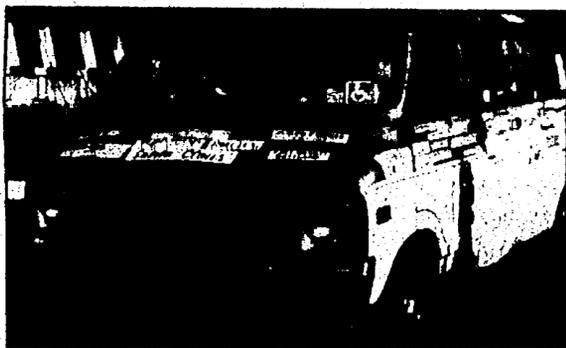

Reaves, 88, had been using the wagon for his errands, charity work and in local parades since he bought it used in 1984.

He'll switch to his backup transportation, a 1978 Dodge van (189,000 miles).

The van has a bumper-sticker paint job as well, although it has a way to go before it reaches the Torino's faded stem-to-stern, top-to-bottom status.

"The important thing is I can still get around to see the kids," Reaves said.

Gene "Santa" Reaves' 1976 van will be pressed into service now that his colorful 1976 station wagon is gone.

for 25 years. Westland's Santa uses proceeds from his non-profit fund to purchase Christmas gifts for needy youngsters.

This year, he's buying red satin baseball-style jackets to give away. The jackets have been ordered but Reaves said the fund is about $3,500 in debt and has yet to pay for them.

"That's OK," he said optimistically. "I'm always a little bit behind (in donations) around this time of year."

REAVES, WHO first appeared as Santa in 1935 at the J.L. Hudson's store in downtown Detroit, is modest about his traditional holiday role in Westland. Kids, he said, "really don't care who dresses up, as long as they get to see Santa Claus" and adults, well, they're just overly sentimental.

Still, he has taken time off from his job as a Michigan Liquor Control Commission inspector (now retired) each November and December for 55 years to fill the role.

But last year, for the first time,

"Santa" Reaves couldn't make it. Reaves entered the hospital days before the annual tree-lighting ceremony on the steps of Westland city hall. A stand-in was hired.

Of his replacement, Reaves said "anybody who puts on a red suit and a white beard is a friend of mine."

But Reaves will be back this December.

"IT'S SO satisfying I could never give it up. To be able to give to kids — especially the retarded — something for the holidays, that makes the job worthwhile," Reaves said. "It (seeing disabled kids) really helps me put my problems in perspective."

Contributions to Santa's Christmas Fund may be mailed care of Gene Reaves, 37789 Hixford Place, Westland 48185. The fund is registered as a non-profit organization with the state of Michigan and contributions are tax deductible.

Slow progress reported in teacher talks

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Negotiations between Wayne-Westland teachers and the school district moved slowly last week, with a new contract not even close, officials on both sides said.

Meanwhile, Superintendent Dennis O'Neill and William Reece, president of the Wayne-Westland Education Association, met twice to discuss a possible third try for a millage election. No definite proposals were discussed.

"We shared some ideas," O'Neill said Thursday. "But I want to make sure we've got something to offer (voters) before going back."

"THE PUBLIC has spoken," he said, referring to tax increase proposals that were rejected overwhelmingly by voters last February and June.

O'Neill said some progress was made on non-economic issues during a Tuesday bargaining session. The two sides also met Thursday night.

But the superintendent said no written proposals have been offered on major issues, including salary and fringe benefits. "We just don't have the money to talk about. We've said before that we're not going to spend money we don't have."

"We started this year with a $2 million deficit (erased by surplus money from 1989-90) and we've got to reinstate programs (cut last spring) before we do anything else."

ASKED WEDNESDAY if substantial progress had been made, Reece said no.

He said about 50 percent of the non-economic issues were still on the table.

The union president, however, said the district's financial status was "not as bad as it was last June," a reference to additional money the district will receive from a new law signed by Gov. James Blanchard in July.

Woody London, associate superintendent of business and operations, said Monday Wayne-Westland could receive as much as $1 million in additional aid.

SOURCES FOR both sides have said that little progress could be expected before the fourth Friday enrollment count, when district officials will know how much state aid Wayne-Westland will receive for 1990-91.

The possibility of a millage election also clouds the negotiating process.

The 1,050 full and part-time teachers agreed last week to return to schools without a contract while negotiations continue.

Senior year sours for twin sisters

By M.B. Dillon
and Peg Aullino
staff writers

A school year that twins Amy and Katie Colligan thought would be their happiest is turning out to be their saddest.

The 17-year-old sisters, who attended Plymouth-Canton Community Schools since kindergarten, were crying as they pleaded with the board of education recently to let them graduate from Canton High School, even though they've moved out of the district.

The girls are registered at Canton. They've had their senior pictures taken.

But Tuesday was their first day at Wayne Memorial High School.

Plymouth-Canton school officials say it's against policy to allow non-residents to attend Plymouth-Canton schools, even if they're willing to pay tuition, due to the district's overcrowded facilities.

THE TWINS' father, John Colligan, recently was appointed police chief by the City of Wayne. Because the city has a residency requirement, the family had to move.

"We probably could have lied and given you a fake address and gotten away with it," Katie told the board.

'We are devastated. My last year in high school, which should have been my happiest, is now a nightmare.'

— Katie Colligan

"We felt pretty good about our decision to be honest, because we never thought we would be denied our right. One year is all we asked; our final year."

"We are devastated. My last year in high school, which should have been my happiest, is now a nightmare. My sister and I can look forward to having to make friends all over again and graduating with strangers."

"I feel hurt; I feel angry. I feel infuriated. But most of all I feel betrayed," said Katie, who works at Cobb's Pharmacy in Wayne.

"The policy is wrong. Not only is it wrong, it's unfair. It's too late for me, but I was hoping maybe next time you will reconsider. It's in your hands now. Please just look into

City working to make sure 1990 census figures add up

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas is urging all residents to make sure they've been counted in the 1990 census.

The census bureau is counting through Sept. 30 and the forms "Were You Counted?" are available in the mayor's office or by calling 1-800-999-1990.

The city recently received its preliminary census report, which shows a population drop of 170 people.

Thomas said the city will challenge the count.

"With all the building that has occurred in Westland over the past 10 years, we could only have gone up in numbers," Thomas said in a prepared statement. "This census count is critical for Westland because it has a direct bearing on the amount of services it can provide its citizens."

THE CITY has until Friday to file the challenge with the U.S. Census Bureau office in Detroit.

After that, the bureau will recount the areas Westland officials say were counted inaccurately.

Westland's 1980 census count was 84,603.

The count this year was 84,433, a drop of 170 people.

The alleged undercount in Westland follows a national pattern.

With 26 of the 50 states' preliminary figures in, census officials have found the counts to be 2 percent below their projections.

City man faces trial on sex charge

A Westland man was bound over for trial Thursday on charges he molested a 6-year-old girl after waiving his preliminary examination in front of 18th District Judge Gail McKnight.

James Mark Thayer, 28, faces arraignment in Detroit Recorder's Court Sept. 13 on two counts of second-degree criminal sexual conduct.

McKnight continued Thayer's $5,000 personal bond with the provision that he not have contact with his girlfriend or her daughter, the alleged victim.

Thayer, who has pleaded not guilty, faces a maximum 15-year prison sentence if convicted.

Thayer agreed to waive the exam after consulting with his attorney, Marc Laklin.

The girl and her mother, both of Westland, were scheduled to testify at the examination.

THAYER WAS arrested Tuesday after turning himself in to Westland police, said Detective Sgt. Laura Moore.

Police had received a complaint regarding Thayer Aug. 7 from Wayne County protective services, Moore said.

The alleged assaults occurred between October 1989 and last June in a home on the city's north side, police said.

A CASH scholarship of $2,000 will be awarded to the local winner who then has an opportunity to compete in the state program in Marshall in January.

No entry fee is required. Application deadline is Wednesday, Sept. 12.

Applications may be obtained in Wayne Memorial, John Glenn, Churchill or Franklin high school offices.

Students attending a private or parochial school, but who live in Wayne or Westland, can contact Tony Rosati at 729-1779 after 5 p.m.

changing your policy because it's so wrong."

Amy told the board she could name 10 people who are lying about where they live so they can go to school in Canton.

Board president Dean Swartzwelder told the girls "nothing has been appealed to the board. That's not to say that the board might not come to the same decision. The board hasn't considered anything."

"IN THE past, because we have very crowded facilities, it's been the policy of the board not to accept tution students," he said. "I'm sure none of these things mean anything to you because this is such an emotional experience."

Swartzwelder told the girls the board "will put together an official response and get back to you."

It's been more than a week, and the twins are still waiting.

Amy, a teller at Wayne Westland Federal Credit Union, says she feels like she and her sister wasted their time.

"E.J. McClendon talked about the legal aspects; he said there are very strict policies," she added. "He wasn't paying attention, because we told the board that Wayne-Westland schools had waived their rights to me and my sister so we could go to Plymouth-Canton. And my dad wrote a letter saying we'd be willing to pay tuition."

AMY SAID she feels she and her sister aren't over-reacting, based on what others have told them. "If it was just us who thought this was unfair, then I could see it. But everyone we tell thinks it's awful. Northville, Garden City, Wayne — no school system has a policy like this."

"There's not a whole lot the board can do," said Dick Egl, the schools' community relations director. "The problem is quite clear in terms of state law. State law says you can't have students who are living in another area. An exception is made, as the policy permits, to finish up the semester of the year if they have an appropriate place to live."

Ginnie Murdoch, supervisor of pupil accounting, said seniors who start the school year and then move are allowed to finish out the year.

"But if they haven't started, or are not a resident, that's the policy," she said. "We're strict on residency." Students in grades K-11 are allowed to finish the semester after a move is made.

cop calls

A MAN armed with a handgun escaped with approximately $300 Tuesday in an armed robbery at the Shell gas station, 29422 Ann Arbor Trail, police said.

A station employee told police the gunman walked in at 12:15 a.m., pulled a revolver and demanded money from the cash register.

After taking the money, the gunman fled on foot, the employee said.

He said the robber was 5 feet 4 inches tall and wore a green ski mask.

The employee told police he waited more than an hour to call police because he wasn't sure what to do.

He said he called police after calling the gas station owner at home.

POLICE arrested a 21-year-old Garden City man Aug. 27 for the attempted assault of a woman on the 2100 block of Edgerton.

A neighbor of the victim was injured slightly when he tried to break up the fight, police said.

The neighbor suffered a bruised leg but didn't require hospitalization. According to police reports, the assaultant went after the victim, 25, with a wooden axe handle.

He swung several times and missed, the woman said.

TWO WESTLAND residents reported stolen videocassette recorders following break-ins last week.

The incidents don't appear to be related, police said.

A homeowner on the 1300 block of Carlson told police her VCR and remote control were stolen late Monday or early Tuesday.

The break-in occurred between 11:30 p.m. and 10:41 a.m. while she was sleeping, the woman told police.

Police said the thief apparently removed a window screen to get inside the home.

A resident on the 400 block of Linville said her VCR was stolen Aug. 24 or 25. The resident said she left the back door closed, but unlocked.

Happy wanderings mark some vacations

By Mario Chostnoy
staff writer

One man retraced steps he took 46 years ago in wartime Europe.

Another, wearing a backpack, trudged miles through an Upper Peninsula wilderness.

And, on a sleepy Isle in the Pacific Northwest, a woman suddenly looked up and saw a group of killer whales slipping through the ocean waters.

These three are just some of the many memories Observerland residents brought back with them from their 1990 summer vacations.

FROM THE EXOTIC (Thailand) to the patriotic (Washington, D.C.) to the pristine (Copper Country in the Upper Peninsula), residents often traveled hundreds and even thousands of miles to capture that perfect memory.

In telling their stories to the Observer, some got very poetic.

"The sun shone in a clear sky, a light breeze stirred in the smells of the earth and sea as we sat content, on a stone dyke," wrote Plymouth resident Lynn Lyon. "That afternoon was a gift that will last till memory fails."

Lyon is the woman who watched a pod of killer whales swim in the Pacific Ocean.

William Sgriccia of Livonia backpacked through the Porcupine Mountain Wilderness of the Upper Peninsula to find his poetry.

"The vast unfriendly greenness seemed to swallow me and my three brothers," Sgriccia wrote. "My mind began to dream. The trees began to speak, and I heard a symphony of sounds as the wind blew through the piney boughs. The music was a harmony that returned my very soul."

Some residents didn't have to leave Michigan to return home with pleasant memories.

"Hooray for the Upper Peninsula," wrote Dick and Pat Escott of Livonia. The couple then told of the mines, museums, waterfalls and quaint shops of Copper Country, and of "taking the time to enjoy" the major attractions around the rest of the U.P.

Eight-year-old Marin Jacoby of Livonia crossed the waters of the Mackinaw Straits to visit Mackinac Island. The Jacoby family then rented a buggy pulled by a horse named Butch.

"I got to drive it. It was neat," Marin wrote.

MARIN WAS also intrigued by all the motels that line I-75 to Mackinaw City. "We had fun at Days Inn. On Monday, we went out for breakfast."

In Garden City, young Michael Kalinski was none too thrilled when school ended in June.

"I was really sad because I love school," the Garden City third grader wrote.

But then the Kalinski family took off for Texas, and Michael met some real cowboys "deep in the heart of Texas."

It was all uphill after that. Michael even met Charles Bolden, pilot of the Discovery space shuttle which launched the Hubble space telescope.

"He told me what it was like to fly in space," Michael wrote.

Joan and Eugene Morrison of Garden City celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary Grand-Ole-Opry-style in Nashville.

The couple got front row seats for the "Nashville Now" program on TNN, a cable channel out of Nashville.

"You don't have to be a music lover to enjoy Music City, USA," they wrote.

The Hal Grushkin family of Livonia had always wondered how the Amish live in Indiana. So this summer they decided to find out. In their time in Nappanee, they sat in rocking chairs on porches and rode buggies through Amish country. They then visited Shipshewana, the largest flea market in the country.

"I couldn't get my wife to leave," Grushkin wrote.

Washington, D.C., was the destination of many vacationers this summer, including Claire Walton of Plymouth and Bob DeMayer of Livonia.

Walton got to see everything but the White House. "The line was too long," she wrote.

"We went to the top of the Washington Monument. Wow was that neat," wrote Walton.

And DeMayer chose the nation's Capitol when he saw the summer slipping away and he needed a fast getaway.

"It's the middle of August and you suddenly realize that the summer is almost completely over and you haven't done anything all season," he wrote. "So, what do you do?"

Since he'd visited Washington before, DeMayer skipped the "usual sites" and opted for places off the beaten track.

One of the places he went to was the Ford Theatre, where President Lincoln was murdered.

"Then, we walked across the street to the Peterson House and viewed the blood-stained pillow on the bed when Lincoln died."

Some residents spent their summer vacation overseas.

FOR ANTHONY Haewski of Redford Township, it was a pilgrimage to a place he knew intimately 46

On their way back from missionary work in Taiwan, the Marshall family of Plymouth visited Africa. Here David and Ruann Marshall stand beside the line marking the equator in Kenya with daughters Brenda, Andrea, Kelly and Gloria.

years ago, when he was stationed during World War II in the British Isles.

"We retraced his steps of 46 years ago," wrote his wife, Elizabeth.

"We visited Colwyn Bay, where Tony's unit spent several months waiting for D-Day. At Blackmore Park, we were thrilled to find the actual footings of the army camp in the grass."

The summer of '90 was a summer of many "firsts" for Lesley Carmichael of Plymouth. She took her first airplane ride, to England; suffered her first "culture shock"; played the piano with actor Dudley Moore; spent six weeks studying arts and humanities in London; viewed original art; worshipped in magnificent old cathedrals; and "lived the lifestyles of London."

"I learned things no textbook could ever teach," she wrote. "When learning human history, there's just something about being there."

And for 12-year-old Gloria Marshall of Plymouth, the summer of '90 was the summer she returned home to America.

After finishing five years as missionaries in Taiwan, the Marshall family spent the summer touring parts of Asia, Africa and Europe.

"AFRICA WAS the best," Gloria wrote, referring to the elephants, giraffes, buffalos, hippos, leopards, rhinos and lionesses she saw there.

And then the family flew to Detroit's Metro Airport, where they were welcomed home by friends and relatives.

"Everyone was there, with banners and balloons, crying and yelling. It was better than all my dreams and the best summer I've ever had."

William Sgriccia of Livonia stands beside brothers John and Jim and friend Jim Barley on a hilltop overlooking Lake of the Clouds in the Porcupine Mountains wilderness area of the Upper Peninsula. The foursome spent their summer vacation backpacking through the state park.

Others make tracks for home

Some folks vacation in Rome. But for others, there's no vacation like the one spent at home.

Just ask the Wilcox family of Livonia. In her letter, Joyce Wilcox makes a vacation in Livonia sound as exciting as one spent in the Eternal City.

"My husband, my daughter and I spent our summer enjoying the sights and sounds of Livonia," her letter begins. And she then goes on to tell about all the fun things she and her family have done this summer — gardening, visits to the Livonia Spree, Music Under The Stars, the library, city pools, barbecues, bike rides and evening walks which often end with stops to buy ice cream.

"We planted a garden and throughout the season we watered, weeded and watched our vegetables grow," Wilcox wrote.

The Leinonen family did much the same in Westland. Two "very active little boys" kept the family from traveling too far from home, but that didn't stop everyone from having a good time.

"Their large appetites and curious minds kept us all busy right here in our wonderful little town of Westland," Marie Leinonen wrote.

THE LEINONENS spent hot days in cool pools, followed by family barbecues and picnics.

"Oh, what a way to spend the summer of '90 in Westland," she wrote.

In big, bold letters printed on school handwriting paper, Darren Will, 6, of Redford described his summer vacation as "RADICAL."

"This summer was RADICAL for me because I was BIG enough to do some things my big brothers do," Darren printed. "I worked at my Grandpa's condo. He does landscaping and I got paid for helping. I got to spend the night and walk with my Grandpa to the store. I went to arts and crafts and the library every week. I got an honorable mention in an art contest. My name will even be in Cricket magazine. I think my big brothers are even jealous of me now."

Of course, Darren's brothers were not to be outdone by their little brother. Jason Will, almost 11, wrote of the highlight of his summer — being on television.

"The magic of television — that's what I learned firsthand this summer," wrote Jason, who spent one August day being a newsbreak reporter on Channel 50.

"I did a lot of fun things this summer, but being on TV 50 was the best."

And 8-year-old Brandon Will will never forget opening night for the play he rehearsed for all summer at the Lathrup Youth Theater.

"Finally the opening night came," Brandon wrote. "I was so excited but when I got on stage I was nervous. When the closing night came I felt sad. I hated the fun to end."

Jason Will, 10, of Redford Township got the thrill of his life this summer when he appeared on television as a news break reporter for Channel 50.

Darren Will, 6, of Redford spent part of his summer helping his grandfather, Tom Hayes of Farmington Hills, with landscaping chores.

Engler's choice garners praise

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A native of the Upper Peninsula who taught school in Pontiac and Berkley, and has represented the northern Lower Peninsula in Lansing for 16 years, Sen. Connie Binsfeld will be the Republican lieutenant governor candidate.

Schools, child welfare and the environment will be their chief issues, said gubernatorial nominee John Engler, who announced the selection Thursday.

"I worked with her on the surrogate parenting (ban) legislation," said a beaming Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia. "She got national recognition for that."

"She's a proponent of women's rights. She felt surrogate parenting (hiring a woman to bear a child by artificial insemination) was against women's rights and babies' rights. I supported her and helped her on the House side," said Bankes.

"She has a strong family orientation," said Nancy Marsall, chief appropriations aide to Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville. "And she's very motherly and sweet."

ALTHOUGH KNOWN as pro-life for her votes against abortion funding and in favor of regulating teen access to abortion, Binsfeld, 66, made friends with pro-choice women such as Bankes in her fight to outlaw surrogate parenting.

She conducted hearings in Dearborn, in the back yard of attorney Noel Keane, who specialized in arranging surrogate births for a $10,000 fee.

"I've always admired Martha Griffiths," Binsfeld said of the Democrat she hopes to replace as No. 2 state officer and president of the Senate. "She was a leader in the women's movement. She was a friend."

Gov. James Blanchard intends this week to announce his choice of a replacement for Griffiths, 78.

Both choices are expected to be ratified by the respective state party conventions Sept. 8-9.

Engler, 41, the Senate majority leader, succeeded in keeping his choice a secret until the news conference.

BORN IN THE Lake Superior shoreline city of Munising, Binsfeld attended Siena Heights College in Adrian, married John Binsfeld and raised four sons and a daughter with him in Oakland County. She did graduate work at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Shortly after the Binsfelds moved north, she was elected to the Leelanau County Commission in 1970, to the House in 1974 and to the Senate in 1982 from a district that stretches from Lakes Michigan to Huron.

Chances for a Middle East war have been greatly reduced, but not eliminated, U.S. Sen. Carl Levin said last week.

GOP Senate challenger Bill Schuette, however, said a peaceful solution rests with further action by Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

Levin, among the Congressional leaders briefed on the Middle East crisis Tuesday by President George Bush, said he believed it was unlikely Iraq would invade Saudi Arabia now that there is a major U.S. military presence in the region.

"I THINK the chance of a shooting war has been greatly reduced," Levin said. "There was a window, about two days after the invasion of Kuwait, where an invasion of Saudi Arabia might have occurred."

Levin, however, said that war was still possible because of what he called Iraqi leader's unpredictable nature.

"Saddam Hussein is like a scorpion in a bottle," Levin said. "We must prevent him from moving into Jordan and move him out of Kuwait through boycotts."

Schuette said Hussein must show his announced release of U.S. and other foreign citizens held in Iraq is not merely a public relations stunt.

"We have to be very careful we're not manipulated by what could be nothing more than PR," he said.

Though release was promised, U.S. and other nationals were still being held in Iraq at deadline.

Levin said he remained cautiously hopeful the crisis could be solved through diplomatic channels, including release of U.S. and other hostages.

"I think there is some hope (of a diplomatic solution)," he said. "But we shouldn't raise false hope and be played like a yo-yo."

Levin was expected to join a bipartisan Senate delegation visiting the region this week.

The senator called for a continued military presence in the Persian Gulf region, but said it shouldn't consist of U.S. troops alone.

"There has to be some kind of presence, including Arab world forces, not just the U.S. alone," Levin in said.

While cost of a continued military presence could run into billions of dollars Levin said money could be made available through cuts in nuclear weapons and the Strategic Defense Initiative missile defense system.

"The world has changed," Levin said.

Schuette, however, called U.S. military cuts a "naive approach," and suggested other nations begin picking up much of the tab.

"Kuwait certainly should contribute, so should the Japanese," Schuette said.

Police participation is crucial to police effectiveness. Don't care about your neighborhood enough to help protect it?

The Case of The Tucson Burglars

In a particular neighborhood in Tucson, Arizona, folks were having a real problem with burglaries and break-ins. They started talking to each other about what they could do. They got fed up. About 400 people went to the police for advice. They learned about surveillance. They got to know their beat officers. Citizens and police became partners in crime prevention. In just three weeks, 17 arrests were made and burglaries went down 30%. And Tucson is only one case where people successfully worked to beat crime. ACLU won't fight police cameras

The local American Civil Liberties Union Chapter won't be challenging the Wayne County sheriff's Department new policy of videotaping alleged drunk drivers.

But ACLU members said the tapes should be equally accessible to all parties.

"We've looked at the issue and decided not to take a position at this time," Michigan ACLU legal director Paul Dennenfeld said.

Beginning this week, deputies are expected to begin videotaping suspects in drunk driving cases. Videotaping, already underway in other cities, is expected to boost the conviction rate in drunk driving cases.

ACLU members, however, believe videotaping could prove a double-edged sword.

"In addition to showing the drivers, the videotapes will also provide evidence as to whether police officers went about their jobs properly," Dennenfeld said. "Toward that end, we expect the tapes will be made equally available to defense attorneys."

Twelve sheriff's department patrol cars have been outfitted with videotape cameras. Drivers stopped for alleged drunken driving will be videotaped as they perform police tests.

Tapes will provide the date and time the driver was stopped. They will be tagged as evidence and stored in the department property room for 60 days.

County extends benefits

Wayne County has extended health benefits for county employees called into military service during the Persian Gulf crisis.

Other fringe benefits will be continued for 90 days after the employee's military call-up.

County Executive Edward McNamara issued an executive order last week, enabling family members to continue to receive health, benefits were extended for county employees who are members of military reserve or National Guard units.

Tomatoes: fresh and versatile

ONE THING for sure, this cool, rainy summer has been producing a multitude of giant zucchini and bigger-than-softball-sized tomatoes in the garden.

Hate to be the bearer of bad news, but I've got this feeling that we're in for a long, cold, hard winter.

Not trying to sound like a squirrel, I have been busy this summer loading up the freezer with shredded zucchini. Up until now, I haven't had many red tomatoes. But all of a sudden, it's like Mother Nature flicked the switch and all the tomatoes are turning ripe at once.

Last week, I made some homemade salsa (that's the campy '90s buzzword for chunky tomato sauce). And last night, the Janes Gang enjoyed something new that was discovered at Vito DePalma's restaurant in Livonia called Bruschetta.

This savory antipasto is simply thick Italian bread slathered with some olive oil, a paper-thin layer of tomato, a sprinkling of fresh chopped basil and a half-handful of freshly grated parmesan. Pop in under the broiler, and you'll think you've died and gone to heaven.

HEARTY ITALIANS might call this "Fettunta," which is really nothing but Tuscan garlic bread. But the way DePalma's and I do it, with thinly sliced tomatoes, this dish is an encore presentation.

If you think the Bruschetta sounds good, go one step further and toss on a few rashers of crisp bacon. Watch out, the goose bumps are forming. And this, dear readers, from someone who thinks bacon is a dirty word. I've never made a better BLT. Do yourself a favor, and pick up some imported olive oil. Definitely worth the price difference.

Last week, while barbecuing a turkey between rainshowers, I noticed this big spot of red among the bushes in the garden. This softball-sized tomato was just perfect for immediate picking and a quick rinse under the garden hose.

Then, with a quick slip of the knife, it was divided into two halves, dusted with some oregano, topped with a slice of mozzarella and placed right on the grill next to the roasting turkey. Since the coals were just beginning to lose their steam, this procedure took about 10 minutes and, again, the taste was worth it.

Prosper Montagne, author of "Larousse Gastronomique," lists more than 30 ingenious ways to prepare tomatoes. Tomato souffles, tomato mousse, tomato salads, stuffed tomatoes, tomatoes au gratin, you name it — and Montagne has elevated this plain vegetable to new heights in culinary performance.

HIS RECIPE for Stuffed Tomatoes ala Reine calls for filling tomato cups with a mixture of cooked poultry and imported mushrooms, then topping with a veloute, which is nothing more than a thick, rich gravy. Sprinkle again with some seasoned bread crumbs and then bake in the oven until heated throughout. And we thought tomatoes were only vegetables.

Personally, I still enjoy and have fond memories of that old classic, the tomato sandwich. A fresh tomato, picked right from the garden, sliced thick and plopped between two pieces of bread with just a sprinkling of salt and pepper. Ah, nirvana!

This "treat" was made possible because in our adolescence, the Janes family owned a summer cottage on Marentette Beach just west of Leamington, the tomato capitol of Canada. Our cottage was right across a canal from H.J. Heinz' tomato fields.

Looking for a great field-trip? H.J. Heinz in Leamington still offers tours, and this is the season to see more tomatoes than you ever thought existed.

"Pizza Gourmet" Carl Oshinski butters a pizza he is grilling over white-hot coals.

Yes, even pizza can be barbecued

By Larry Janes
special writer

REMEMBER WHEN someone found a way to cook a roast on the manifold of a car? Next thing you knew, fish found their way into the dishwasher. What's next?

As far as Carl Oshinski, the well-known Pizza Gourmet, is concerned, it just wouldn't be summer without firing up the coals and preparing pizza — you guessed it — on the barbecue.

Pizza on the barbecue? "Why not?" claims local entrepreneur and pizza bon vivant Oshinski. "There's no sense heating up the kitchen on a sweltering summer day when a red-hot barbecue underneath a tall shade tree can do it with more flair, more taste and definitely, a cooler brow."

And, when it comes to pizzas, Carl Oshinski is truly the sole heir to the title "Pizza Gourmet." Many readers have probably seen Oshinski locally doing what he does best, making pizza, in local kitchen shops. In addition, he does in-home pizza catering.

BUT HIS greatest claim to fame is his syndicated "Pizza Gourmet" series, shown nationally on PBS. Couple that with a best-selling pizza cookbook and a "Pizza Gourmet" line of equipment hawking the likes of pizza stones and pizza pans, and you've got the makings of a true Pizza Gourmet.

This lover of the pizza works 16-hour days representing himself and his goods. So when, this writer asked, does he find time to cook pizza on a backyard grill?

"I make the time because I love the product," Oshinski said. Seems he first saw a barbecued backyard pizza at a restaurant in Providence, R.I., called "Lucky's."

"I liked what I tasted, especially the smokiness of the crust," Oshinski said. "Then, think about the fact that all your sauces and toppings can be kept hot right at your fingertips."

So, back in June, Oshinski tried out his idea at the St. Francis/Sara Fisher Benefit and walked away with rave reviews from those in attendance.

THE SECRET, according to Oshinski, is the use of a standard pizza dough with a double baking technique. After the dough is rolled and tossed, it is lightly greased and thrown on a white-hot grill. The white-hot coals are essential because, according to the pizza gourmet, you want to bake it as fast as you can, as hot as you can.

Then you brush the top lightly with oil and give it a flip with the tongs. Layer on the sauce, the cheese and your favorite toppings and voila — a barbecued pizza!

Classic Italian entrees sure to please at Larco's

One of Larco's Italian entrees is Chicken di Luigi, shown here with a side order of Calamari di Marco (squid with tomatoes and green peppers).

LARCO'S RECIPE for success is an old one. Sauces and special entrees are prepared in its new Troy restaurant just as they were years ago in the family operation on Six Mile in Detroit. In the ever-changing restaurant business, that's a rarity.

Mark Larco, who owns the Troy restaurant with his wife, Susan, upholds the family tradition with his brother, Michael, keeping the Larco menu familiar and dependable. Michael is often in the kitchen, sampling sauces to make sure they taste as his father once made them.

The Larco recipes have withstood the test of time. Sauces are excellent, feather-light and deliciously seasoned.

The filet mignon still draws rave reviews. The veal Colombo continues to be a favorite. There's a reason why these recipes live on.

THE CLASSIC Italian menu features lots of pasta, chicken and provincial veal. At lunch time, Chef George Gize prepared two or three specials that may have a more contemporary influence — and starting this fall there will be some dinner specials. But by and large, Larco customers stick with the oldtime favorites.

The exquisite filet mignon is one of those. So is the Chicken Larco, a breaded chicken breast covered with a tangy lemon sauce. The Veal Colombo's secret for success is in the palmina sauce, which originates as a meat sauce. The meat is strained out before being poured over the breaded veal and then the entire entree is sprinkled with mozzarella cheese.

Wine can age gracefully with cooler temperatures

In this column, frequent mention of aging or cellaring wine is made. Just how much care does bottled wine need?

Wine ages and matures as a result of a multitude of chemical changes that eventually reach what is often referred to as a wine's peak.

This peak, or optimum drinking time, is actually more like a plateau. As a rule of thumb for most dry, white table wines, that period is two to three years. Generally, red wines stay on the plateau five years, with the world's greatest red wines maintaining optimum drinking for 10 to 20 years or longer.

The enemies of wine ageability are heat, cold, oxygen, excessive handling, and time. Wines can be stored safely from 40 degrees to 65 degrees Fahrenheit. If rapid fluctuations of more than 5 degrees to 10 degrees Fahrenheit occur, the wine may be adversely affected. The cork may work loose due to sudden pressure changes, allowing exposure to air or leakage of wine.

PROPER STORAGE temperature depends on the wine's age and how long you wish to keep it. If you cellar wine to drink in a year or two, a warmer temperature (60 degrees to 65 degrees Fahrenheit) will speed development of bottle bouquet.

If your intention is to cellar wine for a longer period of time, cooler temperatures are essential.

Chemical reaction rates generally double with every temperature increase of 18 degrees Fahrenheit. Therefore, wine storage over 70 degrees Fahrenheit can cause undesirable changes. White wines benefit from cooler storage because the fruity character dissipates more rapidly at warmer temperatures.

A wine bottle should be stored on its side or upside down to keep the cork wet. As long as the cork re-

focus on wine
Eleanor and Ray Heald

mainly wet, the transmission of air through the cork into the wine is minimal.

When wines are stored upright, the cork dries out and oxygen in the air will rapidly cause chemical changes in the wine, thus spoiling it.

WINE BOTTLE corks begin to deteriorate after about ten years. If the cork is crumbling, it needs to be replaced in order to maintain a proper seal. Getting wine recorked is possible, but not easy. The best suggestion here — drink it.

We discussed what makes an ageable cabernet sauvignon with several Sonoma County winemakers.

"When it comes to making a cabernet sauvignon that will last, I put away all restraints," contends Lance Cutler, winemaker at Gundlach-Bundschu Winery. "I let the grape give me everything its got — alcohol, tannin and fruit. I also use new oak barrels. If you want a wine you can't begin to drink for five years and expect to live for another ten, you have to pack it in."

Cutler sums it all up, "Buy the oldest Gundlach-Bundschu Cabernet Sauvignon you can find."

"Years ago, the University of California at Davis was helping put the wine industry back on its feet following prohibition," explains Dave Ramey, winemaker at Chalk Hill Winery. "They provided guidelines to aid winemakers in producing commercially-acceptable products. The guidelines were not those needed to make great, long-lasting cabernets.

"Our techniques may seem to be reverting to old-world methods, but we are paying closer attention to overall vine health, degree of stress — as evidenced by leaf coloration and defoliation near harvest — and the taste of the fruit. When it gets close to harvest, it is most important to get out and walk the vineyard."

"FRUITY CABERNETS age better than herbal, vegetative ones," maintains John Hawley, winemaker at Clos du Bois Winery. "During the winemaking process, it is also important to minimize the extraction of hard, bitter tannins that come from stems and seeds."

"They do not disappear with age. This can be achieved by controlled, light pressing. Old wines, having lost much of their youthful fruit, may still remain hard, bitter and astringent because of the type of tannins they were 'born' with."

This techy lingo can be summed up easily. If a young red wine does not taste good when it's young, it won't get better with bottle aging. Red wines do round out with cellaring, and they do develop a bottle bouquet.

If, however, red wines are hard, bitter, tannic and astringent when young, they'll age ungracefully and be hard, bitter, tannic, astringent old wines!

Wine Selection of the Week

1988 Dry Creek Vineyards Meritage ($25) is a classic candidate for aging. Produced from 57 percent cabernet sauvignon, 30 percent merlot with American oak aging, it is packed with fruit. Soft and supple on the palate, it has the charm of a young Bordeaux wine from a warmer vintage. No doubt about it, the price is up there, but a Bordeaux wine of this quality will be more expensive. Expect to pay a higher price for ageable wines.

Wine Bulletin Board

• Taste some truly ageable Bordeaux wines at the Bordeaux Dinner, presented by Cloverleaf Market at 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 16, at the Golden Mushroom, 18100 W. Ten Mile, Southfield. The cost is $85/person (an incredible bargain) for a selection of five appetizers served with two wines and a seven-course dinner complemented with nine of the finest Bordeaux wines, principally from 1985, 1986 and 1987. For reservations, call Jim Lutfy, 357-0400.

• The Great Wine Shootout will take place 7-9 p.m. Monday, Sept. 17, at Glen Oaks Country Club, on 13 Mile, between Orchard Lake and Middlebelt roads, Farmington Hills. The event is $15 per person and is sponsored by The Winetasters.

After taking a year off, one of the most popular tastings in the Detroit metro area is returning. You can sample about 50 new fall release wines from California and the Pacific Northwest.

This event has sold out in prior years, so don't wait to make a reservation. Call Dennis Walsh at 852-5533 for more information.

Pizza is perfect for summer barbecues

Having sampled Oshinski's grilled pizza at both the benefit and at a recent tasting in Hines Park, I can report that the taste is out of this world. The grilling makes for a chewier dough with a drier crust. The texture is a cross between what Keith Famle and Ed Janos are doing to pizzas and the flavored crust pizzas from Hungry Howies.

Chels Famle and Janos have mastered the art of bistro pizzas, opting for a thinner, almost cracker-like crust that makes for an interesting texture, coupled with the sauces and toppings. If you've yet to try one of the flavored crusts at Hungry Howies (with locations all around town) they offer crusts flavored with butter, cheese, poppyseeds and a few other combinations.

CARL OSHINSKI'S barbecued pizza combines both of these worlds. Imagine barbecuing a chicken breast or two, then roasting some red and green peppers over the hot coals until their skins peel. The dough is lightly greased and then tossed onto a hot grid.

A sizzle erupts, sending wisps of delicate smoke and penetrating the crust. Oshinski said he has gotten excellent results by tossing wet mesquite, flavored hardwoods and herbs on the hot coals just before the dough. Practical pizza lovers could then use an ordinary sauce, but Oshinski recommends a subtle brushing of a premium, bottled barbecue sauce for an added dimension.

Dice up the chicken breast, toss on the chopped peppers and smother with a couple of handfuls of mozzarella and let the party begin.

THE PIZZA gourmet offers.

these timely tips for enjoying what's left of the outdoor pizza barbecuing season:

• For the first-time pizza barbecuer, double the dough and make a few "test" pizzas so that you can get the hang of what a white hot grill can do to a thin hunk of dough.

• Do as much on the grill as possible first. Heat your sauces, precook your toppings, roast the vegetables, etc. Brush as much off the grid as you can, then lightly wipe with oil before adding the crust. Most important, cook it hot and fast.

• Maintain a uniform thickness for the dough; 1/4 inch throughout is what the pizza gourmet suggests. Forget the clock. Look for visible signs of doneness like grid markings and brown edges. If it gets too hot, use tongs to position the dough over lower heat.

For the less adventuresome, Oshinski also recommends that you cook pizzas in a pan on a covered grill. Assemble the pizza as you normally would, but instead of firing up the oven, light up the coals. As mentioned before, the secret is cooking it hot and fast.

After the recent tasting in Hines Park, I walked Oshinski to his truck, almost hesitating to ask the inevitable, "What's next?" For a second, I thought the answer would be something campy like "pizza cooked by a propane torch."

Hardly. In addition to consulting with major pizza franchises around the country and looking for (if he hasn't found one already) an underwriter for an upcoming new PBS series on pizzas from around the world, Oshinski hopes to have a new cookbook out soon. He's also single and would make someone a pizza every night for the rest of their lives. What more could one want?

Shish kabobs make easy summer meal

IT IS with great pleasure that I welcome you back to the beginning of the second year of "Family-Tested Winner Dinners."

I hope you and your family had a fun and relaxing summer and are ready to begin not only a new month and season but a new school year as well.

As hard as it is to believe that the much-anticipated lush days of summer are almost over, the cooler nights and the sound of chirping cicadas quickly reconfirm the calendar.

THIS WEEK'S Winner Dinner Winner, Domenica Hartman, offers a delicious transitional menu that makes good use of the abundant produce so readily available at this time of the year.

Originally from Chicago and now living in Plymouth, Hartman worked as a patent attorney for General Motors until just one week ago. She left to become a full-time wife and mother.

Although she plans to do some work out of her home, Hartman is ecstatic to have the opportunity to be home with her 6-month-old son. Her husband of four years is currently at Wayne State Law School and says his wife's cooking is one of the reasons he is so happy.

Named after her Italian grandmother, Hartman learned everything she knows about cooking from her and particularly enjoys preparing Italian dishes.

Thank you, Domenica Hartman, for sharing your delicious recipes with us and congratulations on being this week's winner. Best of luck to you and your family as you begin your new career.

AS WE begin a new year of Winner Dinners, I look forward to hearing from many more people.

As the lazy, hazy days of summer turn into those hectic, busy days of fall, quick and easy meals will be

SWEET AND SPICY CHICKEN KABOBS

Making good use of the abundant produce available at this time of the year, these shish kabobs are best when they have at least four hours to marinate in the colorful and easily made sauce. If you don't have metal skewers, long bamboo skewers work just as well and can be found in most large supermarkets. This recipe serves four to six people.

- 6 boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 3 medium zucchini, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 2 red peppers, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1 box mushrooms, stems removed

Spray kabob skewers with non-stick spray. Alternate the chicken pieces with the vegetables and lay them flat in a shallow baking dish. Pour the marinade over the skewers, rolling each one in the sauce to ensure that all sides of the shish kabobs are lightly coated with the marinade. Cover and refrigerate them for at least four hours and preferably overnight, if possible.

MARINADE

- 1/4 cup oil
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 can crushed pineapple, 8-ounce size
- 1 cup ketchup
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon ground mustard
- 2 tablespoons parsley, minced
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons fresh-ground pepper
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine all ingredients and pour over the skewers. Once marinated, place kabobs on a preheated grill about 4 inches from the heat. Brush with the remaining marinade and cook about 6 minutes on each side.

PASTA SALAD

A most satisfying complement to the shish kabobs, this recipe is sure to become one of your favorites, as it is easy to prepare and delicious.

- 1 package Contadina cheese-filled tortellini
- 3 jars marinated artichokes, 6-ounce size, drained and halved
- 2 heads broccoli, chopped coarsely
- 1 tablespoon fresh or dry basil, chopped coarsely
- 2 tablespoons parsley, minced
- 1 teaspoon powdered garlic
- 1 bottle Italian dressing, preferably Kraft Presto, 8-ounce size
- 1-2 tomatoes, cut up
- 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese, grated

Cook the pasta according to the package directions. Drain well and combine the above ingredients. Marinate for at least four hours and preferably overnight, if possible. Serve chilled.

GARLIC BREADSTICKS

Follow the package directions and prepare the Pillsbury bread sticks accordingly, sprinkling garlic powder on the sticks just before placing them in the oven.

ICE CREAM OR YOGURT

No muss, no fuss, simply your choice of a dessert that will offer a refreshing conclusion to a tasty meal.

Shopping List

Notes

Larco's restaurant specializes in classic Italian entree dishes

The Pasta Fagiola soup is superb. A variation of a tomato-based ham and bean soup in which pasta is added, this dish is set off with a sprinkling of red pepper. The restaurant also features a good tortellini soup and, as you'd expect, a minestrone ($1.50 for a cup and $2.25 for a bowl).

Among the special entrees we enjoyed was a spinach ravioli dish in which the cheese-stuffed ravioli was coated with a creamy shrimp sauce ($8.25). Also good was a salmon entree draped with a light, creamy caper sauce ($8.95). Main lunch entrees come with an excellent lettuce salad, pasta or potato and a bread basket with a small loaf of Italian bread and breadsticks. Dinners typically include salad, pasta and potato or vegetable along with the bread.

AN INTERESTING variation on the chicken-salad-for-lunch theme is Larco's California chicken, a cold dish in which the chicken breast is stuffed with basil, served on a bed of romaine and head lettuce and accompanied by fresh fruit — cantaloupe, apple slices, orange slices, grapes and a strawberry. The salad is a visual and culinary delight as well as a refreshingly delicious lunch.

Since opening just six months ago on the site of a former Italian restaurant on Troy's main street (Big Beaver), business has been booming. We can see why. Some things never change. Some things never should.

Details: Larco's, 645 E. Big Beaver (16 Mile Road), between Livernors and Rochester Roads, Troy. 680-0066. The family also has a restaurant and carryout business at 20097

W. Twelve Mile, Southfield. 353-5121.

Troy hours: 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Friday-Saturday, 3-9 p.m. Sunday.

Prices: Lunches $4.95-$10.95; Dinners $8.95-$15.95, including salads, pasta, bread. Visa, MasterCard, American Express.

DRY BEER

Anheuser-Busch, brewer of Budweiser, has introduced its first dry beer, Bud Dry. The company says it is brewed with a longer, natural process in which the beer acquires a dry taste, with no aftertaste. It also has fewer calories than other non-light beers. A 12-ounce Bud Dry contains approximately 4.9 percent alcohol by volume and 130 calories. Other non-light beers range from 145 to 160 calories.

NEW RICE

Uncle Ben's is now marketing a new type of rice called Aromatic rice. It is a fluffy, long-grain rice with a popcorn aroma and buttery flavor. It contains no added flavors, preservatives or calories. The rice is available in two forms, regular and Boil-in-Bag. Both forms can be prepared on the range or in the microwave.

Franklin tripped up by Triplett again

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Things went from bad to worse before Saturday's opening kickoff for Livonia Franklin's football team.

The Patriots lost one starter, wide receiver/safety Steve Clemmons to a broken hand in the warmups, and then watched Lansing Sexton tailback Howard Triplett break three tackles en route to a 73-yard touchdown run on the first play from scrimmage.

Clemmons' injury, Triplett's running and the state-ranked Big Reds were too much to overcome for the host Patriots, as they dropped their season opener, 27-6.

"Clemmons is the fastest kid we have, but that wasn't the difference," said Franklin coach Armand Vigna. "But that was an omen of the way things were going to go."

Clemmons was practicing kicks when he slipped and fell, breaking three bones in his left hand. He is expected to miss the rest of the season.

TRIPLETT, MEANWHILE, the highly-touted 5-foot-10, 170-pound speedster who gained 167 yards in a 21-7 victory in last year's opener over the Patriots, proved he is on his way to another banner year.

"It was a determined, hard run," Vigna said of the 73-yard dash. "We hit him, but we didn't bring him down. You better hit that guy and knock him down. He went through three of us."

Triplett, much in the same mold as another ex-Sexton standout, Alan Haller, now a starter at Michigan State, finished with 146 yards in 13 carries.

He also scored on a 52-yard TD on Sexton's first offensive play of the second half, giving the Big Reds, a Class A playoff qualifier a year ago, a commanding 27-0 lead.

"Both are great kids (Haller and Triplett) and both are big-time players," said Sexton coach Bob Meyers.

"He (Triplett) has increased his speed and he's also very levelheaded. He knows where he's going and what he has to do to get there. And Howard is the hardest worker on the team and the kids respect him. I could say those things about our quarterback (James McIntosh), too."

McINTOSH, ANOTHER starter from last year's 9-2 squad, completed only two of six passes, but both went for TDs. He made his completions count, hooking up with Keith Newbern on scoring passes of 37 and 31 yards.

Franklin, meanwhile, had trouble moving the football, finishing with a total of just 104 yards.

Ironically, Franklin enjoyed favorable field position much of the first half, but couldn't capitalize.

TONY FACIONE recovered a fumble on the Sexton 21 with 7:24 to go in the opening period, but quarterback Mike Gelger (8-of-14 for 68 yards) was intercepted for the second time by Diallo Brown at the goal line.

Franklin also had the ball on the Sexton 10 on its initial series, and at the Big Reds' 31 late in the first quarter, but came up empty.

"We were playing with them at that point," Vigna said. "But we had a couple of penalties, the offenses, that hurt us."

Sexton, despite McIntosh being sacked four times for minus-48 yards, gained 231 total yards.

"Speed was the difference in this game," Meyers said. "Armand has some fine players, but we have speed."

Sexton hosts Redford Catholic Central on Saturday, while Franklin travels Friday night to St. Clair.

Stevenson spans RU Spartans roll, 28-8

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Mistakes were magnified in Friday's prep football opener between Livonia Stevenson and Redford Union.

Host Stevenson kept its miscues to a minimum, rolling to a 28-8 victory over the Panthers, who couldn't overcome their own glaring errors.

"Stevenson's got experience and they didn't beat themselves," said RU second-year coach Shawn McGowan. "Fundamentally they (Stevenson) are always strong. In the first half our inexperience showed. We kind of went out to lunch in the first half. A lot of it was technique type of things."

The Spartans had things pretty much in control by halftime, building a 20-0 lead.

Stevenson's first score occurred with 3:08 left in the opening quarter when defensive end Roger LaGrow picked off a screen pass by RU quarterback Brian Theis and rambled in from 15 yards out.

ONLY MINUTES EARLIER, Stevenson, mounting a 61-yard drive, turned the ball over at the RU 18 when Bill Warzecha scooped up a Chad Myers fumble.

But RU, hit with successive illegal procedure calls, found itself deep in a hole, setting the stage for LaGrow's TD interception.

On RU's next offensive series, Stevenson tackle Erich Kickland busted through the line and blocked a Theis punt, recovering the ball at the RU 9.

And only three plays later, Spartan quarterback Ryan Furkas connected with Doug Carmack on a 7-yard TD pass with 27 seconds left to extend the lead.

Kicker Steve Barnas, who made

his first extra point, missed the second as the Spartans took a 13-0 advantage.

Stevenson struck again. Frank Euplzi returned a short RU punt 11 yards to the Panthers' 34, giving Stevenson excellent field position.

Furkas then hit Carmack with a 20-yard pass, and Doug Lehti, who led all rushers with 107 yards in 20 carries, followed with a nifty 18-yard TD run.

Furkas and Carmack again teamed up for the two-point conversion pass, giving the Spartans a 21-point cushion at intermission.

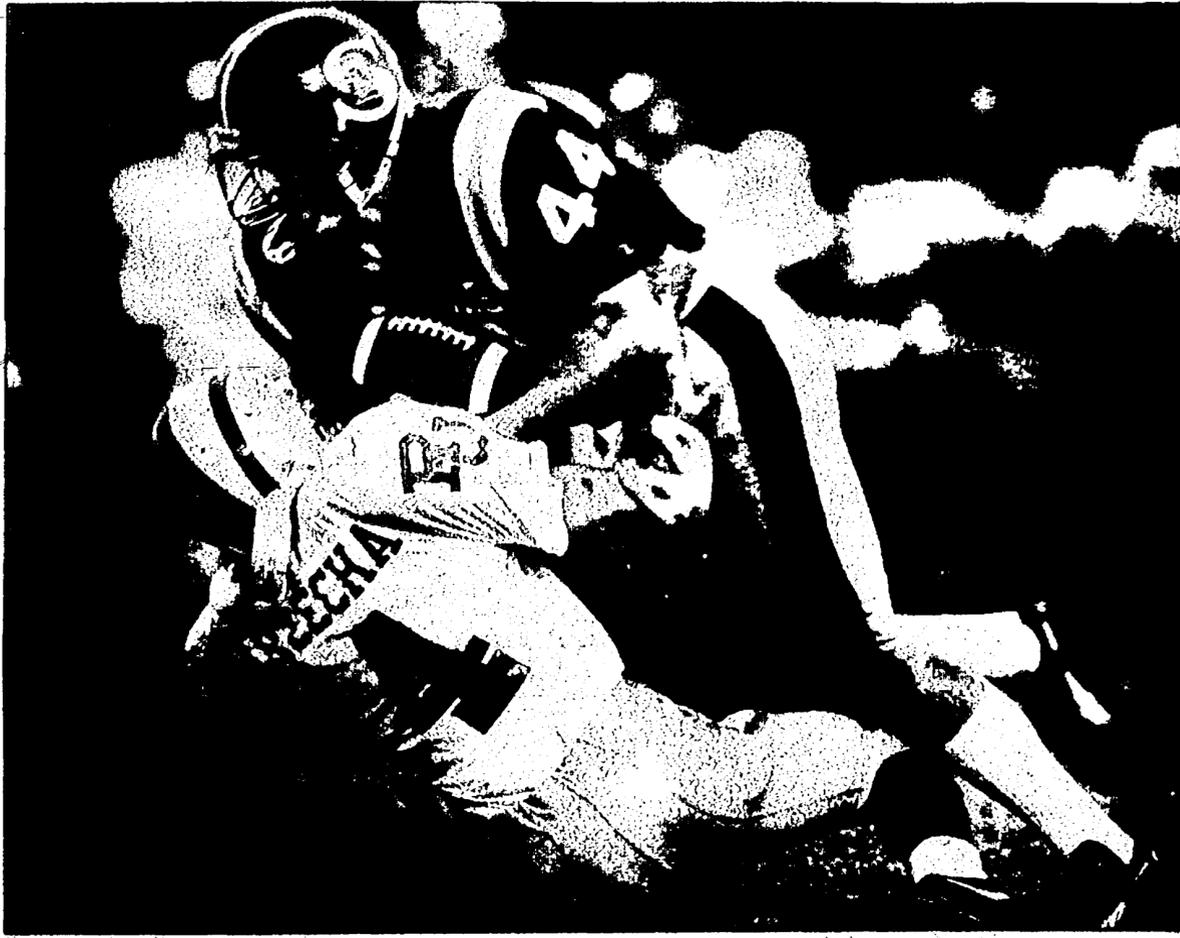

"MENTALLY THE KIDS came ready to play," said Stevenson coach Jack Reardon. "But what I really like about our team is that they were very enthusiastic."

The Spartans' defense carried their enthusiasm on into the third quarter, holding the Panthers for a 2-yard loss.

"Defensively in the first half and onto the third quarter I thought we swarmed," Reardon said. "And a lot of that comes from enthusiasm. We had a lot of people around the football, not just one guy."

One guy who was particularly around the ball all night was Euplzi, only 5-foot-6 and 130 pounds. He had eight first hits and two assists. (Senior linebacker Marco DeSanto led with seven first hits and six assists.)

"Frank (Euplzi) was a guy we didn't have last year because he made a commitment to a hockey team in one of the house leagues,"

GUY WARREN/staff photographer

Doug Carmack (top) of Livonia Stevenson fights for extra yardage against Redford Union safety Brian Warzecha during Friday's prep football opener. Carmack caught a touchdown pass said the Stevenson coach. "He tackles well although he's only 130 pounds. But he's a good football player. We didn't know if he would play this year so we're glad to have him."

In the fourth quarter, the Spartans increased their lead to 28-0 when Lehti scored on a 2-yard run with 6:42 to go.

"I THOUGHT backs did all right, but we need to execute better when in Stevenson's convincing 28-8 victory over the Panthers in a non-league encounter.

blocked punt," said McGowan. "We need to pull together and eliminate mistakes. I saw a lot of positive signs, but we beat ourselves. We didn't give ourselves a chance to win."

Theis, a junior starting his second season on the varsity, completed 11 of 24 passes for 94 yards.

"In the second half Brian came around and started putting some zip on the ball," said the RU. "That was a good sign. He'll be a good one. Basically we're a young team with only one senior on the offensive line."

As for, Reardon was pleased with the fact that his team had only one turnover.

"I don't think we beat ourselves, we had no interceptions or blocked punts," he said. "We made a few penalties that hurt us in spots, but for the first game, the execution was not bad."

New Bad Boy? Pistons give ex-CC star shot

By Brad Emons
staff writer

John McIntyre may be considered a longshot, but he's at the gate.

The former Redford Catholic Central High cage star has put himself in position to make the Detroit Pistons, that's right the NBA World Champions, who signed him to a free agent contract Thursday at the Palace.

The Pistons invited McIntyre, who averaged 10 points and three assists last season for the University of Missouri, to veterans camp, which begins the first week of October.

McIntyre, who played for both the Milwaukee Bucks and Golden State Warriors free agent/rookie teams last month in the Los Angeles Summer Pro League, knows the odds are stacked against him.

"Right now my chances are not great, but if they don't sign a guy like Vinnie Johnson, they're much better," said McIntyre.

McIntyre met with Piston general manager Jack McCloskey to go over the terms of his agreement with the team. His agent, Tom Condon, of Kansas City, Mo., who represents 54 National Football League players, consummated the deal by phone.

"HE WAS REALLY enthused and he (McCloskey) said he had watched me the last two years and he told me if I didn't make it, some day I would play in the NBA because of the way I play," said McIntyre, a 6-foot-5, 185-pound guard. "They (the Pistons) like their guards to play both positions and be able to shoot the three-pointer. To play in the NBA you have to be good and lucky, and... who's there is also a big factor."

Also going to the post trying to make one of Detroit's 12 roster spots will be guard Lance Blanks, the team's No. 1 draft pick from Texas; former University of Michigan forward Mark Hughes, who recently signed a guaranteed contract; free agent guard Chris Harris from Illinois-Chicago; forward Nathan Buntin, McIntyre's teammate at Missouri; Anthony Cook, the team's first-round pick two years ago from Arizona; and Tree Rollins, a veteran

NBA center who was released after last season by Cleveland.

WHERE DOES McIntyre fit in? "My approach is to simply go in and try to make the team," he said. "This is really everything I've been working for ever since I started playing. It would be a dream come true after living here all my life to have an opportunity to play for the Pistons."

McIntyre played for the Bucks during July's four-way free agent/rookie mini-camp held at the Palace.

He went out to California where he averaged 13 points, five rebounds and five assists for Milwaukee's squad playing against such NBA players as Tony Campbell (Minnesota Timberwolves), Byron Scott (LA Lakers) and Sean Kemp (Seattle Super Sonics).

For Golden State he got to play the point.

"I thought I played really well in California, but not great in Detroit's mini-camp," McIntyre said. "While in LA, McIntyre attracted the interest of a professional team from Israel.

John McIntyre signs with Pistons

"An international scout talked to me and wanted to send me to Israel for 10 days and depending how I liked it, I could stay or leave," he said. "But I turned it down because that's not the best place to be right now."

THE PLACE to be is the Palace, as far as McIntyre is concerned.

And if things don't work out, he can fall back on the Continental Basketball Association where he was the fourth pick overall by Columbus, Ohio.

"I can either go to Europe or come back after I take a year and be that much better," he said. "Being picked (by the CBA) made me feel like a third-round draft choice."

Lack of entries cuts golf event

Due to a lack of entries, the Observer & Eccentric/Whispering Willows Women's Golf Tournament — scheduled for Wednesday — has been canceled.

Deadline for entering the tournament was last Wednesday. At that time, Whispering Willows had received fewer than 20 entries.

Golf pro Gary Whitener has tried several different inducements over the last several years, from free gifts (visors, golf towels) to including lunches in the entry fee, but interest has continued to wane.

This year Whitener moved the tournament back two weeks, hoping other ladies' leagues would be completed, allowing more players to enter.

Nothing has worked. "It isn't a timing reason, and it isn't a price reason," said Whitener. Entry cost was $22 for the 18-hole tournament, with prizes available in three flights.

Whitener believes a combination of factors led to the tourney's demise: competition from the multitude of other women's leagues and the wide gap in talent, which gave just a few golfers a chance to win the overall O&E title.

The O&E Men's Tournament continues to flourish. Entries close Saturday, already more than 100 have been received. The maximum number allowed for the tournament, slated for Sept. 15-16, is 200.

Cost for the two-day, 36-hole men's tourney is $50. Entry forms are available at Whispering Willows or in your Observer & Eccentric sports sections.

The future of the women's tournament has not yet been determined. For information concerning the men's tourney, call Whispering Willows at 476-4493.

Huron Valley Lutheran can't answer 32-0 run

It was something that could only occur in Ripley's Believe It Or Not.

After leading 36-35 with three minutes to play in the third quarter, Huron Valley Lutheran of Westland was outscored 32-0 during the final 11 minutes as Grass Lake won the consolation game of the Whitmore Lake girls basketball tournament on Thursday, 67-36.

Huron Valley coach Harvey Kightlinger was at a loss for words, trying to explain the sudden turn-about.

"We just never scored again," he said. "And I don't understand it because we were playing so well up to that point."

Connie Pelton led the victorious Warriors with 22 points.

Nancy List and Snady Dengel tallied 14 and 10, respectively, in a losing cause.

Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest won the championship final with a 42-39 triumph over host Whitmore Lake.

On Wednesday, Huron Valley opened its season with a 56-28 loss to the host Trojans.

Wendy Watson led the winners with 22 points.

Sophomore forward Brenda Mayworm tallied 11 for the Hawks.

LUTHERAN EAST 70, LUTH. WESTLAND 42: Harper Woods Lutheran pulled away in the second half Thursday, topping visiting Lutheran High Westland in the season opener for both teams, 70-42.

The Warriors stayed close for a half, trailing by one four, 30-26. But the host Eagles ripped off 40 second-half points to Lutheran Westland's 16 to win going away.

Despite the loss, senior forward Stephanie Locke scored 17 points and added 10 rebounds. She also had six assists and six steals. Kristen Strang added eight points and seven rebounds.

Sally Lyford and Julie Wood each tallied 14 points for Lutheran East. Westland shot 18 of 24 from the free throw line, while East was six of 18.

basketball

Livonia Ladywood proved Thursday it has plenty in its bank account, opening its 1990 girls basketball season with a convincing 67-49 victory at Westland John Glenn.

The Blazers demonstrated they have somebody to back up 6-foot All-Area senior forward Rebecca Willey, the team's only returning starter.

Four Ladywood players scored in double figures, led by sophomore Tracy Frybylski, who tallied 14 points and added six steals. Willey and low-post mate Leslie Catanzarite, a 6-1 senior, added 13 points each, while sophomore Mary Jo Kelly contributed 12 and junior reserve Janet Davls netted nine off the bench.

"For the first game we played well as a team," said Gasparovic, who is coming off a 12-8 season where Willey did most of the scoring and rebounding. "We're very, very balanced, and I think now we can go to anybody on the bench. I think a lot of these girls could start for other teams."

Catanzarite, who also snared 10 rebounds, may be the area's most improved pivot player.

"Leslie knows she's a senior and she knows this is her year," Gasparovic said. "She worked very hard all summer on her post game. She takes the ball to the basket hard and she can catch the ball a lot better. We worked hard with her using the medicine (heavy) ball."

GLENN, meanwhile, returns four of five starters, but looked anything like an experienced team.

Ladywood's full-court pressure hounded the Rockets into 23 turnovers.

"Credit their (Ladywood's) team defense," said Glenn coach Pat Bennett. "And they outran us. We were tired. But we came back three times, so we were not extremely tired. But we're going to have to learn to hustle more up the floor more consistently, even with only eight players."

Ladywood jumped out quickly, building an 18-7 first-quarter lead.

Glenn closed the gap to 20-16 midway through the second quarter on a three-point shot by Karen Olack (13 points), but Ladywood took a 34-24 advantage at intermission on a Davis hoop with two seconds to go.

The Blazers opened up their biggest lead of the night, 19-point spread (53-34) lead with 2:04 left in the third period on a basket by Willey.

Glenn tried one last-ditch run, pulling to within eight, 57-49, on a free throw by Carrie Rachwal (13 points) with 2:20 remaining, but the Blazers ran off 10 unanswered points to secure the win.

"I THINK WE were in much better condition than they were," said

Gasparovic, who used 13 players. "The fast-break was a factor. This year we have the personnel to run. We have some better runners who can get up and down the floor."

Although Ladywood coach said "I liked everything we did," there's still room for improvement. The Blazers, for instance, committed 26 turnovers.

"We'd like to cut down on that about 10," she said. "But with our style of play, the turnovers will be there."

Ladywood shot 51 percent from the floor (33 of 64), while Glenn hit only 20 of 58 (34 percent). Jenny Massey was the only other Rocket to score in double figures with 11 points.

Glenn's 5-11 returning junior center Cathy Mruk, had only six points. She was held to one field goal.

"A few times Cathy was able to work on Leslie (Catanzarite), but couldn't get her the ball," Bennett said. "She was not as effective as we liked, but she didn't get as many opportunities as I wanted."

Bennett gains Glenn boys job

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Subject to School Board approval, Pat Bennett will become the next boys basketball coach at Westland John Glenn High.

Glenn athletic director Gerald Szukailis acknowledged Thursday that Bennett, who is also Glenn's girls cage coach, will take over for Bob Killingbeck, who resigned last March after posting a 37-30 record in three seasons.

Outgoing Glenn principal Dr. James Myers, who has since left for an assistant's position at Farmington High, recommended the 27-year-old Bennett after leading a search committee, which also included Glenn assistant principal Larry Wood and Wayne-Westland Schools personnel director Dan Slee.

"I jumped at it in a minute," said Bennett. "I wanted the challenge of a different level. I also wanted the challenge of running the whole basketball program at the high school."

As a 22-year-old JV assistant, Bennett became the area's youngest head basketball coach in 1985, serving on an interim basis for the Glenn girls program after veteran coach George Sommerman resigned in mid-season.

BENNETT WENT ON to post a 7-5 record that season and was named the school's full-time coach in 1986 where he posted his best record (16-5).

In 5½ seasons with the Glenn girls, Bennett is 53-47 overall. Bennett's job with the Glenn boys will be difficult.

Because of a five-month delay in hiring a new coach, Glenn's boys were unable to participate in a summer basketball program. The district, also suffering from series of millage defeats, has instituted a pay-for-play plan.

"I haven't had a chance to talk with anybody, but the players we had last year in the program seemed to be focused on basketball," Bennett said. "But I don't know who is going to be there until I find out who has paid the fee."

Bennett calls himself "a disciplinarian" who stresses academics along with athletics.

Pat Bennett named boys coach

"I also want to make enjoyable for them during the high school years," Bennett said. "I think I can enhance their experience."

BENNETT is a full-time student at Wayne State University working on a degree in secondary education. "Coaching turned me into education," he said.

The new coach also indicated that he plans to stick with both the girls and the boys programs "at least the next two or three years."

Shea's shots give Patriots big boost

By Ray Sellock
staff writer

The Livonia Franklin High girls basketball team couldn't ask for a better way to begin its season.

The Patriots (2-0) captured the Suzanne Smith Memorial Tournament championship with a 53-41 victory over Western Lakes Activities Association foe Northville (1-1).

After jumping to a 9-1 advantage early in the game, Franklin's only job was to hold off the pressure being applied by the Mustangs' defense.

"We were down when they got off to such a strong start," Northville coach Ed Kritch said. "But we fought back and didn't let Franklin relax."

The Patriots jumped to first half leads of 19-8 and 24-12, but Northville still managed to keep the score close, trailing by just six points at halftime, 27-21.

Perhaps the biggest moment of the game came early in the third quarter when Franklin senior guard Patty Shea canned a pair of three-pointers, once again giving Franklin a commanding lead.

"WE WEREN'T playing Patty to hit those kind of shots," Kritch said. "In fact, we weren't playing her to hit anything outside 20 feet. But it's a credit to her ability that she hit those outside buckets."

Shea, along with fellow guard Dawn Warner, shared a game-high scoring honors with 17 points each for Franklin. Senior center Jenny Mayle added nine points.

"They are an excellent guard tandem," Franklin coach Dan Freeman said of Shea and Warner. "They control the tempo of the game for our team."

The Patriots exercised the art of ball control for much of the second half, not letting the Mustangs get within striking distance. A 49-41 deficit would be as close as Northville would get.

"Our offense moved the ball around well today," Freeman said. "They were real patient and didn't try to force too many things. That is something we had trouble with in Tuesday's game with South Lyon."

SENIOR FORWARDS Kate Holstein and Maria MacCinnis scored 12 and 10 points, respectively, to pace Northville.

"Northville played a heck of a game and wouldn't let us relax for a second," Freeman said. "If we let up, they closed the gap. It was a good win for us. A nice way to start the season."

Kritch says this game is a good preview for the WLA season.

"We play Franklin in league play in couple of weeks," he said. "It should be quite a rematch."

Winning debuts

Ward paces Rockets; Wayne prevails

John Ward rocketed through Highland Park's defense for 173 yards rushing and three touchdowns, leading Westland John Glenn to a 28-0 season-opening victory Friday at Highland Park.

Ward, a 6-foot-1, 180-pound junior tailback, did his damage on 24 carries, scoring on a 2-yard run in the first quarter, a 6-yard run in the second and a 4-yard scamper in the fourth. The Rockets gained 293 yards to 179 for Highland Park.

Glenn quarterback Lawrence Scheffer connected on 2-of-6 passes for 45 yards, with both completions coming in a fourth-quarter drive. Scheffer hit Steve Fuller for gains of 24 and 21 yards, setting up Tad Quattlander's 1-yard TD dive.

Rocket fullback Alonzo Jackson rambled for 51 yards on 10 attempts, as Glenn outrushed the Polaf Bears 248-132. Kevin Springer hit all four of his extra-point kicks.

STERLING HTS. 35, CHURCHILL 14: A 60-yard punt return for a touchdown in the third quarter gave Sterling Heights the lead for good Friday and and were keying on him all the way. Everyone's going to be after him now."

Churchill quarterback Jason Renklewicz completed five of nine passes for 56 yards and no interceptions. Craig Shepley caught two of the aerials for 45 yards. Osterland also praised two-way lineman Bob Coppola and linebacker/fullback Ryan Kukla for the blocking they did in front of Brooks.

WAYNE MEMORIAL 21, ADRIAN 20: Jason Wetmore threw two TD passes Friday, including one of 23 yards to Gary Barnes with 7:16 left that gave Wayne Memorial a thrilling season-opening win over host Adrian.

A 46-yard fumble return by senior linebacker Adam Moran set up the score. Wetmore's extra point gave the Zebras the one-point win.

Wetmore completed seven-of-18 passes for 126 yards. Adrian led, 20-14, at halftime.

Wetmore gave Wayne its first points in the second quarter when he found Jerry Rogers for a 33-yard score. A 4-yard run by Wetmore and a two-point conversion by Kevin Bradley gave the Zebras a brief, 14-12 lead.

Bradley caught three passes for 41 yards.

The Stallions went on to record a hard earned non-conference win over visiting Livonia Churchill.

"The punt return put us back on our heels a little bit," said Churchill coach Herb Osterland, whose team was outgained, 265-227, in total offense. "We were moving the ball real good before that."

The loss spoiled a sterling effort by Chargers tailback Mike Brooks, who gained all of Churchill's 171 yards and also intercepted one pass. Brooks, who carried the ball 30 times, scored on runs of 2 and 7 yards in the first half when Churchill built a 14-13 halftime lead.

Brooks also had runs of 28, 26 and 19 yards. Sterling Heights regrouped at halftime and allowed the Chargers only 40 yards rushing in the second half.

"Brooks had a helluva night," Churchill coach Herb Osterland said. "They had to readjust in the second half

Churchill wins opener

Mark Mason was victorious in his debut as Livonia Churchill boys soccer coach Wednesday, as his Chargers came away with a 3-0 victory at Rochester Adams.

Churchill jumped out to a 2-0 half-time lead on goals by Dominic Vella and Mike Gentile.

Jason Brownfield set up both goals, the second coming off a corner kick.

Dario Raüker, on an assist from Kevin Delforty, added an insurance goal in the second half for the Chargers.

"I thought we played well," Mason said. "The field was decent size. It was wider, so we were able to use our lineup the way we wanted. We used five midfielders, and with our skill, we dominated."

Sweeper Scott Lamphear led the Churchill defensive effort, limiting the host Highlanders to just one shot on goal in the second half.

Churchill used two goalies, Jeff Cassar in the first half and Kal Kaliszewski in the second half.

OKEMOS 2, REDFORD CC 1: A pair of first-half goals stood up Thursday as the host Chiefs pulled off a mild surprise, upending power Redford Catholic Central.

The Shamrocks, who dominated the second-half, got a goal from Dana Orsucci. A potential game-tying goal was disallowed because of an offside infraction.

Brian Maahs was the goaltender for CC, now 1-1 overall.

Disabled vets join forces

LET ME TELL you about a bowling league. They are called the "MPVA Wheelers," and that stands for Michigan Paralyzed Veterans of America.

The league is comprised of about 20 bowlers, all military veterans from World War II to Korea to Vietnam. They are ABC/WIBC sanctioned and bowl in several regional tournaments as well as the National Championship of the American Wheelchair Bowling Association. At the nationals in California last July, Bob Calderon of Livonia came in ninth out of 59 finalists. Bob is the league president of the MPVA Wheelers. Since this is a newly formed league and many of the participants are new to the game, it is hard to say what the bowling averages would be, however, Calderon carries a 142 average himself. The method of bowling is to position the wheelchair at the foul line and get a real good arm-swing, there is no help at all from the body momentum that an able-bodied bowler generates from the approach steps. One of the league members is quadriplegic and therefore uses a ramp that enables him to direct the ball at the target. The league has a few more openings for those who are interested, and yes, it is a mixed league as one of the bowlers is a woman.

This league bowls every other Saturday at 11 a.m. starting Sept. 8 at Super Bowl in Canton Township. There will be eight weeks to the season, and probably will be followed by another eight week season. This is all an integral part of an overall training program for the Wheelchair Olympics, otherwise known as the National Wheelchair Games, which will have the 11th-annual event taking place next June in Miami, Fla. These remarkable athletes also compete in track and field, swimming, weightlifting, billiards, basketball, table tennis and wheelchair "slalom." Among the participants from Observer & Eccentric cities are Bob Calderon of Livonia, Walter Runchey of Garden City, John Brown of Canton Township and Lou Cherkwak from Troy.

Last week, this column started to list bowling leagues that still have some open spots for anyone interested in getting on a team for the 90-91 season. There are some very good leagues and league bowling is a special part of the experience. There is the good fellowship, laughter, excitement and a great way to make new friends.

Here are some leagues with openings:

 The Case of the Tucson Tip-off.
 In a particular neighborhood in Tucson, Arizona, folks were having a real problem with burglaries and break-ins. They started talking to each other about what they could do. They got fed up. About 400 people went to the police for advice.

GC cagers romp

Nice start. Didn't accomplish much, though. Garden City girls' basketball coach Marshall Henry knows that.

Routing a team is one thing. Leading by 30 points at halftime is something else again.

Yes, the Cougars won their opener - 69-15 Thursday at River Rouge. The rest of the season won't feature a mismatch as lopsided as this.

"I never in my wildest imagination thought it would be this easy," said Henry. "It was over in the first three minutes. I figured we'd be better than they were, but not this much better. They've got a lot of young kids, inexperienced."

The Panthers' inexperience led to an experience Garden City's Carolyn Shanks may never forget. The senior guard came within one assist of a triple-double, recording 22 points, 10 steals and nine assists.

In all, nine of the 11 Cougars who played, scored. It hardly mattered who was on the court, though - GC led 13-3 after one period, 37-7 at the half and 57-13 after three quarters.

The Double JJ: For dudes and dudettes

By William Coutant
staff writer

Picture yourself on horseback, riding at an easy pace through woods and back roads to a beautiful clearing overlooking Lake Michigan. You and your friends then enjoy a steak dinner and a campfire on a beautiful summer evening.

Or how about a Friday evening at a beautiful Western-style dance hall, then playing volleyball until the wee hours and climbing in a hot tub with a cold drink afterward.

That's the kind of fun guests have at the Double JJ Resort Ranch in Rothbury, about 20 miles north of Muskegon.

Bob and Joan Lipsitz of Birmingham own the ranch, but the Jack and Jill, as it is still sometimes called, has been keeping guests in the saddle since 1937. The Double JJ is more than a dude ranch. It's a place for people to get away, relax, be entertained — 20 hours a day, if they want — and be pampered.

You don't cook and no kids are allowed.

"Our typical guest is a repeat," said Bob Lipsitz. "They tend to come the same time of year, one or two weeks a year."

IN FACT, the ranch is so popular that JJ "alumni" in Chicago and Detroit sponsor reunions in the winter.

Guests' vacation appetites are well-satisfied in the dining hall and after the evening meal, staff make sure guests get into the spirit with some good-natured kidding, and a rundown of the evening's activities. Guests are seated eight to a table and before sundown most everybody knows everybody. Everyone wears a name tag in the design of a wooden horseshoe to make sure. Sayings like "If you want a friend, be a friend" grace the dining hall.

"People who aren't friendly probably wouldn't like it here," said Lipsitz.

Staff are from places like Australia, Scotland, Denmark and Texas, all eager to show guests a good time. Hugh O'Brien (the actor who played Wyatt Earp on TV) used to wash dishes at the Double JJ.

Although most guests like to take a ride on one of the 60 horses at the ranch, it's not required. Those rides also may include breakfast or a picnic lunch. On Thursday night, a generous steak dinner is served to guests after they ride to Lake Michigan. For those not interested in travel on horseback, a hay wagon takes them to dinner on the lake.

After a day of horseback riding or a few games of volleyball, guests can climb into the ranch's hot tub to relax with a cold drink.

Friday night's highlight is a dance with live entertainment at the Wagon Wheel, a rustic dance hall with a window in the shape and design of a wagon wheel overlooking Big Wildcat Lake.

ARCHERY, volleyball, tennis, swimming and "spa bonding" are all part of the social scene. The western flavor comes to life in the Silver Dollar Saloon (with real silver dollars in the wooden floors), Calico Town (guest sleeping quarters with an old western town facade) and the Wagon Wheel.

Horse riding is a daily event for most, but not all guests.

"We have people that come here and never ride a horse and we have some expert riders," Lipsitz said. "So we have to have horses that are gentle and yet can perform."

And the guests mostly hear about the Double JJ by word of mouth.

"We just come here for the weekend to have a good time," said Ken Shrader of Waterford. "This is our sixth year here."

Shrader and his wife Kathy said a friend, Doug Cook of South Lyon, talked them into going. Cook likewise was talked into the idea by friends.

"Where else could you go for this price and get this much?" Cook said. "It's like a cruise without the boat. It's like you've been here forever. It's hard to tell the staff from the guests because everybody is so friendly."

And the time spent at the Double JJ can be a learning experience — not just for the horse riding.

"Some of the jokes you hear around here are — educational," Cook said.

Converted from a girl's camp in 1937, the 1,000-acre site serves about 3,000 guests each summer. In winter, the ranch continues to serve as a working horse farm and breeding operation. All hay is farmed on the property and all pasture land, training barns and corrals are part of the spread.

The ranch is also used for corporate groups in the off-season.

Staff, many with musical and other entertainment talents, keep guests entertained with skits, music, dancing and variety of sporting events.

The ranch has a gift store and snack shop, but guest stays include all meals, accommodation and entertainment. Rates are $164 per person for a weekend and $479 for one week. The ranch also offers mini-vacations and some special packages.

Double JJ also caters to select groups during weeks such as "Italian-American Singles Week."

Lipsitz said the ranch averages about 80 guests during the week and about 180 each weekend from May through Victoria Day weekend (the weekend after Labor Day for you non-Canadians).

Tex gives ranch its atmosphere

By William Coutant
staff writer

If the Double JJ Ranch has a western flavor, it's no accident.

John Kohler of Northville, a retired truck driver, said that was why former ranch owner George Storm recruited him in Arizona in 1950.

"He wanted a western cowboy to give it a ranch atmosphere," said Kohler, who worked for three summers taking care of the ranch's horses.

And that Kohler and others did.

Staff and guests alike had nicknames like "Waco" and "Dallas." "Tex" Kohler and others helped teach guests to ride, an activity that is still a big part of the ranch.

For three years, Kohler took care of the stock at the Double JJ in the summer, then headed back west to work in the winters, much as the current head wrangler Aaron Adamson does. Adamson, who hails from Moline, Kans., has been at the Double JJ for the past 12 years.

And then as now, guests were strongly encouraged to take part in activities, including the weekend dances.

"They did not allow you to be a wallflower," Kohler said. "The staff would dance with guests, because there were usually more ladies than men."

Kohler still remembers the hayrides, breakfast rides on horseback, and modest rodeos that are still a part of the Double JJ today. And he also remembers the sayings that graced the dining hall like "To have a friend, be a friend," and "The outside of a horse is good for the inside of a man." Those, too, remain a part of the ranch.

So why did he leave? Kohler met Betty Kelley, who worked in the kitchen at the ranch. They married and moved to the eastern part of the state where they still live near their four grown daughters and grandchildren.

And Kohler still works with horses.

Horses may be the focus of the Double JJ Resort Ranch, but for fishing enthusiasts, there's always time to try for a bite or two.

On the outside, it's a stylish log cabin. On the inside, it's the dining hall where guests are seated eight to a table.

The lowdown on the hoedown

The Double JJ Ranch is open seven days a week until Sept. 16. It will be open weekends through October and will include "murder mystery weekend" and, of course, Halloween weekend. Here's a look at the rates:

- $479 standard for a full week or $555 for the deluxe package (queen-sized bed, refrigerator and in-room coffee service).
- $219 standard and $269 deluxe for the mini-vacation (three nights).
- $164 standard and $199 deluxe for a weekend.

Kathryn Grody (from left), Diane Keaton and Carol Kane star in "The Lemon Sisters," the story of three women who form a life-long bond by winning the Little Miss Boardwalk contest.

'Mirror, Mirror': A dismal excuse for a horror film

Sam Raimi of Birmingham spent $14 million on his schlock horror film "Darkman," so give Jimmy Lifton of Southfield a little credit. Very little. Lifton produced his unpleasant slasher film, "Mirror, Mirror" (D+, R, 100 minutes) for the remarkably low price of $1 million. What a waste of money!

Also to Lifton's credit, he did a better piece of work. Both gentlemen, however, fail to make their home towns swell with pride for "Darkman" and "Mirror, Mirror" are gross, sadistic and offer very little beyond unpleasant, graphic displays of violence.

In particular, I must question Mr. Lifton's assertion in an interview published last week in the O&E newspapers that "Mirror, Mirror" is "very exciting because of what we suggest rather than what we show. A couple of times we do show a little bit of violence, a little bit of blood as a necessity to the genre."

He also contended in that interview that filmmakers rely on graphic depictions of violence and gore when they have no vision, no substance to their stories.

The gentleman stands convicted by his own words.

"MIRROR, MIRROR" is the 157 millionth film in which a shy, unhappy teenager, Megan Gordon (Rainbow Harvest), moves to town and is shunned by all the kids at school. It doesn't help that she dresses punk and looks really weird. Only Nikki (Kristin Dattilo) is nice to her and they become friends.

Megan and her mother, Mrs. Gordon (Karen Black), relocate to this new town from L.A. because they need a change of scenery after Mr. Gordon dies. They certainly get a new perspective living in the haunted Weatherworth house, complete with a mirror inhabited by a demon.

If that's a substantive story, the result of a filmmaker's vision, then there's some pretty simple-minded, perverse folks running things. Producer Lifton scored the film in a heavy-handed, effective manner which maintains tension — as much from volume as from musical achievement. But after viewing all the gore, mutilation, dead bodies and blood in "Mirror, Mirror," it's impossible to believe Lifton's claim that "a couple of times we do show a little bit of blood, a little bit of violence."

His lack of substance and vision is compounded by a muddled conclusion. "Mirror, Mirror" is just another teeny-bopper slasher film with an effective score. To its minimal credit, it does have better continuity and credibility than the abysmal "Darkman."

After such an indictment, some may question the grades of D- for "Darkman" and D+ for "Mirror, Mirror." I wanted to give the hometown boys a break.

"AFTER DARK, My Sweet" (R, 114 minutes), based on the Jim Thompson novel, features Jason Patrick as former boxer Kevin "Kid" Collins who has just escaped from a mental institution.

His path crosses that of a widow, Fay Anderson (Rachel Ward), who is a pretty nice woman when she's not drinking. Uncle Bud (Bruce Dern) has a plan to kidnap a rich young man, Charles Vanderventer III

Deep friendship between three women is the essence of "The Lemon Sisters" (*, PG, 93 minutes), starring Diane Keaton, Carol Kane and Kathryn Grody.

Directed by Joyce Chopra ("Smooth Talk," the 1988 Grand Prize Winner at the U.S. Film Festival), "The Lemon Sisters" captures the schmaltz and kitsch of the Boardwalk at Atlantic City and Coney Island through the story of three women who form a life-long bond by winning the Little Miss Boardwalk contest.

"Air America" (B-, R, 105 minutes). The insanity of war and the human sorrow of Southeast Asia in a jumbled but interesting story about two CIA pilots in Laos.

"Another 48 Hrs" (C-, R, 90 minutes). Murky plot and lots of violence. By and large this Nolte-Murphy reunion is unsatisfying.

"Arachnophobia" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes).

Killer spiders from Venezuela are no match for Jeff Daniels despite his fear of furry little, eight-legged creatures.

"Betsy's Wedding" (A, R, 90 minutes). Fine comedy nicely synthesizes American ethnic diversity, family values and the problems of being an individual in today's mass culture.

"Darkman" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes). Unpleasant, sadistic horror film lacks credibility and continuity.

"Days of Thunder" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes).

"Delta Force II" (R). Chuck Norris as Colonel Scott McCoy leading the Delta Force to rescue American DEA agents held captive by drug lords.

Scrooge McDuck from daytime TV in an entertaining and exciting animated feature that owes a great debt to Indiana Jones.

"The Exorcist III" (*, R). Picks up where number one left off with an evil spirit inhabiting the priest's body.

"Flatliners" (B, R, 111 minutes). Moody, atmospheric, suspenseful story of five med students experimenting with death.

"The Freshman" (C+, PG, 102 minutes). Brando is terrific in a satire of his "Godfather" performance, but the story here is too complicated and poorly told to make a worthwhile film.

"Ghost" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes). Banker's ghost (Patrick Swayze) hangs around after life to protect loved one (Demi Moore). Spiritualist (Whoopi Goldberg) helps him and this romantic/comedy/thriller.

"Ghost Dad" (C-, PG, 100 minutes). Even the Cosby magic can't stretch a half-hour sitcom to 100 minutes without commercials.

"Jetsons: The Movie" (G). George is now VP at Spacely, where sabotage highlights the ecology vs. technology issue.

"The Jungle Book" (A, G, 78 minutes). Re-release of 1967 Disney animated feature based on Kipling's Mowgli stories.

"Men at Work" (B+, PG-13, 92 minutes). Good entertainment in story of two garbage men who discover a body in the trash.

"Mo' Better Blues" (D, R, 120 minutes). Long, boring, corny, 1930-style musical set in the black idiom.

"My Blue Heaven" (*, PG-13). Mafia informant (Steve Martin) is hidden in Federal Witness Protection Program with Rick Moranis as FBI agent-in-charge.

"Navy Seals" (R, 113 minutes). U.S. Navy Commandos hit the beaches to save American helicopter crew from terrorists.

"Presumed Innocent" (B+, R, 125 minutes). Well-done courtroom drama with interesting, surprising (if you haven't read the book) ending.

"Pretty Woman" (A-, R, 120 minutes). Charming, romantic fantasy with Wall Street mogul (Richard Gere) falling in love with a prostitute (Julia Roberts).

"Problem Child" (*, PG). Suburban couple adopt mischievous child.

"Pump Up the Volume" (R, 100 minutes). Shy, disillusioned high school student accidentally sets up pirate radio station and becomes a hero.

"Quick Change" (C-, R, 85 minutes). An unusual gang robs a bank but has trouble getting out of New York City afterward. Contrived, stilted and very weak, even for Bill Murray fans.

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

He chooses roles carefully

By John Monaghan
special writer

When David Lynch needed someone to play one of the leads in his new film, "Wild at Heart," he immediately thought of Nicolas Cage. The young actor is no stranger to difbeat, likable characters, having played a crippled baker in "Moonstruck," a babynapper in "Raising Arizona" and a modern day Dracula in "Vampire's Kiss."

Cage and Lynch used to run into each other in Los Angeles. "I guess we have the same taste in drugstores and diners," Cage said last week in a phone interview from Los Angeles.

In "Wild at Heart," which opened for wide release last week, Cage plays Sailor Ripley, an ex-con who breaks parole to take off for sunny California with his girlfriend Lula (Laura Dern). They are chased through the seediest parts of the South by Lula's witchy mother.

"Sailor is like an old car that needs a tune-up. He drives cool and fast, but does break down," Cage noted in a lengthy analog. "He's totally open and pure and totally driven by love. He's not into head games and jealousy trips."

CAGE HAS added an extra element to the role — the ghost of Elvis Presley. Sailor talks like him, dances like him with karate kicks and punches, sings a couple of "E" songs, even has a passion for fried banana sandwiches.

"I've only recently gotten into the Elvis mythology," Cage said. "I'm convinced that he was the greatest voice in rock'n'roll history... I watched interviews with Elvis and practiced four days with a vocal coach trying to get the sound."

Filming the loosely plotted "Wild at Heart" left room for improvisation. Cage remembers a scene where Laura asks Sailor how old he was when he began smoking.

"The answer started with '12' but with each take it kept getting lower and lower until I eventually said 'four,'" he said. "That's what ended up in the film."

Cage won't try to analyze his new film ("It's an expression. It should be felt, not analyzed."). And while he isn't anxious to compare David Lynch with other directors he's convinced that he was the greatest voice in rock'n'roll history... I watched interviews with Elvis and practiced four days with a vocal coach trying to get the sound."

For an interesting, entertaining and well-produced motion picture that gently focuses the hot light of satire on evangelical television ministries and the media, try "Glory, Glory" (1988, R, 152 minutes), an Orion Television release.

It starts in Waco, Texas — the good old days — where the Rev. Dan Stuckey (Barry Morse) inspires his congregants in the Church of the Champions of Christ. His message culminates in successful pleas for cash contributions to continue the Lord's work. His son, Bobby Jo (Richard Thomas), is being trained to follow in his father's footsteps.

Brother Lester Babbitt (James Whitmore) is the church's accountant who claims divine inspiration for his tax-deductible investments, which soon make the church extremely prosperous. Quick segue to a contemporary evangelical television church where Reverend Dan holds forth until paralyzed by a stroke.

Bobby Joe is forced to assume the ministry, but he just doesn't have the fervor and charisma his father did and collections fall off rapidly. In fact, one of the film's few weak spots is the rapidly with which Bobby Joe's bland sermons undermine the whole operation.

Cutting a new alternative edge

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

New music mavens, buffs, devotees, aficionados... Rejoice. Commercial radio station CIMX-FM 88.7 will offer "The Cutting Edge" 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. nightly.

Former WRIF-FM disc jockey Greg St. James hosts the program, which debuts this week and features the latest wave in alternative music.

"I think this is an opportunity we've been talking about for seven years," said St. James, who has been a longtime proponent of opening the air waves to new bands. "There's a hole in this market."

"Now the job is to get the music out and let the music do the talking."

"The Cutting Edge" is the first program of its type by an area commercial radio station in a long while. WLBS-FM, and more recently WDTX-FM, tried new music formats in the past that failed.

In the last four years, though, alternative groups such as the Cure, R.E.M. and Depeche Mode have grown in prominence in terms of record sales and gate receipts. (For example, the Cure sold out Joe Louis Arena). Other trend-setting groups, such as the Smiths and Husker Du, have come and gone in the same time.

Commercial radio stations in Detroit have long been criticized for being slow, and in some cases, outright ignoring new music. Instead, they have stuck by AOR (album oriented rock) and classic rock formats.

AT LEAST for four hours a night there is an option.

The Windsor-based station has a 100,000-watt signal that

Ann Arbor, Lansing, Toledo as well as London, Ontario, in addition to the Detroit-Windsor area.

"The Cutting Edge" will bump against Canadian public radio new music shows "Brave New Waves" and "Nightlines" heard on CBE-FM 89.9. On Sunday nights, St. James will compete against WRIF's "Sonic Rendezvous."

All of which doesn't bother St. James, who's attitude is the more new music the merrier.

His show was seven years in the making. Former WDTX-FM DJ Mike Halloran and St. James made a similar proposal to then uninterested CJOM-FM in 1983.

CJOM-FM later became CIMX-FM with new ownership by the CHUM Group. St. James decided to try again in April, this time discussing the idea with station general manager Al Pervin.

"Al was receptive but cautious,"

St. James said and jokingly added, "Probably, the video with him and Swedish stewardess and handcuffs (changed his mind)."

Added Pervin: "I'm very excited about the 'The Cutting Edge.' Part of the matter is this type of music is not being played in concentrated form in the Detroit area."

"ANYTIME A radio station can add something... you're doing what radio should be doing — giving people an option."

St. James has been busy working out a play list. He mentions such alternative fare off the top of his head as the Railway Children, Adrian Belew along with main staples such as the Cure, David Bowie, B-52s and Depeche Mode.

Since CIMX-FM is in Windsor, "The Cutting Edge" is bound by Canadian content regulations. St. James doesn't see that as a problem since the north of the border music scene is growing with acts such as Cowboy Junkies, The Pursuit of Happiness, Blue Rodeo and Crash Vegas.

"So we won't have to play cuts by BTO (Bachman Turner Overdrive) or Anne Murray," he said.

Music by Detroit area bands will be included as well. But St. James wants to intersperse local music with national acts in order not to "ghetto-ize" it.

While he readily admits he's not an expert of new music, St. James adds he's quite the fan. He'll listen to suggestions from industry people along with the listening audience.

At WRIF, St. James was instrumental in starting "Local Riffs" that featured local bands. Also, he hosted a new music show "Dangerous Exposure" on WABX-FM in the early '80s. His alter-ego, Twiggy Barbust, fronts a band that performs at area clubs.

According to St. James, the show has a year commitment from CIMX management. He believes that's adequate time.

"It's not a question of finding the audience," he said. "It's a question of the audience finding us. We know the audience is there."

Former WRIF-FM disc jockey Greg St. James is offering the latest wave in alternative music on CIMX-FM 88.

Blues feels loss of Vaughan

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

In one way, Robert Noll said Stevie Ray Vaughan was like all blues artists. He was good at putting on a happy face.

But as far as style and soul, the blues guitarist who was killed recently in a helicopter crash was unmatched. Noll would know.

Noll, a Livonia blues guitarist, performed with Vaughan, including on one jam session with Vaughan's brother, Jimmie, three years ago at the Royal Oak Music Theatre. He credits Vaughan for bringing blues music to a wider audience, mainly to those people who only listened to rock'n'roll.

"(It was) his ability to interpret styles, great blues styles of Albert King, Albert Collins, Jimi Hendrix and even B.B. King," Noll said. "He was able to interpret these styles so well because he knew these people. He was able to filter it through his heart and make it into his own style."

VAUGHAN WAS also unique because he earned respect from old-time blues artists, many of whom were black, and also bitter because of exploitation by record companies and promoters through the years.

Vaughan, perhaps better than anyone, bridged that gap by interpreting blues music in his own style while still bringing recognition to those who were its greatest creators.

Personally, Noll first met the Texan 10 years ago. Vaughan's band was opening for Albert Collins, whom Noll performed with onstage. Since both were about the same age, 25 at the time, they hit it off immediately.

As Vaughan grew in prominence, Noll later found himself opening for the guitar great.

"He had a spunkiness in him," Noll said. "He treated musicians better than anyone that I know. He acted like a Texan. He reminded me of a cowboy."

Vaughan's and Noll's careers paralleled in other ways. Both had overcome substance abuse problems, according to Noll.

HE RECALLS talking with Vaughan a couple of years ago at a B.B. King concert in Toronto about their subsequent recovery.

Many fans of Vaughan feel he was making his best music after controlling his substance abuse problems. His last album, "Step Back," was lauded as his best work to date and received a Grammy.

"Stevie never used to look people in the eye," Noll said. "After Stevie cleaned up, he started looking people in the eye."

"(After recovery) He started to think of other possibilities. I think he was looking into a jazz fusion with rock blues."

Noll is planning a tribute for Stevie Ray Vaughan on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 22-23, at Mingies in Detroit. Tentative plans include having a giant card for fans to sign that will be sent to Vaughan's family.

"He's going to be missed," Noll said.

Robert Noll credits Stevie Ray Vaughan with bringing blues music to a wider audience.

STOLEN MOMENTS

— John Hiatt

In a mythical perfect world, there exists an alternate universe to the one in which we live. In this quasi-nirvana, Van Morrison is King with his Queen, Kate Bush. Elvis Costello and John Lennon vie for the appointment as Minister for Acerbic Wit and Neil Young is Minister of Good Vibes and Social Conscience with Tom Waits and Charles Bukowski sharing responsibilities in the Office of Decadence and Whiskey.

In this world, where Marc Ribot is the guitar god and Eddie Van Halen is unknown, there is no doubt that John Hiatt serves as senior adviser to this exalted company.

When I say that his is Hiatt's 10th album in a career spanning 16 years, you are probably unlikely to believe me. But it's true. He has always been well respected and spoken of with awe by artists ranging from Elvis Costello (with whom he was recorded) to Bonnie Raitt.

From his unhappy childhood as an "obese, ugly kid" (his words) in Indianapolis, to his time as a staff songwriter for a publishing company (where his first hit was for Three Dog Night), his life was lived with too much drugs at the bottom of the bottle.

As he says on "Back of My Mind" from "Stolen Moments," his third LP from A&M: "I took me a job and I took me a wife/and I took to a bottle of wine/and it did not take long till all I had left was this stuff in the back of my mind."

What dissociates this album from previous efforts is his new enjoyment of life, his contentment with being on this planet.

Hiatt is an acquired taste that lingers and constantly rewards.

BELLYBUTTON

— Jellyfish

If you ever wondered what would happen when the children of the baby boomers grew up and started making music of their own — now there's an answer for you, in the form of a band called Jellyfish.

If Jellyfish's latest album, "Bellybutton," is any indication, we can safely say that the children of baby boomers create music that sounds like... a weak imitation of what their parents played.

Jellyfish does a better Beatles than John, Paul, George or Ringo ever did in their solo work.

To Jellyfish's credit, they've got all the Beatles' sounds down pat — the string accompaniment, the echoed vocals and even a background singer, Roger Manning, who sounds a bit like Paul. "Bedspring Kiss," for example, owes more than a little to "And I Love Her" and so on.

Even the cover art is reminiscent of the Beatles during their "Magical Mystery Tour" period. The liner notes include a picture of Jellyfish decked out in flower bell-bottoms, Alice in Wonderland caps and surrounded by a giant candy necklace and a bunch of strawberries. Pictures of bubbles float mystically over the words to the songs. All of it is very psychedelic and '60s-ish.

Unfortunately, imitating the Beatles and actually being as talented as the Beatles is not the same thing. Just ask the cast of "Beatlemania." Lead singer of Jellyfish, Andy Sturmer, was cursed, not with the voice of John Lennon, but instead, the voice of Richard Marx.

Sturmer's unfortunate voice tends to make "Bellybutton" less like a tribute or homage to the Beatles and more like an album of Richard Marx doing Beatles covers.

BLACK SHEETS OF RAIN

— Bob Mould

Bob Mould's first solo effort since the disbanding of Husker Du, 1989's "Workbook," was a brooding, brilliant work, a tame if not bitter album with lots of acoustic guitar, cello and mandolin.

Mould's latest, "Black Sheets of Rain," keeps the bitter anger and excitement, but strips the sound down to a crunching three-piece band, with Mould's electric guitar screeching to the forefront throughout.

From the feedback in the opening notes of the album, it's clear that a slight return to Husker-type volume is in the offing — but with a little more order amid the chaos. The feedback remains throughout the torrid title track, lurking behind Tony Malmone's cascading bass line and the relentless drumming of the great Anton Fier (of Golden Palominos).

The bitterness over the break-up of his band was a staple of "Workbook" themes, but Mould directs his anger at other targets on "Black Sheets of Rain." The title song, "Stand Guard," and "It's Too Late" all take a pessimistic but vigilant stand on environmental issues.

Other songs, like the raucous "Stop Your Crying" and the mostly acoustic "The Last Night" sling verbal mud at ex-lovers. The bleakest lyrics come in the black "Hanging Tree," when Mould asks over a siren of feedback, "Should I throw myself from the hanging tree/Is there a place for those of us who don't belong/I haven't found it yet."

The best tracks on the album are also the most "Workbook" like, the rhythmic "Hear Me Calling" and the Beatlesque "Out of Your Life."

Drink a glass of water and plug in again, Bob, we can't wait for the next one.

Symptoms show addiction

Dear Barbara,

My wife seems to be exercising more and more. She has always been a fitness buff, but lately it seems to be taking over her life. Sometimes when I want to take her out for dinner, she can't join me because she is going to class.

Recently, she was injured and I thought this would slow her down, but it didn't. She just changed the type of exercise she was doing.

I am a little worried about her as well as being resentful of the time it is taking away from us. I have tried to talk to her about it, but she tells me that I am imagining things and that there is nothing wrong with her.

Can people exercise too much? Can that be as big a problem as not exercising at all? I am not an exerciser.

Worried Husband

Dear Worried Husband,

This is a complicated problem. You are really asking two questions. They are, not necessarily in order of importance: (1) Can a person exercise too much? (2) What should I do about the resentment I feel toward my wife?

The first has a clearer answer, so I will give you my initial response.

Yes, a person can most definitely exercise too much and your wife has some of the symptoms that are tipoffs to exercise addiction. She organizes her life around her workouts and sometimes she works out despite injury, using them to avoid interacting with you.

That she is unable to see the problem is typical of addictions. Your wife doesn't seem to have a choice; she is driven to exercise. Nagging her about the dangers of what she is doing will do no good. Whatever she is avoiding seems far more dangerous to her than any physical problems she may encounter because of overextending herself. In this area, both reality and awareness have been eradicated.

Now to the second question of how to cope with your resentment toward her. The answer to this is, unfortunately, not so unambiguous. I do not know you, so I don't know what you want to do, what you could do or are able to do. It is true that if the marital problem could be solved, then the exercise problem would disappear.

At the outset of this column, I promised not to send correspondents off to therapists. I have said once before, and repeat now, that that was a naive perception on my part. I find that to be responsible, I must recommend therapy more and more. In one way that is good because it says that many problems are not unsolvable. It says that there are answers, even when the future seems bleak. Competent therapy can truly be beneficial in helping many kinds of Brother Lester takes out an "insurance policy" by sending his enforcer and man-of-all jobs, Vincent (George Buza), to deposit $2 million cash in a numbered Swiss account. Vincent is an ex-con who has found God. He's also very effective in doing whatever needs to be done.

BOBBY JOE'S response to these hard times is a visit to the old neighborhood where Reverend Dan started his ministry. The building now houses a rowdy bar and the Inspiration Bobby Joe seeks appears in the form of a raunchy bar singer, Ruth (Ellen Greene).

Bobby Joe recognizes the similarities between the passions she stimulates in the nifty bar and those his father elicited during hellfire-and-brimstone sermons. Bobby Joe convinces Ruth to sing in his TV church and the rest, as they say, "is show business history."

That's exactly the point, the similarities between religion, show business and, in fact, the media as a whole. Television networks and their programming tactics receive a number of well-placed (and well-deserved) barbs as they move in on what quickly becomes "The Sister Ruth Show" with Rev. Bobby Joe Stuckey. But the knife of satire is used deftly.

TV investigative reporter Chet Madison (Winston Reker) is a handsome devil who complicates matters, and the bottom line is a very literate discussion of science, various religious positions, faith, the media and their tactics, family integrity, abortion and, as well, human nature in general.

That's a pretty tall order, but "Glory, Glory" deals well with those topics in an entertaining manner with excellent production values.

CHIEF AMONG those virtues is the acting. In particular, Whitmore is a marvelous conniving, bandy-legged devil who knows no limits in protecting the Church of the Champions of Christ, which, no matter what, is his only life, his family. Whitmore is transparent (to viewers) in his devious ways but does it with such aplomb and conviction that he winds up drawing a superb portrait of an obsessive but lovable crook. Thomas is effectively bland, which may sound like a contradiction, but it fits the image required, particularly with his occasional flashes of authority.

Top it off with Greene's raunchy but sensitive portrait of a lovely, talented but tortured woman and this slightly too long film works extremely well. Her musical numbers and the ending could have been shortened by 20 or so minutes to good effect.

Other production values also support these performances. Sister Ruth's rock'n'roll/gospel numbers, albeit too long, are entertaining and well-staged, as is her continually obscene but sprightly irreverence. That manner is a good contrast for credible conversion — even if it isn't a conventional one.

Costumes and settings are right on and have more impact than one generally finds on television. A very literate script with clever commentary on the many issues raised by "Glory, Glory," added to an excellent sound-track and good camera work plus effective directing and editing results in a worthwhile evening in front of your VCR.

worked with, Cage does have great respect for the director of "Blue Velvet" and co-director of "Twin Peaks."

"He likes to cultivate a playful atmosphere on the set," Cage said, before commenting on the intensity that has led to some of the modern screen's darkest, most bizarre images. "His mind works like a taut fishing line with droplets of water moving down it. He has some great ideas."

CAGE CAUTIOUSLY chooses his roles.

"I think whether or not I've done it before," he said, adding that there is a certain note of similarity in his characters. "I think the characters I've played, including Sailor, maintain a certain dignity no matter how bad, or absurd, they are."

Cage has had the opportunity to work with some of today's hottest directors, among them Norman Jewison ("Moonstruck"), Joel and Ethan Coen ("Raising Arizona") and his uncle Francis Ford Coppola ("Peggy Sue Got Married") and others.

Asked if he'd work with Lynch again, Cage replied, "In a New York second."

Coffee, tea or have you heard the one . . .

By Bob Sadler
special writer

It's a great idea, but will it fly? One can only imagine the cheap puns and innocuous jokes heard in boardrooms across the country when it was announced that Continental Airlines was going to feature comics on its Express service flights between Detroit and Cleveland.

Across the country? Wait a minute. This unprecedented one-week promotion, which took place recently, was hardly intended to attract national publicity.

"This is simply a promotion to increase ridership," said Nancy Compel, a Continental Airlines spokesperson. "Continental has been running these flights since (Feb. 1), and they haven't really taken off (pun unintended)."

The idea was to put a comic on the short (approximately 30-minute) flight to perform about a 10-minute set. It was figured the flight was too short for business commuters, the most frequent fliers on the service, and other passengers to get too engrossed in anything else, like work, sleep or a favorite magazine.

"We thought some sort of in-flight entertainment would be worth trying. Storytellers, magicians and other ideas were considered," Compel said. "By process of elimination, we came up with comics."

FIVE COMICS from Detroit and Cleveland were chosen in local auditions to appear. Each would get the opportunity to perform on four daily afternoon flights — one comic a day during the week-long promotion.

The idea struck a chord with the media. Before the first comic got off the ground, the Wall Street Journal ran a front page story and Johnny Carson and Arsenio Hall both mentioned the promotion in their nightly monologues.

Before the week of comedy flights was over, Cable News Network, the Associated Press, "Entertainment Tonight" and "Inside Edition" — not to mention most of the local Detroit and Cleveland area media — had all sent reporters to cover it, Compel said.

"I thought it would do really well in Detroit and Cleveland," Compel said. "But I never expected so much national attention. I even did an interview with the BBC."

The Detroit auditions were held July 30 at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle in Royal Oak, with 21 comics vying for two of the five slots. Al

Aprill, originally of Jackson and now living in Sarasota, Fla., was the overwhelming winner.

He also received the distinction of being the first performer on the flights, bringing his unorthodox, storytelling style to Monday's rider.

DETROIT RUNNER-UP, Don Tersigni, 28, of Dayton Plains has only been a comic on the local circuit for four months. He brought his arsenal of impressions to Wednesday's flights.

The other three comics were selected the night of July 31 in Cleveland. During the auditions, the comics performed a seven-minute set, and a group of roughly 50 travel agents in the audience selected their favorites.

As passengers waited to board the Embraer 120 Brasilia plane, boldly emblazoned with Continental's distinctive red and gold colors, for Friday's flight at Detroit City Airport, thoughts about the comedy flights were mixed.

"I would really rather read my book," said Lou Ozkunczi, an auditor for the General Accounting Office in Cleveland and a frequent rider on these flights.

Automotive supplier Jerry Weber of Cleveland was about to catch his second comic of the week. He happened to see Tersigni's set on Wednesday and didn't seem overly impressed. When asked about whether the comedy had impacted on his choice of flight, Weber responded, "I would have been on this flight no matter what."

Once the plane has taken off, the flight attendant has read the necessary safety information, and the seat belt lights have gone off, it's showtime. George gets up and faces the audience, microphone in hand, with publicist Compel getting an assist for holding the portable public address system speaker. The noise of the twin-propeller plane makes it difficult to hear the words of the performer.

It will be interesting to see what the future holds for the comedy flight program and those brave souls who made it happen.

"It's possible you may see this again on other routes that may be lagging," Compel said. "But I think it's unwise to let publicity affect a business decision."

George was also philosophical about how it will affect his career.

"If anything, it will give me more confidence in landing more bookings," he said. "But after doing airplanes, I think Amtrak might be my next move."

Al Aprill was the first comedian to perform on Continental Airlines' Express service flights between Detroit and Cleveland last month.

How to be an advertising whiz.

You have to buy a newspaper ad in the Detroit market and you're faced with a real dilemma. Circulation is down for the Detroit News and Free Press. Ad rates are up. How do you juggle the numbers, stretch your budget, and get the biggest bang for your buck?

See for yourself how SPRING measures up.

You don't need a yardstick to see that your advertising dollar can buy more in SPRING. SPRING's network of 39 suburban Detroit newspapers reaches more than 1,000,000 readers at a cost-per-inch that's below that of the News or Free Press — daily or Sunday editions.

That means you can run bigger ads or run more ads when you put SPRING in your media buy.

Get the lowest CPMs.

This is pretty easy — even for math phobics. Just take the total cost of your newspaper ad and divide that number by the circulation (the DNA's un-audited figures, or SPRING's audited numbers). You'll find SPRING delivers Detroit's upscale suburban market at a lower cost per thousand than either the News or the Free Press. So, you can reach more consumers for less money when you place your ad in SPRING's newspaper network.

The bottom line? SPRING delivers the suburbs best.

No matter how you add it up, the bottom line is this: SPRING is simply a better buy. SPRING reaches more than one million readers. SPRING's circulation is strong and stable. And all SPRING newspapers are audited by either CAC or ABC. Best of all, SPRING costs less per thousand — and less per inch — than the Detroit dailies. Now that you know the score, shouldn't you put SPRING in your advertising plan?

To stay in shape after becoming a supervisor, Gregory Lewis turned to riding bikes like the Acufit Exerciser Raleigh 1000 at Consumer's fitness center in its Livonia offices.

Working out with corporate America

Companies like Detroit Edison, EDS and Consumers Power have jumped on the health-kick bandwagon by offering in-house fitness centers and nutritious choices in the company cafeterias.

Gregory Lewis liked the physical activity in his hourly job and, as a supervisor, uses the company gym to replace that workout.

Geoff Ryan after, food service manager at Electronic Data Systems Corp., as part of a nutrition team, developed the Heart Smart menu for the EDS cafeteria.

special writer

After 18 months of 70-80-hour work weeks, James Gessner realized he had to do something.

Geoff Ryan wasn't too impressed with his mirrored image — besides it was difficult keeping up with his toddler son.

Going from an hourly wage to a management position made Gregory Lewis change.

And Gilbert Lavey made his turnaround with a little encouragement from the family.

All four men needed to end health-threatening habits and found the key at work — in their respective companies' fitness and wellness programs.

Health programs and on-site exercise centers in the workplace have become popular in recent years because whatever it takes to keep the employees in good shape benefits the company by cutting medical costs.

According to Bill Deneau, recreation coordinator for Detroit Edison, the company offers 32 clubs ranging from stamp collecting to crafts. And physical fitness equipment is available at the Edison Athletic Association center.

The activities, he said, are "more by the design of the employees rather than management."

Edison's in-house gymnasium at its downtown Detroit offices, offers volleyball, basketball, squash and racquetball. There's also a weight room, sauna and showers.

It took Gessner, an assistant to the marketing manager for special projects, a couple of years to examine his lifestyle before utilizing what Edison had to offer.

HE WORKED FOR McKinsey & Co., a management consultant, before joining Detroit to help with a reorganization. During that time, he worked 70-80 hours a week, the 43-year-old West Bloomfield resident said.

"After about 18 months, I began to feel worn-out," he said. "I spent my evenings talking, working, eating pizza and popcorn."

Gessner began to look over those months in terms of his physical health. He realized he had given up the small amount of exercising he was doing and had gained 20 pounds. Just when he was in the range where he thought he was in decent shape, he found he was way out of shape. With the realization came a reduction in his work week from 70 to 50 hours and time to act on his concern.

"I started jogging and got into the aerobic program and watched what I was eating," he said. "At the time my goal was 205 pounds."

Gessner weighed 225 at the time. He lost 20 pounds and then decided to shoot for 185 pounds, which he has reached and maintained.

In addition to the aerobic classes at Edison, he works out on the Nautilus and biking systems in the gym, especially during the winter.

"Right now, I jog three times a week and then once every other week, I do some other activity," he said. "I'm into the racquetball playoffs, too."

Ryan huffed and puffed running after his 2-year-old son. Food Service manager at Electronic Data Systems Corp., Ryan participated in a company co-paid Weight Watchers group and lost 40 pounds.

WHEN HIRED by EDS, Ryan became part of a nutrition team that developed the Heart Smart menu introduced in the EDS cafeteria five years ago. In his position, he consults with the firm's health and fitness department as well as utilizing the input of the staff at the corporate level.

Ryan is a runner and plans to race in the New York marathon this fall. He runs 20-30 miles a week to stay fit.

"It was something I did just to lose weight, and it turned into something I really enjoy now," said the Port Huron resident of his favorite sport. "I think any kind of management job has inherently some stress with it. Between running and some other activities (he also does aerobics), it is a great way to relieve some of that stress. If you go out for a 5-7-mile run, it is pretty hard to feel stressed out."

Even though Ryan shed his excess weight at a Weight Watchers program outside EDS, the firm does have one on-site at its Southfield location. The company doesn't have an exercise fitness center, but it does sponsor multiple workshops on diet and exercise and provides a directory of special rate memberships at local health clubs, gyms and YMCAs.

"ONE OF THE interesting aspects of health and fitness program is its holistic approach to fitness," said Ruth Stanton, public relations representative. "Our specialists don't see it as simply exercise and diet, but rather that every part of a person's life contributes to their overall well being."

As an adjunct to the course, EDS has a fitness assessment. A health promotion specialist performs a number of tests — like muscle strength and endurance, blood pressure and cholesterol checks — then gives guidance in helping the individual achieve his or her fitness goals.

Michigan Consolidated Gas workers don't have an in-house fitness gym at their headquarters in Detroit, but it does have a recreation building/center in Melvindale. Various company leagues and clubs like golf, tennis, softball, bowling and running are available to its 3,400 employees.

"We want to give employees the opportunity to adopt new lifestyles to promote good health," said Mary Doyle, wellness coordinator.

The utility company's Living Well program, which encompasses a holistic approach to health care, provides workshops on stress management, nutrition, weight control, back care, smoking cessation and exercise. Some of the courses are held at the main building, but many are schedules at local hospitals and YMCAs.

LAVEY, MICHCON vice president and controller, took part in the smoking cessation classes when he decided to quit after 35 years of smoking.

"The company was cutting down on smoking areas, particularly no smoking in meeting rooms — and I spent a lot of time in meetings," said Lavey, a 17-year MichCon veteran. "My wife, who stopped smoking years ago, and my children were making comments about it. So I just decided that I should do stop."

The West Bloomfield executive smoked a pack a day, but after attending the course at the gas company's Guardian Building in Detroit, he quit — and he even lost weight.

A member of the MichCon golf league for the last 14 years, Lavey said the company and its executive management "are sensitive to the needs of the employees and wellness."

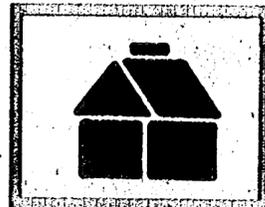

"We have always had recreation," he said. "I think our programs have developed as employee interest has grown."

One may be slightly remiss over certain aspects of a former job, but most of us gladly move ahead toward new horizons.

In Lewis' case, he liked the physical activity in his hourly job as a Consumer Powers serviceman. That doesn't mean he isn't excited about his new position as energy services supervisor. But he does admit that there isn't any crawling, reaching, lifting and stair climbing.

The Mike and Penny Kinter home, whose architecture is Queen Ann style, dates back to 1886-87. It's one of seven private homes on the historic home tour.

History on parade Marshall's historic home tour boasts 15 stops

WHEN MANY people think of Marshall, they think of beautifully restored homes. Nowhere is this more apparent than on Marshall's Historic Home Tour, this year on Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 8-9.

The 27th annual Marshall Historic Home Tour reaffirms the tradition of putting on parade the best of 19th-Century architecture with seven private dwellings, three of which are on tour for the first time.

Also open will be a circa 1838-Greek Revival Workman's Cottage, this year's special feature; two adaptations of historic buildings for commercial use; and a second-story apartment epitomizing the pinnacle of refinement and luxury, tour promoters say. As in previous tours, four museums also will be open to the public.

Visitors to Marshall's historic home tour also can enjoy the "Occasion of the Arts," a juried arts and crafts show, antique shows, a parade, booths featuring home-cooked cuisine, and a variety of musical and choral entertainment.

The Norman and Janet Ostrum Home (Colonial Revival) at 126 Lincoln is on tour for the first time. Its arts and crafts movement-styled interior is a perfect showcase for the decorating talents of Janet, who has used a variety of traditional painting techniques to complement the many auction "finds" displayed throughout the home.

NEXT IS the Frances Barger and William T. Barger home, an example of Gothic Revival architecture built in 1868. Of special interest are the unusual lighting fixtures throughout, from a Waterford chandelier to a copper-and-brass chandelier with Durand glass globes.

At 202 High Street is the Kinter home, always a favorite whenever it is on tour. This imposing 1886 Queen-Anne structure, with its circular tower, was designed by Spier and Rohn of Detroit, the architects of several structures on the University of Michigan campus.

Heading west to 209 W. Prospect, the Ruesch Home was designed by architect William Williamson of Grand Rapids, and was built in 1899 for the sum of $4,500. The gracefully curved portico is a trademark of Colonial Revival buildings, of which this is a fine example.

Down the street at 401 N. Eagle is the Miller home. On tour for the first time, it is believed this Gothic Revival was a gift from Chauncey Brewer to his son and daughter-in-law on the occasion of their wedding in 1878. The Millers have extensively remodeled the home since they bought it as newlyweds in 1875.

Another Gothic Revival, but built of brick instead of the more common clapboard, is the home of Doris Stagg at 223 W. Manslon. This circa 1860 home stayed in the same family for over 100 years until its purchase by Stagg.

Dr. Martha Loomis owns the last home on tour, an 1882 Italianate at 501 W. Manslon. In a year's time, Loomis has completely renovated all nine rooms in the home, with the assistance of her two daughters and 13 pets.

The Frances Barger and William T. Barger Home, built in 1868, reflects Gothic Revival architecture.

Tour Ann Arbor's historic old west side

The Old West Side Homes Tour will include a stop at The Moveable Feast, 326 W. Liberty. The restaurant is in a house dating back to 1870 that was originally home to Western Brewery owner Peter Brohm.

The Ann Arbor Old West Side Association will sponsor its 18th annual homes tour from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 16. Placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1973, the Old West Side neighborhood provides tour-goers a Sunday afternoon in a setting once typical of the turn-of-the-century Midwest.

This year's tour includes six homes and one commercial property:

• Homes — Vicki Honeyman and Jeff McCabe, 235 Murray; Carol and Phil Martens, 236 Crest; Deborah and Chris Vanden Broek, 1310 Lutz; Caryn Cramer and Alex Babycs, 630 Third; Lynne Wright, 208 W. Madison; Renee Anspach, 206 W. Madison.

• Commercial property — The Moveable Feast, 326 W. Liberty.

Tour headquarters are at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Third and West Liberty. Tickets are $3 for seniors, $4 in advance and $5 the day of the tour.

Buy advance tickets at Anderson's Design Studio, Border's Bookstore, Crown House of Gifts, Edward Survell Realtors, Little Professor Book Center, Paper Chase, Partners in Wine, Peacable Kingdom, Treasures Mart, Washenaw Milk and Ice Cream and West Side Book Shop — all in the Ann Arbor-Plymouth area.

Bus transportation between houses on the tour will be provided.

No children younger than 12 will be permitted. Child care is available at tour headquarters for $2 per child.

Historic home tour nears

THIS YEAR'S special feature is also the oldest home on tour. The Wirtz Farmhouse, owned by Helen Wirtz, is an example of a Greek Revival Workman's Cottage, and dates from 1838.

Private homes are not the only attractions on the tour. Craft Photographic Studio, an 1869 Italianate first built as medical offices for homeopathic physician Seth Coons, also has functioned as a funeral parlor.

Built in 1834, the Greek Revival annex housing Bayberry House Interiors is believed to be part of the oldest building in Marshall. The rear portion of the home of lawyer-turned-Congressman Isaac Crary originally served as the servant's quarters.

A finely honed vision led to the renovation of the Kinney apartment, on the second floor of a circa 1883 Italianate commercial building.

uppermost story after it was destroyed by fire in 1887. Rooftop gardens are reminiscent of those in Europe.

MARSHALL'S MUSEUMS also will be on tour, giving visitors another view of the city's past. The Marshall Historical Society's headquarters, the Honolulu House, will once again open its doors, along with the Grand Army of the Republic Hall, the society's archival center.

A short distance away is the completely restored 1860s schoolhouse, Capitol Hill School (Gothic Revival). This museum is next door to Michigan's oldest fairgrounds, which will be the site of an antique and crafts show.

Home tour hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 8, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 9. Tickets are $10. Children younger than 12 are free.

Tickets can be bought at booths at the city's entrance points and at all houses on tour. Ticket prices include both days of the home tour. Parking and shuttle service is free.

Good attitude aids students

AN OPEN letter to high school students: For better or worse, it's time to head back to school, and no doubt you've renewed your vows to do well. I'd like to discuss two matters.

If you choose to take a positive attitude (it is your choice, you know), you can do anything you set out to do.

If you choose to take a negative attitude (it is your choice, you know), you can do anything you set out to do. If you complain that other kids are smarter than you, you don't realize the only difference between you and them is that they have a good attitude and are more organized in their studying.

Most kids think they'll "shape up" when they grow up, but now - today - is your life. Life doesn't start next year, or after you get out of college, or when you get a job or get married. This is your life now.

If you have a negative attitude about everything, you'll find you can't do anything. If your work is "too hard," if your teacher "sucks," if you "can't stand" the kids around you, if your classes are "boring," if you don't understand your assignments but you refuse to get extra help (which is always available - all you have to do is ask), then you must take responsibility for your own attitude and the failure that will surely happen as a result of it.

The only way you can compete in society's ever-increasing pace is to learn early to make good use of your time. That just means taking advantage of the time you have to do your work well, so you'll have time for fun later. It's that simple.

INSTEAD OF concentrating on how boring the teacher is, try just talking to the woman (or man). If you'll start getting into the topics and maybe even argue with the teacher more, you'll be amazed how much faster class time will go and how quickly you'll pick up the subject. Your work will even seem easier. Also, by your taking an interest, your teachers will just naturally like It's up to you (and no one else) to do the best you can. If you do, you'll enjoy life a lot more.

Dorothy Lehmkuhl's fall time management seminars will begin at the Birmingham Community House and at Schoolcraft College in Livonia this month.

Touring history

Free tours of the Wayne County Building, 600 Randolph, Detroit, 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 9, will be offered as part of "Architects Sunday," sponsored by the Detroit Chapter of the American Institute of Architects in conjunction with the Old Wayne County Limited Partnership; Smith, Hinchman &

Grylle and Walbridge Aldinger Co. The building has been renovated and restored to its original state and features imported and domestic marbles, figured woods, and intricate plaster moldings. Segments of the movie "Presumed Innocent" were filmed there.

Sounds of silence can be deceiving

(AP) — Selecting a quiet site is the least expensive way to diminish the din, but not all lot sites are as peaceful as they look.

Home Plan Ideas magazine says evaluating the noise environment before signing on the dotted line may save lots of headaches later.

The location of the lot and the topography of the land can affect the amount of noise a family will have to live with.

Overall topography of a site has a dramatic effect on noise. A location upwind from a source of noise, such as a neighborhood ball diamond, will be quieter. Those building downwind should plant a windbreak between the house and the noise. A tight evergreen or deciduous hedge will provide noise protection as far downwind as 20 times its height. If space is limited, use fences or columnar-shaped shrubs as noise buffers and privacy screens.

In an urban area, large buildings can reflect unwanted sounds onto an urban site. The noisiest places will be on traffic arteries set between tall buildings. On the other hand, skyscrapers can perform a service if they are located between a house and a source of noise. Greenbelts or trees can also create pockets of quiet.

Families considering a site within two miles of a major airport should get a map and check with airport officials on normal flight paths. The noisiest area will be a three-mile-wide swath of land directly under these paths for 15 miles on either side of the airport.

People who are serious about a building site should take the time to visit it several times during the day.

Sometimes an area that is quiet at midday can become noisy in the evening or early in the morning. A building site near a school playground is apt to be noisy several times during the day.

Be leery of developer

The developer of the condominium I am interested in wants me to waive the nine-day provision in the purchase agreement. He says there are a number of interested purchasers, and that if I don't trust him with respect to the documents I probably shouldn't get involved. What is your suggestion?

A developer with that attitude ought to be forgotten by you as quickly as possible. The condominium statute provides that you are entitled to nine business days to review the various condominium documents including the disclosure statement, master deed, condominium bylaws and other related documents.

It is imperative that you have a full understanding of the aspects of buying a condominium and have the opportunity to review with competent and experienced condominium counsel what these condominium documents mean. The suggestion that you should waive your review of these documents because of high-pressure tactics should be looked upon with great suspicion. You are best off to accept the developer's invitation to walk.

We are considering doing an office complex for doctors. Do you have any suggestions as to how we might do it giving the most flexibility to the doctors as possible?

Consider doing a "site condo" in the sense that you are selling lots and giving the doctor-purchaser an opportunity to build his or her own suite or offices on the premises through you as the developer or through a separate corporate entity that may or may not be controlled by you. This gives the doctor the flexibility to build the kind of structure that he or she may desire. The other alternative is to construct one large building providing for various convertible areas between the units to allow for flexibility for expansion or contraction of the doctors' facilities. Obviously, planning is the key to any successful commercial condominium project.

Do you have any information about a Neighborhood Builder's Alliance that apparently provides grants to certain neighborhoods?

The Neighborhood Builder's Alliance grants program is designed to improve the quality of life in Michigan's neighborhoods. Grants are awarded to existing neighborhood and community groups to support specific activities directed at general neighborhood improvement projects, crime prevention activities, housing and neighborhood service projects. Grants may be used for a variety of purposes depending upon the need of the respective organizations. The grants range from $1,000 to $200,000 and are awarded to groups with a history of accomplishments, fiscal stability and involvement. For more information, contact the Neighborhood Builder's Alliance, Box 30242, Lansing 48901 or call 517-373-7111.
