Victim's family charges favoritism

A dispute between two families that last year resulted in the shooting death of a 25-year-old man has carried over into the court room. Alleging favoritism toward the defendant, the family of the slain Robert John is calling for a new judge and prosecutor in the case.

By Darrell Clem

A Garden City man, angry over the way his slain son's murder case has been handled, has asked that a Detroit judge and a Wayne County prosecutor be removed from the case.

Tommy John said the family of his slain son, 25-year-old Robert John, feels that the criminal justice system is siding with defendant Robert Miguel of Westland, who faces trial for second-degree murder.

Miguel, 42, is charged with shooting John to death with a rifle in front of the Miguel house on Wayne Road, north of Ford. Police said the killing stemmed from a feud between Gypsy families.

Tommy John has said several of his family members, including Robert, went to the Miguel residence to make peace. But Miguel family members contend they were under attack when Robert John - a father of six minor children - was shot shortly before 11 p.m. Aug. 21.

Miguel, free on a $60,000 bond, was scheduled for trial Jan. 24, but the case has been adjourned to June 6. The trial may be rescheduled again if the court can arrange an earlier date, said Wayne County assistant prosecutor Gary LaBret.

Tommy John has called for LaBret and Detroit Recorder's Judge Gershwin Drain to be removed from the case - a request that their superiors hadn't granted as of Friday.

Tommy John outlined his concerns. in a Jan. 10 letter addressed to Wayne County Prosecutor John D. O'Hair, Attorney General Frank Kelley and Recorder's Judge Dalton Roberson. John also sent copies to Westland police, the FBI, Garden

City council extends Youth Assistance

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A blossoming Westland program that helps troublesome youths improve their behavior has received a strong vote of confidence from city of-

The one-year-old Youth Assistance Program, which helps girls and boys ages 7 to 16 work through their problems, has been extended through June 30. The program provides confidential help for free. The extension came last week when the Westland City Council voted unanimously to renew a contract with Youth Assistance Program coordinator Ronaele Ruth Bowman.

"The response in the community to the program has been tremendous," councilwoman Sandra Cicirelli said during a council session. She has been an ardent supporter of the pro-

The five-month, $32,108 extension will cover the salary costs for Bowman, a full-time assistant, a parttime clerical worker and three subcontractors who periodically lead parenting and youth classes.

The council considered extending the contract for one year at a cost of $77,058, including Bowman's $34,278 salary. But officials chose the fivemonth extension so that Bowman's contract will coincide with the city's fiscal year, which also ends June 30.

"I'm happy they did that," Bowman said Thursday, adding that it's more practical for the Youth Assistance budget to coincide with the city budget.

The program has served 157 young people in its first year - youths who were referred by the Westland Police Department, school counselors and administrators, and the Wayne County juvenile court.

Local officials are certain the program is keeping some youths out of trouble, but Bowman said it's too early to say what the long-term success rate will be. She plans to monitor it, in part, by determining whether

Man who beat wife with mallet gets probation

By DARRELL CLEM

A Westland man charged in the rubber mallet beating of his longtime wife has been placed on probation for three years.

Walter Philip Vansant, a 54-yearold retired radiologist, was sentenced Thursday by Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Dalton Roberson.

The judge's decision came seven months after Vansant was charged with felonious assault, amid allegations by Westland police that he struck his wife of 32 years in the head with a rubber mallet on the morning of June 24. He pleaded guilty Oct. 13.

Vansant struck four blows and then held his wife to the floor for about an hour as she bled, police have said. He then phoned Westland police for help, police said.

Judge Roberson also ordered Vansant to make restitution for his wife's medical expenses, to have no contact with her and to undergo psychiatric counseling. Roberson also warned that Vansant would be jailed if he violates his probation orders.

The Vansants were in the process of getting a divorce when the wife reported being attacked while watching television in the couple's family room. She told police the attack was unprovoked.

The wife was treated at Garden City Hospital for cuts to her head. She has since moved from the residence in the 2200 block of Harvey Street, near Wayne Road and Palmer, where the incident occurred, Westland Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe said.

Vansant had been headed for trial in Recorder's Court before he decided to plead guilty Oct. 13. He was ordered to stand trial after he voluntarily gave up his right to a preliminary examination Aug. 5 in Westland 18th District Court.

Vansant had been scheduled for sentencing on Tuesday, but his defense attorney had the action postponed until Thursday so that he could study the presentencing report.

Livonia schools mark anniversary

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

-April 22 looms as a pivotal day in the history of the Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland.

On that day 50 years ago, residents went to the polls and approved consolidating the seven school districts in Livonia Township (Livonia was a township in 1944) into one dis-

Thus was born, by a vote of 675 to 128, the Livonia Township School District which eventually became Livonia Public Schools.

Right now, school officials don't know whether to plan a big gala celebration, a small one, or many small ones in the district's Decisions on how to celebrate the district's 58th birthday will be made by a committee now being formed.

"Anyone who is interested, school employees or community members, is welcome to join," said Jay Young, community relations director in charge of setting up the committee. Those interested in serving on the committee can call Young at 523-9105. The committee should meet for the first time this month.

Getting a high school was one of the major thrusts of the campaign for consolidation. In 1944, some high school students from all six districts went to Plymouth High School (now Central Middle School).

At the time, the district's population was about 15,000. Those eligible to vote did so at the following locations: Pierson, Wilcox, Elm, Rosedale, Stark, Newburg and Township

"We are not living in the horse-and-buggy days," said Earl Laing, then-president of the Michigan Education Association, in explaining why he backed the reorganization. "A modern program of education includes many added features and requires room and equipment. Such buildings and such a program cannot be supported by a small school district."

Heading the consolidation committee were James Orr, chairman, and G. A. Bakewell, sec-

In headlines, Livonia's newspaper, The Livonian, told of the victory: "Slightly over 800 electors give consolidation a big majority."

The Wayne County Board of Education then set May 6 as the date to hold an election to name the five members of the newly-created board of education.

The 11 candidates were Earl Bedell, Walter Krakow, L. Jack Gage, Fred Weinert, Lawrence Larsen, Harry Burton, James Orr, G.A. Bakewell, William Foster, George Bentley and Robert Snodgrass.

Due to the requirements of state law, the candidates only had two weeks to campaign.

In both elections, residents voted on Saturday. Voters received ballots with no names printed on them. They had to write in the name of the candidates for whom they wished Judge Drain told the Observer in a telephone interview Friday afternoon that Tommy John's letter "doesn't surprise" him. He characterized the John family's behavior during the trial as unusual, saying that among other things they sought the revocation of the defendant's bond.

"There seems to be a great deal of hostility," he said.

One example of the unusual requests by the John family is to hire attorneys to request the removal of the defendant's bond, Drain said. Recommendations of a defendant's bond is the responsibility of the prosecuting attorney, the judge said.

In his letter, John noted that Westland 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos had set a $1 million bond for Miguel, amid claims that the Miguel family had threatened to harm other John family members unless the charges were dropped. Miguel family members have said they have received threats.

Miguel's bond was reduced to $60,000 when the case was sent to Recorder's Court. The John family is worried that Miguel will flee, but LaBret said Miguel has missed no court dates.

LaBret also said the $60,000 bond isn't low but, rather, "is high for a second-degree murder

"This guy (is charged with) killing their son, and he's out walking the street. They're frustrated, but this is not unique." LaBret said. "They want to see justice done. They want to see somebody behind bars. I feel very sorry for the John family, and I can understand their frustration."

Tommy John wrote that LaBret has, at times, refused to talk with his family or their attorneys -"as if he doesn't want to be bothered by our case."

Tommy John also said Judge Drain's court hasn't kept his family abreast of pretrial court dates. Moreover, the John family is angry that the trial was moved from Jan. 24 to June 6, though LaBret said a hearing this Friday will determine if the date should be moved forward.

The case was delayed because Miguel changed attorneys, court officials have said.

Polly John, the victim's mother, told the Observer Friday that she is frustrated by the court's actions. "They're going behind my back, and my son is the one lying in the cemetery," she said.

Tommy John wrote that his wife has been distressed over the case and that "she now feels that the court is on his side, the criminal, and doesn't care about her side, the victim in this case. It seems that criminals get all the rights, not the victims of crime."

Tommy John wrote that LaBret and Drain should be removed from the case "as a result of the appearance of impropriety." As of Friday, the John family had received no response to the let-

LaBret said the trial date changes have occurred "through no fault of mine."

"Frankly, I don't care if I'm removed from the case or not," he said, but added that he will give the case his best efforts as long as he is assigned to it.

There have been no indications that either he or Drain will be removed, LaBret said.

Workshop organized to help parents confront challenges

A Family Workshop Night will be held Tuesday night, Feb. 1, at Grant Elementary to help adults improve their parenting skills.

The program is co-sponsored by Student Assistance/Family Education (SAFE) and the Grant Elementary School PTA.

SAFE is a program of the Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland.

The workshop will be from 6:15-8:45 p.m. at Grant School, on Hubbard, north of Joy, between Merriman and Farmington.

Reservations should be made by Tuesday. Interested persons may contact Kathy Maxwell at 522-1791 or Carol Lee at 513-1610.

Session I workshop topics, discussed from 6:30-7:30 p.m., include:

- How to Help Siblings Get Along with Less Quibbling, with suggestions on how parents can reduce sibling rivalry, led by Julie Juenemann, SAFE specialist at Kennedy Elementary and a licensed pay-
- Discipline: Teaching Responsibility through Consequences, on allowing children to experience the consequences of poor choices so they can get better at thinking and choosing. Presenter is Bill Winkler, educational consultant for 15 years and father of three adult children.
- Gang Awareness, a discussion on how parents can be more aware and strategies that can be helpful. It will be led by Mark Schultz, retired police officer and Drug Abuse Resistance Education officer who now works with the middle school student assistance program in the school district.
- Misery is Optional, on why parents need to avoid adopting an attitude system that makes parenting become a burden instead of a rewarding challenge. The talk explores key attitudes in parenting and seeks to clarify whether attitudes promote unnecessary misery or deserved pleasure and satisfaction. The presenter is John R. Bernardo, psychotherapist with Counseling Insights, who is a school psychologist with Detroit Public Schools and father of four. Session II workshop topics, discussed from 7:45 to 8:45 p.m., include: Science Modules, exploring hands on science with the Livonia district's new elementary science modules led by Gary Cieniuch, district coordinator.

- Living Safely in a Dangerous World, information on the four most common types of crime (robbery, rape, assault including car-jacking, and burglary) will be discussed, along with pros and cons of different weapons and tips on how to protect yourself at home, work and public places. Presenter is Shannon Cronan of Citizens Against Crime, a crime prevention company.
- College Savings Get a Head Start, a discussion of various sources for financing your child's college education. Presenter is Brent McCormick, marketing representative for John Hancock Financial Ser-
- Healthy Childhood Self Esteem: A Gift for a Lifetime, an examination of the effects various parenting influences can have on personality development and self-esteem and how these childhood characteristics become transformed into healthy and unhealthy adult personality traits. Presenter is John R. Ber-

A workshop will be offered for students in kindergarten through third grade. During the workshop sessions these students will be engaged in one hour of Valentine craft projects led by Nancy Thrope and Carol Jackson; a half-hour "Let's Move" activity using a parachute, rhythm sticks, and bean bags led by Mary Quinley; and a half-hour "Stories for the Dreamer" led by Barb Jones.

A workshop for grades four-six will have students participating in theater games and using their imaginations in pantomimes, improvisations and performing in fairy tale dramas led by Patsy Girnys and Mary Pat Benoit.

Free child care will be available for ages 1-4. There is a suggested admission of a donation of one item for comfort kits that to be distributed by American Red Cross volunteers to homeless children in shelters and home fire victims in Livonia. Among the Items that can be donated are toothpaste, tooth brushes, shampoo, combs and brushes, soap, hair ornaments, wash cloths, tissues, Band-Aids, small games, puzzle books, pencils or pens, small pads of paper, yo-yos, small toys, crayons,

City lets students build three houses

By DARRELL CLEM

Wayne-Westland students enrolled in the district's building trades program will likely have to settle for constructing three houses, instead of four, on the southeast corner of Palmer Road and

For a second time, the Westland City Council last week postponed a rezoning decision on the 1.5-acre site, but indicated that school officials should consider withdrawing the request.

"I don't see you having the votes here, unless I'm wrong," councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin told school representatives during a Jan. 17 council session.

On Friday, school officials hadn't reached a decision on the issue, said Bill Richardson, principal of the William Ford Vocational-Technical Center, which houses the building trades program that teaches students to become builders.

The program has drawn widespread praise, and the studentbuilt houses - constructed under the supervision of a teacher/licensed builder - have a reputation for being sold quickly on the

But school officials have said the program is coming up short on land, and they had hoped that students could build four houses, instead of three, at the Palmer-John Hix site.

that — to protect existing property owners - they don't want to move away from the current residential-1 zoning that requires 9,600-square-foot lot sizes and 80foot frontages. Some homeowners want the zoning maintained.

"We need to protect the R-1 zoning in that area," councilwoman Sandra Cicirelli said during last week's session.

Barring a sudden change of heart by the council or a successful legal challenge by the school district, only three houses will be built on the site. School officials have made no hints of a lawsuit.

Greg Ashe, a surveyor hired by the district, submitted drawings to city officials that he said would allow four houses to be built with existing zoning regulations.

City planning director Tod Kilroy called Ashe's drawings "interesting" but said they don't conform to ordinances.

Moreover, some council members pointed out that the district wouldn't have had to seek the rezoning at all if, in fact, four houses could be built without special: approval.

200,000 saw park light show

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Wayne County officials report that the first annual "Festival of Lights" in Hines Park was an outstanding success.

The four-mile-long holiday light show attracted more than 63,000 cars between Nov. 22 and Jan. 9, generating more than $300,000 in revenue, said parks director Hurley Cole-

Light show patrons were asked to voluntarily donate $5 per car, and Coleman said 94 percent of them did. Some gave

Any profit from the light show will go into the parks budget, but Coleman isn't sure yet how much profit there is.

After expenses like electricity, promotion, parts and supplies are paid, he said, "We should come out with a little bit of a profit." A detailed report is being prepared for Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and the county commission.

Next year's show will have additional displays, Coleman said, but the plan is to get private sponsorships to pay for Area businesses contributing to the event included Ameritech, AAA of Michigan and Detroit Edison. Others included Awrey Bakery of Livonia, Bruce and Chato Advertising. CPI Photo Finishing, Eastman Kodak, Little Caesars Pizza, Roosterail Catering, Soil & Materials Engineers, Tucker Anthony, Walbridge-Aldinger and WNIC.

McNamara praised the light show as "a great event for Wayne County.'

"We created a fun-filled, family-oriented show and helped raise funds for the park system at the same time.'

Besides the lights, other activities included performance by various school and church choirs sponsored by the Blue Care Network of Southeast Michigan. Community and civic groups including, Wayne-Westland YMCA and Wayne Memorial Marching Band staffed a small gift shop to raise funds for their organiza-

Westland residents living near Hines Park were angry about the light show traffic around their houses. Beatrice Scalise of Westland characterized the light show as McNamara's "pipe dream that has turned into a traffic nightmare." Coleman reports that traffic complaints ceased after the first week of operation.

Although the county commission approved the light show, a two local commissioners voted against it, including Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, and Bryan Amann, D-Wayne.

Humane society has free straw for pets

The Michigan Humane Society will supply free straw to pet owners unable to afford bedding for outside animals.

The straw is available at the society's Detroit shelter, 7401 Chrysler Drive, open 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week. With the onset of sub-zero temperatures, the MHS has been overrun with calls regarding animals left outside with little or no shelter. Pet owners are urged to bring all animals inside, allowing adequate time on a porch or other in-between area to allow their body temperature to adjust to the change.

If an animal must be outside during the day, or for short periods, be sure to provide dry, secure shelter and check drinking water frequently for freezing.

Coffee Bean Cafe new to Plymouth

f you have yet to indulge in the burgeoning new coffeehouse culture, now's the time to ease into contemporary cafe society.

You really don't have to be a coffee-lover to experience the ambience of the java cafes. Just consider them a great place to meet friends, linger over a newspaper or game of backgammon, study and people-watch. The latest addition to the coffeehouse scene is the Plymouth Coffee Bean Company, recently opened downtown at 884 Penniman. Tim and Pam Haase transformed a 120-year-old landmark home into a cozy, West Coast-style establishment.

Coffeehouses tend to exhibit distinct personalities. They are not gulp-and-run types of joints. Most feature artful decor, low lights and intimate seating. The atmosphere invites you to stay awhile and relax with that cuppa joe.

The Plymouth Coffee Bean Company is modeled after the early 20th century European coffeehouses found in France and Italy.

Living room-like spaces are filled with comfortable oversized vintage-look furniture, arranged to induce conversation. Antique accessories, original wood floors and contemporary art add to the decor. The walls and ceilings are bathed in fantasy-like faux finishes, the result of Pam's expertise with a paintbrush. It's hip enough to appeal to young adults, yet sophisticated enough to draw older couples. "I'm going to have to start paying rent," confesses Kerri Ayoub of Canton, a regular who enjoys her cappuccino in front of the corner fireplace. Her friend, Sean Adair of Taylor, often joins her for a game of chess. Sean assures it's worth the drive. "This is just a really cool place," says Ayoub. "And the homemade brownies and desserts are great."

The chess set joins dozens of books and games on built-in bookshelves. Just another reason to linger over the beverage of your choice.

The quality of those specialty drinks is just as important to Haase as the ambience of the surroundings. He imports beans from around the world, representing different growers. The beans are freshly roasted and ground. There is less emphasis on flavored coffee and more care taken to acquire high-grade top of the line beans, such as the Arabica.

In any given week, you might find Jamaican, Hawaiian, Sumatran or African beans. The selection changes periodically. In addition to quality coffees, Haase uses Ghiradelli chocolate in his mochas and Monin syrups from France in his Italian and French sodas.

Teas for two

Non-coffee drinkers choose from exclusive Royal Garden teas. The premium whole leaf teas are served in linen bags for proper diffusion. Tea connoisseur Jim Dinser of Plymouth recommends Goddess herb tea, a Chinese green tea made with sun-dried leaves. "It is subtle and delicate," he says. The package describes the flavor as earth-

Haase hopes to expand the space in the spring to include a front veranda where he can offer live entertainment. But for now, folks are glad to have. a quiet gathering place. A local book club met here recently for coffee before a cross-country ski outing. Once ensconced on the cushy sofas, they never made it to the trails. "This is a great place to settle in," said one bibliophile as the group reluctantly left the warmth of the Plymouth Coffee Bean Company.

If you've been reluctant to visit one of the trendy new java cafes, let this be your wake-up call. The popular hangout of the '90s is a great place to start your day and an alluring alternative to the neighborhood bar on the weekend.

rigid temperatures kept the crowds down but those who did bundle up to see the ice sculptures in downtown Plymouth bought hot chocolate, sandwiches and a neat thing or two from the shops around Main Street.

"I think the weatherman scared a lot of people away," said Fran Toney of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce. "But the show must go on so many merchants and customers look forward to it each year. Why, some retailers say it's like a second Christmas for business."

Mall greenery is good for your psyche

CLARIFICATION

In last week's story on the Better Business Bureau, it was incorrectly reported that Kmart stores require a receipt for returns. BBB spokeswoman Carmel Weems pointed out that returns without a receipt at Kmart are given in the form of a cash refund or charge

Weems also wanted to clarify that the other stores mentioned in the story may require a receipt for cash refunds but not for exchanges.

"My reference to these retailers was to emphasize the fact that many consumers, accustomed to their liberal return policies, assume that all retailers must offer the same policy," Weems said.

of toxic vapors from inside tightly sealed chambers. Greenery merchants have been busy ever since.

In response to NASA's findings, office and retail centers battling the "Sick Building Syndrome" placed huge orders for philodendrons, spider plants, golden pothos, gerbera daisies and chrysanthemums - the most effective plants for removing formaldehyde and benzene from the air. These chemicals are given off from building materials and products with oil bases. Architects began adding atriums and lobbies with lots of natural light so plant-filtering systems would be a part of their buildings. When James Ryan and Associates of Farmington Hills redesigned The Somerset Collection in Troy in 1992, it created beautiful spaces for greenery. Planterra Tropical Greenhouses of West Bloomfield was hired to fill them. Planterra has won an Associated Landscape Contractors of America Grand Award for its landscaping work at The Somerset Collection.

A month later, Planterra was honored with the Gold Award from the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association, also for its work at The Somerset Collection.

Clean air council

Planterra president Larry Pliska is proud of the interiorscape awards that hang in the greenhouse lobby. They represent more than 20 years in the plantscape business. He's eager to discuss the benefits of plants in the workplace, home, restaurant and shopping center as an active supporter of the Plants For Clean Air Coun-

"This whole business started as a hobby with me in 1972," Pliska said. "I left my work as a draftsman to pursue my interest in plants. I watched as the government deregulated the standards for air quality in exchange for tighter, more energy-efficient buildings because of the oil embargos and the energy crisis.

"Then I read with interest about the new sick building syndromes where office workers suffer unexplainable eye irritations, headaches and other problems while at work. Their symptoms were linked to fumes released from carpeting, plywood and other things like solvents and petroleum-based products. These fumes contained benzene and formaldehyde, which can surely cause health prob-

Chris Burke of Creative Fram- non-alcoholic beverages, Valening was singing "Joy to the World." She sold 1,200 Ice Sculpture Festival posters made from an original oil painting by artist Kathy Jakobsen.

"We had a sure-fire item to sell but the numbers we sold astounded us," she said. "At times during the ice festival, we had customers three-deep in the store in a line that went out the door. It was great."

Mike McCarty, manager of Georgia's Gift Gallery, agreed. "Each year, we try and find merchandise that complements the ice sculptures and we always do well with this." he said. "Business was good during the festival. It absolutely energizes the area."

At Sideways, owner Sharon Puge said the ice-art patrons enjoyed the sculptures and then stopped by to see the demonstrations her store scheduled.

"They bought a lot of coffees, tines and cake decorating supplies," she said. "We plan special things in the store for this weekend and extend our hours. It was a fun weekend. The demonstrations brought shoppers in whether they were browsing or just getting out of the cold."

Donna, a cashier at The Cozy Cafe, said business was up during ice spectacular weekend but it was not as busy as last year.

Lots of goals

A sales boost for local business. Toney said, was just one goal of the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular, now in its 12th year.

"The show brings in people from all over Michigan, Ohio and Canada who come to see the ice sculptures in Kellogg Park," she said. "But they also discover new shops when they are here. They may decide to buy a home here or move a business here. And everyone knows every dollar spent turns over four to seven times, whether it's for gasoline or lunch or a pair of boots. The ice show benefits the whole community in one way or another."

This year's ice spectacular chairman, Mike Watts, said the event cost about $125,000, to stage. It has its own board of directors.

"I estimate we had about 300,000 visitors to the ice show," he said, thawing out the day after. "Other years, we've had 500,000. You can't set a record every year. Considering the cold temperatures. We did just fine."

Just how fine, Toney said, will be apparent months from now when the chamber's phone rings with inquiries from ice festival visitors who want the name of a shop they saw in January or the that caught their eye.

Downtown Plymouth is looking forward to its next community events: May's Memorial Day parade, the June-July Music in the

Did legal apparatus fail woman beaten to death?

BY LARRY O'CONNOR STAFF WRITER

Jackie Ponke's murder Jan. 8 in a Farmington dental office served as a chilling reminder to those who are targets in domestic violence cases: Laws — no matter how stringent — don't always provide protection from someone intent on harming them.

Ponke had moved out of her Oxford home with her daughter Nov. 22. She sued for divorce a few weeks later and filed for a spousal abuse injunction and restraining order a few days before she was hammered to death.

She told family and friends of threats made against her, some as specific as "cutting her into five pieces with a chain saw."

Yet, it wasn't enough to trip the switch on the legal mechanisms designed to protect women in such perilous situations.

Her husband, Raymond Ponke, is charged with first-degree murder in her slaying.

Some family members question, the system, saying it failed Jackie Ponke. Others aren't so sure.

"I can't give that an affirmative answer," said Joyce Wright, director of communications for Haven, a domestic violence shelter serving Oakland County. "It sounds like from what I've read . . . perhaps he would've found another opportunity."

Jackie Ponke's brother, Dennis Lutz, said his sister felt helpless. She did call police, but a spokesman for Oxford police said their hands were tied when they were summoned.

Others had seen the warning

Dr. Alan Bredin, in whose dental office Jackie Ponke worked, mapped out an escape plan for employees when he learned of the threats made on her life.

A brother of Raymond Ponke told Farmington police after the murder he had heard similar overtures made in a conversation with the accused at the Rustic Pub in Farmington Dec. 30.

Farmington police officials said no one informed them of the

If they had, deputy director Michael Wiggins said, reports could have been taken and evidence presented to the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office.

"Unfortunately, that wasn't done here," Wiggins said. "That's not to say had it been done it would've prevented this from happening."

Oxford police were called to the Ponke residence, including Nov. 20 when Raymond Ponke had reportedly been drinking.

On that night, police Chief John LeRoy said Jackie Ponke didn't express any fear about her husband.

LeRoy said other incidents, including Raymond Ponke taking his daughter to Tennessee, were difficult to pursue because it was a "husband and wife" situation.

No requests for warrants were filed with the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office in either inci-

Oakland County assistant prosecutor Robert Hedges said if his office did not have knowledge of those incidents prior to Jackie Ponke's death.

But whether it would have been enough to get a warrant and to convince a judge to put him in jail and keep him on a bond, Hedges said, "is all speculation. I don't know.'

Hedges said the system works in most domestic assault cases if victims go to police and the complaint comes to the prosecutor's

Awareness key to safety, expert says

By BILL COUTANT

Personal safety is 90 percent awareness.

It seems too simple to be true, but Brenda Smith, an investigator and personal safety trainer with Comerica Bank, has solid evidence that it works.

"We've lowered bank robberies (at Comerica) by 39 percent simply by training the employees to look up and be aware of their surroundings," she said.

Smith said bank robbers are most concerned with being identified. If a teller simply keeps her head up and has a good look at everyone, the would-be robber will move on to another location.

The strategy is also good for anyone in everyday situations, she said.

One of the easiest targets for criminals is the automatic teller machine outside a bank. But if a customer makes sure the area is well lit and checks to see if anyone is hanging around, a robbery can usually be avoided.

Although most people fall into a routines, they should be avoided when criminals might count on them.

Most robbers case a bank branch for one or two weeks," she said.

The same applies to people out walking, shopping or even driving to work.

"Change your routine and be aware of your surroundings," Smith said.

If you are walking, it should be brisk. Personal protective devices, such as alarms that give off a noise similar to a car alarm, are available. And when you drive, your doors should be locked.

"I knew a man who was an expert in nunchucks (nunchaku - marshal arts) who wasn't worried about locking his doors," she said. "Someone jumped in his truck and pulled out a gun and made him drive around for seven and a half hours. He now locks his doors."

Smith, who spoke to members for the Farmington Hills Business Watch group Thursday morning, said staying away from poorly lit parks and unfamiliar streets at night is one way to avoid trouble. But even busy malls and other places can be dangerous.

She related one incident where a gas station attendant came out to a motorist and asked her to come into the station because there was a problem with her credit card. She became angry and argued with the attendant, but relented and went inside with him. He then pointed out that there was a man laying on the back seat of her car. They called the po- surroundings that's 90 percent of personal

Door locks should always be used in the home, preferably dead bolts, she said. And just like a bank, a house is usually cased. When you're away from home, have a timer turn lights on and off.

Valuables should be in a safety deposit box, not at home, and you should know an escape route and have a flashlight next to your bed in case power and phone lines are cut.

"Anyone can buy a uniform," she said. "Make sure you check for ID and call the company to see why someone is at your house."

Whether walking to your car from shopping at a mall or from work, have your keys ready. "While you're fumbling around with your keys, someone has time to get to you," she And a mobile phone for your car can be a life saver, she said. If it's broken down, you can call home, call the police or for other help. If you don't have a portable phone or CB radio, you should stay inside your car until police come. If someone offers help, just crack the window enough to ask the to call for police or a wrecker, she added.

"If you are knowledgeable and aware of your protection," Smith said.

Grumpy old men move out to change the world haven't seen the film "Grumpy Old Men" but I've met them. And they're so nicely grumpy.

They belong to a non-dues-paying, open-to-anyone fraternity they label A.D.C. — short for "Another Disgusted Citizen." Their raison d'etre is their concern for future generations. And their motto: "The pen is mightier than the sword.'

At least that's how Tony Brehler, of Livonia, describes it.

Brehler, a retired office manager and World War II veteran, over the past year has gathered a small band of dissidents who are willing to do more than just talk about their concerns.

They take advantage of what Brehler calls "the powerful pen" and write letters to the editors of newspapers and to radio and TV stations and networks as local as the Birmingham Eccentric and as national as The Wall Street Journal — when they have something to say on a pressing issue.

. They come from Southfield, Franklin, Bloomfield Township, Farmington Hills, Livonia, gathering once a month at Bob Evans restaurant on Telegraph in Southfield to exchange information and ideas. But they don't form a consensus: Their opinions are their own.

One way they add to their group is by writing to other letter writers whose ppinions they respect and inviting them to join them.

That's how Ray Dubin happened to come to his first meeting. Dubin, from Farmington Hills, wrote recent letters goading the MEA and warning taxpayers about the Clinton health care plan.

Brehler saw them and, as they say, the rest is history.

Judith Doner Berne

But Dubin breaks the "grumpy old men" mold as he is probably 30-something, the father of a 6-year-old and proprietor of a day care center.

The others are retired (except for R. Thomas Hunter, a financial advisor from Bloomfield Township) and readily acknowledge they have the time to spend trying to change the world. But still they are frustrated that more people don't seem to care or are afraid to speak up.

"How do we get the citizens off their cans?" asks Bill Carruth from Clawson at the group's January session.

"I don't know," Dubin responds. "Apathy is alive and well. Things that are important to me I make time to do. I might get up an hour earlier or stay up an hour later."

"This is a start," says Brehler. "If we can consolidate a group like this - and expand." "I have friends in Bloomfield Hills who are worried the IRS will come after them (if they publish letters questioning the system)," says Carruth.

"I can't believe we're talking about this kind of thing," Hunter says. "It's about expressing your opinion.'

"What we need," says Paul Harding, a Livonian, is "for this group to multiply a thousand fold."

"I don't know if the world can stand that," Hunter jokes.

I think it could. Here are people who, after a life time of work, could be indulging more selfish interests or turning inward.

Instead, they talk — and write about educational reform, children's self-esteem, their hopes for Detroit under a new mayor. . . .

By the way, they are not all-male by choice. They have tendered invitations to female letter writers (as well as to their wives where appropriate), but so far have not had any takers.

You can reach Brehler at 477-3816. He'll tell you: "We have no officers (no offices either), no dues or fees and no religious or political affiliation. We are various religions (never asked) and all independent voters. We are united to express ourselves more fully, and hopefully, motivate others standing at the brink."

Think grassroots - at its finest. Judith Doner Berne is managing editor for The Eccentric Newspapers. You can reach her at 901-2563.

President, lawyer and others share a '60s dream

he was a 1960s dream. She was easy to handle on the curves of Hines Drive. President Bill Clinton still has one tucked away in an Arkansas garage and a Canton attorney I know passed one on to his son.

No, we're not talking about Gennifer Flowers or a similar model. We're talking about something that even Clinton and my conservative attorney friend can agree on, Mustang love.

In the long run, most of us current or former Mustang owners probably got more joy out of an evening from our cars than from an entire used car lot full of Flowers-type ladies.

Just ask John Wayne Bobbitt what he would rather have been doing that fateful night, driving a Mustang or learning about relationships.

Let's face it, many of us remember more about our first Mustang than our first, second or third loves. My love affair passes a milestone this month. It was 25 years ago that I plunked down about $2,500 in cash for my dream at a Ford dealership at Joy Road and the Southfield Freeway.

She was red with black interior and came equipped with a 289 V-8 engine and three-speed stick shift. The black plastic interior was hot as a Madonna video in the summer and as cold as Lorena Bobbitt's heart in the winter. But none of that mattered while cruising Telegraph or parked in Hines.

Just about everybody of my generation had at least one Mustang cruising story. I even had one friend who, when with a group of friends, went to an anti-Vietnam war rally in a Mustang, And since every group of students in those days had to have a name, these guys used the monicker of Mustang Maoists. You've got to remember that in the late 1960s people had serious debates about the difference between a Leninist and a Maoist.

My Mustang Maoist friend said he didn't fit in the anti-war protest because they were in a Mustang and not in a then-politically correct VW of some sort.

As the 1970s rolled along, the Mustang fell victim to the times, the styling got as fat and as bloated as Elvis in a white jump suit.

Perhaps we can blame it on disco music and the fact that too many of them were purchased by suburban housewives. But whatever it was, the Mustangs just haven't been the same. During the 1970s and '80s, they even made four and six cylinder models. That was like putting actress Sharon Stone in a suit of armor for her scenes in "Basic Instinct."

But these days Ford is putting some spunk back in its Mustangs, giving them a leaner and meaner look and putting the 1960s back under the hood. The market is the aging baby boomer who may be feeling he isn't running on all eight cylinders any more.

I don't know about other former Mustang owners, but I'm certainly in the market.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers and is looking for a good deal on an eight cylinder Mustang. He can be reached at 459-2700.

Schmidt Auditorium hosts 'Brooks and Ed'

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson will discuss the future of the Detroit area at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 26, at the Louis E. Schmidt Auditorium in Livonia.

Admission is free. The auditorium is located on the east' side of Middlebelt between Seven Mile and Eight Mile roads, adjacent to Clarenceville High School.

Patterson spokesman Bob Dustman said the event will resemble "The Ed and Brooks Show" (which airs on Channel 4 Sundays) and last 40 min-

Car ordinance gets 30-day reprieve

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has agreed not to sue the McNamara administration over a new county car ordinance, pending 30 days of negotiation.

Enacted in October by unanimous vote of the commission, the ordinance forbids future county elected officials and most senior staffers from using county cars. It also eliminates the monthly stipends of as much as $350 that 84 county employees collect in lieu of being paid by the mile.

Because Executive Edward McNamara didn't veto the ordinance or challenge it in court, it has the force of law, and McNamara is supposed to obey it.

However, a county legal opinion declaring the car ordinance "void and unenforceable" - and a subsequent executive order regarding county cars - gave commissioners the idea that McNamara executive authority by the legisladidn't intend to obey the ordinance.

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who wrote the ordinance with the input and help of McNamara staffers Dave Katz and Bob Biga, is confident a compromise can be reached within the 30-day time period the commission set Thursday.

"I think we'll get it done," he said Friday. "They don't want to go to court either. That's just a waste of time and money."

However, the commission is prepared to sue if necessary, asking that McNamara be ordered to obey the ordinance. McCotter said.

Although McNamara's people haven't said specifically what parts of the ordinance they object to, the legal opinion, signed by county attorney Patricia Irving-Cwiek, says the ordinance "represents an unlawful usurpation of tive body of Wayne County.'

Katz said the objections are "relatively minor stuff (and) I'm sure we can work the problem out. I don't see this as a major point of conflict at all. We've got an outstanding rapport with commissioner McCotter.'

The ordinance also mandates meticulous record-keeping in regard to county cars and makes it more difficult to buy luxury cars when economy cars will do.

The commission decided that an ordinance regarding county cars was needed after an audit of county cars was completed in May.

Auditor General Ramona Henderson's report concluded that record-keeping in regard to county cars was sloppy and that sometimes departments bought fancy vehicles when more austere models would have done the same job.

Negotiating: Wayne County commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, is working on a compromise to get the new car ordinance going.

U-M keeps E mail messages from graduate

(AP) — Electronic mail messages are not subject to the state Freedom of Information Act, the University of Michigan has claimed in refusing to release copies of computer messages from its president.

The university's attorneys used the argument to deny the FOI request by a 1993 Michigan graduate. Chetley Zarko had asked for the E-mail of President James Duderstadt, Vice President Walter Harrison, Vice Provost Douglas Van Houweling, and his assistant Virginia Rezmierski.

"I just wanted to see if I could get it," said Zarko, an Ypsilanti resident, a computer buff and free-lance writer.

But it remains to be seen whether E-mail isn't a record.

said state Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, who has been talking about revising the state's FOI Act. He said he thinks the intent of the original FOIA would encompass government E-mail.

"How is (E-mail) different from a memo?" Honigman asked. "It is a permanent record. Like any record, it can be erased, but so can a piece of paper or a computer tape.

Lawyers for the university say the E-mail is protected by the federal Electronic Communications Privacy Act and several exemptions to the Michigan FOIA law. They outlined their stance in a letter to Zarko.

E-mail is exempt because: It isn't "prepared, owned, used, in the possession of or retained by a public body in the performance of an official function," and it isn't a "means of recording or retaining meaningful content, University General Counsel Elsa Cole and attorneys for a Detroit law firm

The university also said that it would be impractical to recover certain messages from among the more than one million sent.

Kirk Tabbey, a Jackson County assistant prosecutor who serves on the state's computer crime task force, said how E-mail is used should determine whether it is subject to disclosure.

"I think U-M has a good argument that it's replacing telephone calls," which aren't subject to FOIA disclosure, he said.

On the other hand, if E-mail is being used to pass around draft documents that otherwise would have been put on paper, "I would say that's something that the public has a right to view," Tabbey said.

The university has no policy against using E-mail for official business or against storing important messages on paper or magnetic media, but E-mail wouldn't fulfill the university's requirement that certain kinds of business be conducted in writing, said Harrison, vice president for university relations.

E-mail didn't exist when Michigan's Freedom of Information Act was written in 1976 and it's still very much a gray area in the y voice mail box, and postman are taking a much needed breather now that the holidays are past. Your calls and requests were appreciated, and I hope your holidays were filled with delicious treats coupled with a bountiful helping of peace and love.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Here are answers to your questions

When you call the voice mail box, please remember to leave your name, phone number and city in which you live for a speedy response.

My daughter Jessie, resplendent in her Girl Scout sash, called the voice mail box twice requesting that you be reminded that this is Girl Scout cookie time. All of your favorites are back. This year marks the introduction of a cookie dubbed "Juliettes" which are a crunchy combination of caramel and pecans covered with a fudge coating.

Cookie proceeds help pay for local troop programs, council facilities and training. Everyone loves Girl Scout cookies, and yours truly has been known to polish off an entire box with a quart of milk while watching the Frugal Gourmet on Channel 50.

Girl Scout cookies freeze well, ship well through the mail and can be used in many recipes. A Janes Gang family favorite is a cheesecake crust made with Girl Scout Tagalong cookies crushed in the blender of a food processor. If you don't know a Girl Scout, call your local elementary school for the name and number of a troop cookie mom.

Diane Morrison of Westland called about the nut cake recipes that ran a few weeks back. Morrison questioned the amounts of nuts and wanted to know the equivalents of whole nuts to

My sources indicate that different nuts give different equivalences, but as a general rule of thumb, 1 pound of ground nuts equals about 3 cups ground nuts; while 1 pound of whole nuts equate to about 6 cups ground nuts, depending Morrison also questioned the cooking time of the recipes. She said her nut cakes were dry around the edges. I re-tested the recipes and both cakes turned out moist and chewy as per the recipe directions.

Sometimes oven temperatures are off, and a few problems might arise in the type and quality of your bakeware. As a general rule of thumb. we suggest you always check cakes not by the exact time, but when a cake tester of toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean.

The Turciano family of Livonia called with a recipe request for French Crullers. This sounds too good to be true, but the Janes Gang took in "The Wizard of Oz" down at the Fox Theatre, and in the beginning of the movie when Dorothy falls into the pig sty and is helped out by Huck and the other two farm hands, Aunt Em comes on the scene with a plate of crullers proclaiming "here, have a cruller, you can't work on an empty stomach." My thoughts exactly.

Crullers are richer than doughnuts, so says "The Joy of Cooking." For best results, they should be made with all the ingredients at room temperature so that the dough can be mixed quickly, which in turn prevents the development of gluten in the flour which in turn makes for a heavy and tough dough.

FRENCH CRULLERS

- 4 eggs ⅔ cup sugar
- ¾ teaspoon grated lemon rind ソ cup milk
- % melted shortening
- 3½ cups all purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons cream of tartar % teaspoon soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg or cardamom, optional

Beat eggs until light. Gradually stir in sugar, blend until creamy. Stir in lemon rind, shortening and milk. Mix well. Set aside. In a separate bowl, sift together the dry ingredients. Gently fold the dry ingredients into the egg mixture.

Gently stir until just incorporated. Cover and chill in freezer for 45 minutes. Roll or pat dough to a thickness of -inch. Cut into strips about by 2 inches and fry in a deep fat fryer heated to 365 degrees until lightly golden. Drain on paper towels and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Be a gracious host ENTERTAIN YOUR LOW-FAT OPTIONS

Entertain guests with festive fare that's low in fat. Floreen Halpern of Amaryllis Catering & Party Planning in Birmingham shares tips, and a delicious menu that will make guests forget the cold, and warm up to healthier eating.

The new year is four weeks old, and you've done a very good job of watching what you eat. Now, the tricky part. It's your turn to have friends over for dinner. Can you serve a festive, memorable dinner everyone will enjoy, and still stay on your low-fat eating plan?

Floreen Halpern, owner of Amaryllis Catering & Party Planning in Birmingham showed me you can. "People love to come to other people's homes. It's the most gracious way to entertain," she said. "Start from a respectful position. Serve your guests special food that they can enjoy. Don't make them worry about overeating."

To prove her point Halpern put together a fuss-free, low-fat menu.

The main course, Shrimp Etouffe consists of shrimp tossed with a tomato based sauce and vegetables served over angel hair pasta or rice. Instead of shrimp, Halpern said the dish could also be served with grilled or broiled boneless, skinless chicken. For a marinade, she likes a mixture of soy sauce, honey and cayenne pepper.

Halpern jazzed up a salad of assorted greens with slices of colorful seedless orange, a strawberry, and rings of red onion. The dressing was a vinaigrette made with blueberry preserves, ginger marmalade and crushed pineapple.

Marnie Britcher of Canton and her husband. Bill, are trying to fulfill their New year's resolution to eat healthier meals. They have decided to reduce the amount of fat in their diets. To achieve this goal, they have started substituting lowfat and fat-free products in their cooking, and are reducing their intake of red meat.

Britcher has two sons -James, 21 and Matthew, a junior at Plymouth Salem High School, are typical young men. Marnie says they have no interest in eating healthy or low-fat foods. We all know this will change once they hit 30! Britcher sent in a recipe for Beef Stroganoff that is very popular with her family.

"The recipe has been a longtime favorite of our family, but an extremely unhealthy one," wrote Marnie when she submitted the recipe for a make over. "The dish gets served frequently because of the tremendous flavor. The challenge would be to convert it to a heart healthy recipe without losing the flavor."

Because there are so many high fat products in this recipe there are a number of ways to reduce the fat. When I made the recipe I made changes on every high fat item. The ingredients can be replaced a few at a time to adjust for personal preference.

I also spoke with Debra DePriest, a meat clerk at the Food Emporium grocery store on Six Mile Road in Livonia. She told me that cube steak is one of the leanest red meats. It is cut from the sirioin tip roast and placed through a tenderizing machine. DePriest said eye of round roast can also be used. There are only 6.7 grams of fat per 4 ounces of meat. This is very lean.

The original recipe calls for Chinese chow mein noodles. At 13.4 grams of fat per 4 ounce serving, these had to be replaced. No Yolk brand wide egg

For dessert, she served an out of this world parfait of baked fresh pineapple and bananas layered with frozen vanilla yogurt, and sprinkled fresh raspberries of top.

Halpern decorated her table with fresh flowers and curls of pink and yellow ribbon. It's hard to believe something as simple as ribbon could add so much to a table, but it did.

"I've always loved to entertain and set the table," said Halpern who has worn many hats including English teacher, insurance agent, and stock broker before going into the catering business four years ago. She's been at her Birmingham location since June, and caters parties for 10 to over 400 with the help of her "fabulous staff."

"Do what reflects the season," she said. When you're entertaining in the winter make hot spiced wine, cider or soup. The fragrance will say welcome in a way words can't. Serve guests soup in mugs as a first course in the living room. Be sure to pass around a basket filled with slices of good

Everyone still loves desserts. Turn your brownies into precious morsels by cutting out little hearts with a small cookie cutters.

"It's like a reward for being good," said Halpern. "It's OK if you do it in small bites."

Guests who don't want dessert will appreciate specialty coffees and interesting teas. "Put a little whipped cream in a bowl and dust it with cocoa and cinnamon. It's beautiful, and low in calories because you don't use very much," said Halpern.

Other dessert ideas she shared were to sautee apple slices in a little hot fudge or caramel sauce and layer apples with frozen vanilla yogurt. Baked fresh pineapple and poached pears served with raspberries are also elegant.

Simmer oranges with an orange flavored liqueur and serve in a crystal bowl, sprinkle pomegranate seeds on top for color.

"Whatever you do, try to do the best you can. Buy the best ingredients, fresh colorful produce crisp, green lettuce, red onion. Serve foods that are beautiful to look at. Use fruits and vegetables of the season, each has its own bounty.

"Don't abandon your favorite recipes, but look for ways to reduce the fat," said Halpern. "The original recipe for Shrimp Etouffee had 1/2 cup of butter, we reduced it to one tablespoon."

Gale Cox, Wellness Coordinator for Botsford Hospital in Farmington, shares these low-fat entertaining tips:

■ Offer alcohol free drinks, which are also lower in calories. ■ Use diet pop in punch, and frozen fruit for decoration. ■ Try to serve fruit and vegetables for appetizers. Make fruit kebabs with grilled pineapple. For main courses stick to lean beef, boneless, skinless chicken breast, fish and pasta. Use fresh spices, it will add a lot of flavor. Now you can get fresh basil yearround at most grocery stores.

Here are some tips from Lisa

Martin, a registered dietitian at St. Mary's Hospital in Livonia: Lighten up dairy-rich dishes with low-fat options. Look for part-skim cheeses and lower-fat versions of cheddar, Swiss and other cheeses.

■ Use vegetable cooking sprays instead of frying in fats.

Chef's Secret: You shouldn't really cook with artificial sweetener as it has a tendency to break down and become bitter during the cooking process. I recommend increasing the vanilla extract to 1/2 teaspoon, not incorporating the sweetener into the cookie batter and baking it without the sweetener. When the cookies are removed from the oven, lightly sprinkle with sweetener for best

The sour cream can be substituted in a variety of ways. I used Land O'Lakes fat-free sour cream. You could also use 2 cups of "lite" sour cream and one cup of non-fat. This can be adjusted to your personal preference.

To reduce the sodium, use garlic powder instead of garlic salt and reduced sodium Worcestershire sauce. I suggest starting with 3 tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce and adding the extra if you wish. FLUNKING SCHOOL LUNCHES

The Agriculture Department has issued a flunking grade to the lunches served in our nation's public schools. According to its report, our schools serve lunches that exceed the government's own dietary guidelines for fat by 25 percent (by 50 percent for saturated fat). The school funches also exceed recommendations for sodium intake by nearly 100 percent. According to Dietary Guldelines for Americans, from the Departments of Agriculture and of Health and Human Services, no more than 30 percent of daily calories should come from fat (no more than ten percent from saturated fat). Daily sodium Intake should not exceed 2,400 mg. A survey of 545 schools shows funches derive 38 percent of their calories from fat (15 percent from saturated fat). Just one school tunch provides nearly two-thirds the daily limit for salt.

Given those statistics, isn't it time to take responsibility for your child's nutrition away from the school system. Why not start the new year with a new style of food preparation! Chili champ Marilyn Frederick of Farmington Hills invited me to be one of eight judges at the International Chili Society Winter Freeze District Cookoff at the Allen Park Elks Lodge. How could I refuse. I love chili!

Frederick, has earned a reputation in the area for her prize-win-participated in cookoffs in 13 states, and did a fine job conducting the cookoff in Allen Park, with help from her brother Frank Klancnik, known for his "Smoke in the Hole Chili," and score-· keeper Ed Kulback.

There were 18 participants including Bill Thomas of Plymouth, Jim Weller of West Bloomfield, Ken Brundage of Livonia, A. Michael Ford of Farmington Hills, Gean Ziegler and Vaughn Irish of Walled Lake.

Third place was awarded to John Garcia of Wyandotte, second place, Leo Buk II of Trenton, and first place to Bob Hall of Taylorville, Illinois.

Hall might not have won if hadn't have been for the generosity of a good sport - Georgia Weller of Bloomfield Hills. Hall's chili box containing all of his supplies was lost at the airport. Weller let him use hers, and gave " up her spot in the cookoff. There's another happy ending to this story, Weller's chili box was found, and returned to him.

Jim Weller and his wife, Georgia often compete against each other at chili cookoffs, but as Marilyn Frederick says, "that's another story."

Eating bread won't make you fat you're on a weight loss diet? Wrong! A slice of bread is no more fattening than an apple. Breads THIELEKE

Do you still believe that

bread is fattening and you have to give it up if satisfy hunger and help achieve weight loss by being low in fat, high in energy and long on nutrition.

Breads play a major role in our diet because they are loaded with complex carbohydrates, which are the best source of energy for our bodies. Complex carbohydrates are like time-released capsules, giving you energy over a longer period of time. Breads can also be a low-fat source of fiber, vitamins and minerals. Calories from carbohydrates are less likely to turn into body fat than calories from Another health benefit of bread is fiber. Insoluble fiber helps keep us regular and may reduce the risk of breast and colon cancer. Soluble fiber, also found in breads, may help some people lower blood cholesterol as part of a low-fat diet.

The Food Pyramid suggests 6 to 11 servings a day of breads, grains and cereals. It's not as hard as it sounds to have that many servings a day. A serving is one slice of bread, or % cup readyto-eat cereal or 1/2 cup cooked ce-

A bun, bagel or muffin counts two servings, five saltines counts as one, or ½ cup of cooked pasta is one serving. A plate of spaghetti can be several servings for most people. Check the label for the fiber content and look for bread with 2. or 3 grams per slice. There are some white breads that actually have more fiber than some of the so-called multigrain breads. Don't be fooled by "lite" breads or "diet" breads, this usually means thinner or smaller slices. Some breads are lower in calories because they contain more fiber, usually cellulose.

The real calorie culprits are not the breads, but the spreads and fillings that we use.

Low-fat toppings

Create your own low-fat toppings, spreads and seasonings. Spread lightly with jams, jellies or fruit purees; broil a slice of bread with low-fat cottage cheese; sprinkle on dill, rosemary or Italian combinations; try fat-free cream cheese or a hint of honey on warm bread or toast.

Grab a bagel or low-fat muffin, pita bread or breadsticks to eat between meals. Toasting of bread only removes moisture, not the calories as some people think.

Bagels are usually made from high-protein flour, yeast and salt and are boiled before baking. Most bagels are made with little or no fat, however, egg bagels have fat and cholesterol.

English muffins are made from high-protein flour and are chewy. They are traditionally baked on a griddle or skillet rather than in an

Flat pita bread may make you think it doesn't have yeast, but it does. The yeast causes it to puff during baking then deflates, leaving a hollow in the middle. Whole toasted pitas can be used like pizza or pastry crusts.

Make your own breakfast sandwich by scrambling egg whites, sprinkle with a little grated cheese and serve on a warm small roll or bun.

The regular mayo on a burger usually has as many calories as the entire bun, so use low-fat condiments such as mustard, ketchup, chutney or relish. If you just can't resist a peanut butter sandwich, mix it with some large curd cottage cheese: You'll still get the flavor but have much less

Or better yet, slice the bread really thick and use just a little peanut butter to make a sandwich. The peanut butter flavor is there, but you have lots of bread, guaranteed to fill you up.

Recycle stale bread

Don't throw away stale bread. Accumulate stale slices, freeze them and, when you need bread crumbs, process in the food processor. Bread crumbs also freeze well. Keep in a tightly closed plastic bag in the freezer. Bread crumbs can be used to coat fish or poultry before baking or as a topping for casseroles or to thick-

Cubes of stale bread are great for stuffing or as croutons in salads or with sliced fruit in a Brown Betty recipe. A mixture of all colors and flavors of accumulated stale breads makes unusual dishes. Stale bread also makes good French toast for breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Bread is not fattening: It's good for you. The long-term benefits of eating more grain foods are that they will help you control weight and cut the fat in your diet. Learn to say, "pass the bread, but hold the butter.

Detroit 1999: The Big Ugly - various artists.

Whoever said Detroit musical talent is not worth listening to

The compilation disc "Detroit 1999: The Big Ugly" proves that Detroit musicians are not only worth the time, but that talent has, does and will exist in the Motor City. The 17-track release contains one cut each from local acts, some old, some new, some strong and some blue. All arranged on plastic from a local recording company which has been releasing material since 1977 and has six other compilations

Each track is unique in its own right giving only a taste of each act's potential. Nevertheless, it's a good way to get exposed and possibly contaminated. Majority of the cuts have a rock feel to it, but what could you expect from a city of middle class, beef and potatoes, Bud Light drinkers.

The first thing that hits you are the hearty vocals on an interesting broken heart story entitled "Papa's Arms" from the now-defunct Strange Bedfellows. The release continues along with a bouncy-abstract Cinecyde's "Slave Wages" to a soulful country-feeling "When You're There" from the Volebeats.

The big release travels to a fun-filled look at hating school with the Happy Accidents' "All My Teachers," the outgoing sounds of The Opaque's "Political Machine," the trials and tribulations of loathing working with See Dick Run's "I Hate My Job," and to the abstract, orchestrated sounds of Jim Olenski's "High Noon at Mojave."

Each piece has its own feel, like all compilations, but considering this is Detroit based, it acts as a voice for the groups and performers which they might not otherwise get. If nothing else, "Detroit 1999: The Big Ugly" is the perfect way to taste a variety of home-based sounds.

The fictional idea behind this release is mass destruction after the Eight Mile Road War of 1995, one large auto company and the lack of music in the city except for one droning note leaving Tremor compilations the only music listened to by renegades. Luckily, it's only a dream.

- Kyle Green

Crossing Borders - Kukuruza

This may or may not be the finest bluegrass disc of the year (I think it's one of the five best, at least), but it is the most unusual.

The U.S. label debut for this brilliant Moscow-based octet, while steeped in a stock bluegrass framework, reminds me more of Fairport Convention than Alison Krauss most of the time. Certainly, lead vocalist Irina Surina has absorbed every nuance of the Sandy Denny songbook and emerges as the best new vocalist of the year, hands down. That she is surrounded by madolinist/clarinetist Georgi Palmov, dobro/banjo player Andrei Shepelev and fiddler supreme Sergei Mosolov enhances the magic, and makes the fact that 13 of the 14 tunes here are sung in their native Russian that much less of a problem. It isn't that hard to imagine the lyric content of the songs. The delivery is a notch this side of heaven, and the song titles are given English translations, so how much more can you expect.

"Go With God My Lovely" sounds like Denny backed by David Grisman; "The Wanderer" sounds like it wanted to be the "Wings of a Snow White Dove." "The Secret" has the best fiddle break this side of "White Bird"; "Love Takes Work," the only English language piece, reminds me of "Tennessee Stud"; and "Enough" could have been a Peggy Lee song.

This is just about as amazing as acoustic music gets! Highly recommended.

- Mark Gallo

"In The Name of the Father" (soundtrack) various artists

Daniel Day-Lewis has been called an early Oscar contender for his portrayal of Gerry Conlon, a petty thief wrongly convicted along with his family for an IRA bombing, in the film "In the Name of the Father." But what has been lost in the shadow of the movie's hype is the quiet return of Sinead O'Connor, who contributed the song "Thief of Your Heart" to the film.

The song is trademark O'Connor, who has vowed a few times never to record again. Her angelic voice is accompanied in most of the song by only drum beats, keyboards and strings --- a sound as chilling as some of the lyrics of the song: "Winter's cold, but you're colder still." The song increases in tempo as it progresses and frantically fades.

LOOKING AHEAD

What to watch for in Street Scene next week:

Christina Fuoco talks with Gangster Fun about its new single. Mark Gallo says good-bye to Steve Gornali who recently moved his blues band to California.

'Tommy': Rock as an art form

■ Twenty-five years after the debut of "Tommy," fans of The Who are once again seeing, feeling and hearing the story of the "deaf, dumb and blind kid."

By Christina Fuoco

Actor Roger Bart spent endless months being sickeningly nice to children as "Dickon" in the play 'The Secret Gar-

Now he gets to torture them in his role as the conniving abusive "Cousin Kevin" in the rock opera "Tommy," which plays the Masonic Temple in Detroit through Sunday, Feb.

"After 'The Secret Garden' and being so nice to the little girl, it's divine justice now that I'm able to torture a child," the boisterous Bart said with a laugh.

In "The Secret Garden," "Dickon" teaches the young Mary Lenno to make her garden flourish. His tenure in the role included a threeweek stint at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit.

In "Tommy," "torture" aptly describes Cousin Kevin's treatment of Tommy, played by 1992 Detroit Music Awards host and ex-MTV veejay Steve Issacs. One line in a song Cousin Kevin sings hints at his plans for his "deaf, dumb and blind" cousin: "There's a lot I can do with a freak."

"I get to stick him in a garbage can. . . . I was a little scared about what my parents would think when they saw me up there," he said.

But as Kevin and some local children are harassing the young boy, Tommy discovers his penchant for playing pinball.

Cousin Kevin's role in the play is much more pronounced in the stage production than the cameo he had in the 1975 movie, which starred Ann-Margret, Tina Turner, Roger Daltrey and Eric Clapton. Once Tommy's talent is discovered, Cousin Kevin takes advantage of his young relative's newfound fame.

That's one of the many differences between the film and the play. Without divulging too many secrets, Bart offers a blunt comparison of the two productions.

"It's extremely different from the movie," Bart said from Boston where "Tommy" was playing prior to the Detroit shows. "In the play version, the people actually sing well," he said. (The most surprising talent in the show is Isaacs who proves to be a phenomenal singer with exceptional range.)

Realizing future: Cousin Kevin, played by Roger Bart (center), discovers his cousin Tommy's ability to play pinball while harassing the boy with two "local lads" - Anthony Galde (left) and Clarke Thorell (right) — in the rock opera "Tommy."

"If you want to refresh your memory (about the play), the last thing I'd want you to do is rent the movie.

"Ann-Margret rolling in baked beans . . . Maybe the guy who directed it was turned on by that or something. This is much more sort of along the lines of what Pete (Townshend) was trying to do. The ending reflects a little more maturity.... I think he imagined it to be like this.'

The most obvious change takes place in the beginning of the play when Tommy's father kills his mother's lover. In the film, it's the father who dies. Although it may irk those who respect the original movie, director Des McAnuff said it's the right of The Who's Pete Townshend to change his creation.

"There are people who really feel like they own this, that this has been part of them, and they don't want anything to change. They want nothing other than the original album and a concert version by The Who," said director Des McAnuff in the book "Tommy."

"But Pete certainly has the right to return to his own work and do what he pleases. It's a sacred right that a writer has. And what I think happens to those folks who are open to 'Tommy' is that they get completely caught up in the theater and the music — they're experiencing a true development and extension of the original album."

Part of the development of the 1990s version of "Tommy" is the result of the creative minds of the cast as well. Bart recalled one of his first meetings with Townshend: "He said, 'Have a great time, kids, and make it your own.'"

Tracey Langran, a dancer who has toured with the English pop band Pet Shop Boys, also didn't feel intimidated by performing material by Townshend in front of the rock leg-

"Pete Townshend is what made this very similar to doing a concert tour; he knew everyone's name," said Langran, who is the cast's dance captain and understudy for most of the women's parts. "He has this energy that's unbelievable."

Fans of the play must possess similar energy. Tickets are scarce for the Broadway performance, and the shows at the Masonic Temple are selling briskly. Bart said he believes this was the right time for "Tommy" because fans of the original album are now financially stable and able to spend $50-$100 on tickets for the show,

"I think you look at the target audience of Broadway: People who can afford it are over 50. The people who grew up on the album can come and enjoy it on Broadway."

He said it's also appealing for the 'twenty-something crowd," many of whom were too young to remember the album.

Although he admits to not being a big Who fan prior to auditioning for "Tommy," the music is what makes Bart excited to sing "the hardest music I've ever sang" including the song "Pinball Wizard."

"Every night I hear the overture and I can't wait to jump in," he said. "It's really a terrific piece. Thanks to bande like Nirvana, rock 'n'roll is still around. They've saved it. They've proved that "it's a valid American art form as opposed to something that's just a fad."

"Tommy" is at the Masonic Temple, 500 Temple, Detroit, through Sunday, Feb. 6. Tickets are priced at $25-$47.50. For more information, call (810) 645-6666 or (313) 832-

Artists show off new-found success at Ark

Starting over: Dan Navarro and Eric Lowen have found the support they need to revive their musical career with Parachute Records.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Dan Navarro and Eric Lowen have written successful tunes for a host of performers including Pat Benatar, the Bangles, David Lee Roth, Dave Edmunds, the Temptations and the Four Tops.

Yet two years ago the duo found that they couldn't revive their own career after releasing "Walking on a Wire" on Chameleon Records in 1990. Despite unsuccessful attempts at getting another record deal, they kept plugging along, touring as "Lowen & Navarro."

"We continued to tour without any tour support," Navarro said from a tour stop in Ardmore, Pa.

They wanted to make sure that their fans "knew we didn't just go away," he added.

One of their supporters who didn't stray was Tom Vickers, director of artist and repertoire for Mercury Records. He had the perfect home for Lowen & Navarro's music - Parachute records, which he recently revived. A former rock label, Parachute is geared toward adults who grew up listening to rock music but aren't interested in modern rock, Vickers said.

"... the adult progressive market is an up-and-coming format that encompasses a mixed bag of compatible musical styles, including singer/ songwriter, acoustic and electric folk, country and some aspects of jazz and blues," Vickers said. "These consumers grew up with rock and still love many of the artists that have shifted into the acoustic arena, like Eric Clapton and Rod Stewart.

"In their search for new artists and good songwriting, a lot of people have gravitated toward country music, which is now more popular than ever. Parachute's goal is to have that kind of quality songwriting but geared more toward people who grew up with rock music."

Lowen & Navarro's album "Broken Moon," which includes guest appearances by Navarro's cousin Dave Na-

Help is called for to handle distress about weight loss

BARBARA SCHIFF

Voice mail message: Barb,

I saw the "Company" show when you talked to some women, and a man, who lost huge amounts of weight. have a problem . . . a big problem. I continue to feel fat despite having lost 150 pounds.

When I buy clothes I take things off the rack that are far too big for me. I am always surprised when the big sizes don't fit. Also, I am worried about gaining the weight back.

I am preoccupied with this thought. I just don't know what to do about this.

Dear Caller,

You are distressed and need psychological counseling. If you do not know how to contact an experienced counselor on your own, please send me your address. I will send you information that will help you to do so.

The following is some information that I hope will give you greater perspective on your problem.

Often, men and women who lose large amounts of weight report "still feeling fat." It is possible that there may be both psychological and neurological reasons for those feel-

A clean-cut young black man stumbles unannounced into a Fifth Avenue apartment clutching at his side. He tells Flan and Ouisa Kitteridge, a middle-aged art dealer and his wife, that he was mugged in Central Park. He came here because he's a friend of the couple's children at Harvard.

When he introduces himself as Paul Poitier, son of the famous actor, he really gets the couple's . attention. He spends the evening and makes them dinner, helping Flan seal a $2 million art sale to an impressed foreign dealer.

That Paul is really a con-man should come as no surprise. If you didn't hear about John Guare's award-winning play "Six Degrees of Separation," you probably heard something about the muchpublicized case on which it was comes through the thought that anyone can be duped, especially when a famous person's name is dropped. But this just scrapes the surface of a story full of clever insights from Guare (who also wrote the screenplay) and director Fred Schepisi.

The director, who began his career in Australia with uncompromising films like "The Chant of Jimmy Blacksmith," understands the subtleties needed in a story like "Six Degrees." He gets big laughs at the foibles of his uppercrust characters, who at their most extreme, appear genuine and

Donald Sutherland and Stockard Channing have their best roles in years as the Kitteridges, both outraged and moved by the young con man. Despite his deception, Paul compares favorably to their own son and daughter, freshmen at Harvard, gagging on the silver spoon.

You can also make a connection between Paul and Flan, who are both cons in their own way. On more than one occasion, the art dealer manipulates customers by giving them the latest details in the continuing saga, which by now has hit "The New York Times.'

The story is told by the couple at dinner parties, at art openings and auctions, and each time it goes a little bit further. Intentionally complex, it draws you into each new chapter and keeps you guessing at the outcome.

Those who think that rapper and TV star Will Smith can't handle a role this complex need only look at him play directly to the camera, reviewing the highlights of his false father's career. We can see that he's performing for someone, but for now this little twist stays secret.

Among the more interesting notions in "Six Degrees of Separation" comes through the title, which says that we can connect to anyone else in the world through only six people. You can link the President of the United States to a gondolier in Venice through a chain of friends and relatives.

In between intellectual revelations, there's some amazing use of the Manhattan landscape, which you may think has been filmed from every angle imaginable until you see Schepisi take a crack at it.

From the script and direction to the smallest speaking parts, "Six Degrees of Separation" joins "The Snapper" as the year's first mustsee films.

The song which accompanies the intense trailers, "Pride (in the Name of Love)" isn't on the soundtrack album.

Lowen & Navarro are now touring to support "Broken Moon." The tour, which brings them to The Ark in Ann Arbor on Wednesday, Jan. 26, will include a Spanish version of "We Belong," a song they wrote for Pat Benatar.

Opening the show is Billy Falcon, another adult progressive musician who will play material from his upcoming album "Letters from a Paper Ship." Like Lowen & Navarro, Falcon was rediscovered by a long-time fan, Jon Bon Jovi. After a few meetings with Falcon, Bon Jovi signed him to his now-defunct, Mercuryaffiliated label Jambo.

The record deal along with recording his first album for Jambco, "Pretty Blue World," helped Falcon get back on his feet after the death of his wife.

"Most of my time (prior to the recording of "Pretty Blue World") was spent in a family situation. ... My wife was ill and passed away," said Falcon, who is now signed with Mercury Records.

After his wife died, Falcon found himself the single father of their daughter Rosie and drifted away from writing songs. Bon Jovi's interest in his music, however, sparked his creativity.

"For the first time in five years I felt that I was breathing," he "Pretty Blue World" included the hit "Power Windows," a song that convinced Bon Jovi to sign him. In the album "Letters from a Paper Ship," many of the songs point to Falcon's positive outlook even at the worst of times. For example, in "Cold Hard World" he sings: "It's a cold hard world. That's a cold hard fact. You break your heart while you break your back. Like a reckless train on a wild track it's a cold hard world.

Lowen & Navarro with special guest Billy Falcon perform at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 26, at The Ark, 6371/2 S. Main St., Ann Arbor. Tickets are $5. For more information, call (313) 761-1451, (313) 761-1800 or (810) 645-6666.

Blazers spike Regina

he Livonia Ladywood team completed its Catholic League Central division sweep over Harper Woods Regina with a 15-8, 15-4 volleyball victory Thursday over the visiting Saddlelites.

Ladywood is now 11-4 overall and 4-0 in the Central.

Anne Poglits paced the victorious Blazers with five kills and four ace serves.

Lyndi Paling and Stacey Judd contributed three kills apiece.

Deborah Sobczak and Nicole Vondracek chipped in with three and two aces, respectively.

Kristy Walker and Shannon Swish combined for 15 digs, while setter Renae Rozell had 11 assists.

Rozell also had three aces as the Blazers won Jan. 20 at Regina in a makeup match, 15-0, 15-4. ■ In another match Thursday, visiting Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard defeated Livonia Clarenceville in a non-leaguer, 8-15, 15-13, 15-7.

Jaime Zemke had 10 kills, four solo blocks and three aces in a losing cause.

Other Clarenceville statistical leaders included Wendy Roy, nine kills and eight solo blocks; Joanna Galuszka, 15 digs; Chris Nunnery, 13 digs and six aces; and Kristen Przegendza, 19 assists. Clarenceville is 9-4-1 overall.

Holowicki hits new milestone

The anticipation finally ended Friday night for Redford Catholic Central basketball coach Bernie Holowicki, who reached the 600 mark in victories with a win over Harper Woods Notre Dame.

By Steve Kowalski STAFF WRITER

They threw a victory party Friday night at Redford Catholic Central, complete with a cake for legendary coach Bernie Holowicki.

All would agree there was nothing stale about the cake or the coach.

Holowicki, who works as hard today as he did in 1953 when his coaching career started at Detroit St. Hedwig, earned career win 600 with a 78-43 victory over visiting Harper Woods Notre Dame.

Holowicki, 600-213 overall, is the third high school basketball coach in Michigan to reach 600, joining a club that includes retired coaches Lofton Greene of River Rouge (739 wins) and Paul Cook of Lansing Eastern (635). CC is 5-3 overall, 3-1 in the Catholic League Central Division. "To have my sons and friends in here and CC to give me the party, that's real nice," Holowicki, 62, said. "I never expected this. I just thought the game's over, that's it. Life goes on, we have Warren DeLaSalle and that 6-foot-9 kid (Jim Miller) on Tuesday.'

As for the cake, it was baked Monday night by the mother of CC senior guard Andy Kummer in anticipation of Holowicki winning No. 600 on Tuesday against New Boston Huron. That game was postponed due to the cold weather but the cake stayed fresh sitting in the Kummers' garage the next three days.

All that was missing on Seniors Night was 600 candles.

"Coach Holowicki is a great guy and I love to be a part of this,' Kummer said. "He's kind of like a dad to us. He'll cuss you out on the court and tell you what he thinks but then he's your best friend after the game."

The milestone came against ND coach Mike Maltese, who played for Holowicki at Warren DeLaSalle before graduating in 1971. Holowicki took over the next season at CC.

Maltese said he gave Holowicki a congratulatory card before the game. With ND's leading scorer and rebounder, 6-7 sophomore Tim Mott, out with bronchitis. Maltese figured the card would be open after the game.

The Irish fell to 2-6 overall, 0-4 in the Central Division.

"Those guys (CC's players) were hungry to get him it." Maltese said. "I think of coach Holowicki as someone special. If somebody had to be it, I'm glad he got 600 against me."

CC ended the first quarter with nine straight points for a 13-4 lead. The Shamrocks started the second quarter with an 11-2 run to go ahead

24-6 en route to a 40-16 halftime lead. Three CC players scored in double figures led by 6-foot junior guard Mike Ridley with 17 points on six-of-10 shooting, including two threepoint shots. Kummer made all five of his field goal attempts and finished with 13 points and sophomore guard Justin Hoener added 11 points.

- Joe Daly, a 6-7 senior center, scored all eight of his points in the first half and he had a team-high six rebounds before Holowicki emptied his bench in the second half. The Shamrocks enjoyed a 34-27 rebounding advantage with Hoener and Ridley adding five each.

Seldom-used sophomore forward Richard Turk had six points off the bench and reserve junior forward Jon Kandes put the finishing touches on the win with a three-pointer at the

"I like the way the second group played, they were very unselfish and played great defense," Holowicki said.

There was concern after the game, however, for senior guard Andy Slankster, who injured his elbow and hip in a fall to the floor.

ND shot only 33 percent from the field (15-46). The Irish, who trailed 58-22 after three quarters, were led by senior guard Anthony Vitale's 13 points.

Spartans skate by Franklin

By Brad Emons Staff Writer

Livonia Stevenson continued its mastery in hockey Friday over city rival Franklin at Edgar Arena.

The Spartans broke open a relatively close game on a pair of goals by

Gino Gauci in the final period to beat the Patriots, 6-2.

The victory puts Stevenson atop the Suburban High School Hockey League with a 7-1 record. The Spartans are 8-5 overall.

Franklin falls to 5-6-1 overall and 2-5-1 in the SHSHL.

The Patriots' last victory over Stevenson occurred 10 years to the day - Jan. 21, 1984. Stevenson beat Franklin before the holiday break, 7-1, but this one was closer than the score indicated. "Franklin came out fired up and Terry Jobbitt (Franklin's coach) had them prepared," Stevenson coach Matt Mulcahy said. "They played different and they played harder. They were physical. We can play that game, but we prefer the finesse style.

It was good strategy." Stevenson jumped out to a 3-1 first-period lead. The Spartans scored only 23 seconds apart at 7:04 and 7:27, as Nathan Caladia got the first from Kevin Berger and Gauci. The second came when Kyle McNeilance scored from Jason Wesley and Jeff Blazok. Franklin cut the margin to 2-1 on Dominic Catanzarite's power-play goal from Kevin Bernard and Joe O'Connell, but Stevenson's Brian Calka answered with just 42 seconds left in the period on an assist from McNeilance.

During the first intermission, Jobbitt changed goalies, pulling starter Pete Stasevich in favor of freshman Brendon Frazier.

"We were unsure right up until 5:30 (p.m.) on who we were going to start," said the Franklin coach. "I thought Brendon came in and played a tough game."

Just 1:42 into the second period, Matt Harrigan scored for the Patriots from Jason Weier, cutting the deficit to 3-2.

At 13:31 of the same period, Berger scored for Stevenson from Mike Lanspeary and Blazok for a 4-2 advan-

"Berger really came through in the clutch," Mulcahy said. "He had a man on his back, got the shot off, and

But the turning point came late in the second and early in the third period when the Spartans successfully killed off a man-disadvantage for six

"We took a timeout during that stretch to give our kids a rest and I think that helped us immensely," Mulcahy said. "Our goalie (Eric Rosenau) gave up a fluky goal early, but he came back to make some big

"And our assistant coach, Mike Harris. did a nice job working all seven of our defensemen into the game.

Stevenson put it away in the final period on Gauci's short-handed breakaway goal from Doug DelVigna at 11:45. Gauci capped the scoring with only 2:20 left on assists from Brian Wilson and McNeilance. Franklin, however, had its chances.

The Patriots fired 25 shots on goal (to Stevenson's 30).

"They capitalized on our mistakes, while we weren't able to do the same on the other end," Jobbitt said. "We gave up four soft goals on four major mistakes.

"But we gave a total team effort on every shift. We worked on some things and I thought we played together as a team for the first time all season. We played our systems. I'm happy with the way our kids played."

Mulcahy said the victory was im-"The league title is up for grabs."

Mulcahy said. "We have a tough schedule coming up and it's a case where anybody can beat anybody this year."

Backyard brawl

Belleville overhauls Wayne down stretch, 57-53

BY NEAL ZIPSER

The Wayne-Belleville rivalry, without question, has been one of western Wayne County's most compétitive over the past decade.

The two schools have either won or shared the Wolverine A Conference title the past 10 years. Now competing in the newly formed Mega Conference (Red Division), the rivalry hasn't subsided, as Belleville pulled out a 57-53 victory Friday at Wayne in a battle for first place. "This is my first year attending Belleville and all the team has talked about was Wayne - now I know why," said 6-foot-7 senior center Scott Chatfield, a transfer from Ypsilanti Lincoln who scored 13 points off the bench for the Tigers.

"If you don't get up for Wayne, you're going to lose." Belleville coach Mike Garland said.

With the win, Belleville takes over the lead in the division at 5-0. The Tigers are 8-2 overall. Wayne slipped to 4-1 in the division and 7-3 overall. Wayne will try to avenge the defeat Feb. 22 at Belleville.

"You better believe we're looking forward to that date," said senior Rod Hardison, who led Wayne with 15 points.

(Freshman Lorenzo Guess added 14 for the Zebras.)

BASKETBALL

The Tigers took advantage of two major mental lapses by Wayne and dominated the boards in the second half to escape with the victory. The first mistake occurred late in the third quarter, with Guess on the bench nursing his four fouls.

With the Zebras ahead 40-37, Belleville's Michael Foley missed two free throws, but the rebound was put in by teammate Eric Summers. Foley stole the inbounds pass and was fouled. He proceeded to make both foul shots and gave the Tigers a 41-40 advantage.

Wayne regained the lead on a Hardison triple with 2:15 remaining, 50-49. The Tigers missed three shots underneath, but got a fourth chance when Foley grabbed the rebound. The senior guard quickly launched a triple.

Foley, who had struggled all night from the perimeter, missed the three-pointer but was fouled and proceeded to make all three free throws.

"It was sort of a forced shot, but I felt good for some reason, and felt comfortable even though my shot wasn't failing," Foley said.

Believille extended the lead to 55-50 after a dunk and free throw by Chatfield. Two more free throws by Foley and a Hardison triple accounted for the final score.

"The last 15 seconds of the third and the foul on the three were mental mistakes that proved critical," Wayne coach Chuck Henry said. "It was a typical game between us, and the team that played smarter in the final two minutes was going to win." For the game, the Tigers were 21 for 32 at the foul. line, compared to Wayne's 16 for 27 on its attempts. Foley converted his last nine free-throw attempte. Belleville also held a 40-26 advantage on the boards.

We were doing what we wanted to do -- getting the ball inside and drawing the fouls," Garland said. "I learned that from Chuck when I was a young coach. That's how he used to beat us."

Believille had trailed by as many as seven in the second quarter before closing the gap to one prior halftime on a three-pointer by Foley.

The third quarter had to be temporarily halted as a fight srupted in the crowd and spilled onto the court. When play resumed, the teams continued to trade leads, as the half featured 11 lead changes.

"They came in here last year and beat us and that gave us more incentive," Hardison said. "But tonight it could have gone either way and it just happened to go to Belleville."

Recruiting coup

CC's Magyar commits to WSU

By Steve Kowalski Staff Writer

Redford Catholic Central lineman Brett Magyar committed to Wayne State University after turning down a full scholarship offer to Central Michigan University.

The 6-foot-3, 240-pound Magyar joins Plymouth Salem lineman Steve Hurst in committing to WSU.

WSU's scholarship pays only for tuition and books.

Had Magyar accepted CMU's offer, he would have been the third CC player this year to commit to a Division I program. In December, lineman Doug Brzezinski committed to Boston College and lineman Nick Kallas committed to Iowa.

Magyar was unavailable Friday but his father, Alex Magyar, commented

"We're happy with the decision he made," the elder Magyar said. "Both schools offered a lot. Brett had to make a decision based on the facts he had and that's what he did."

High school seniors can sign national letters of intent Wednesday, Feb. 2.

Observerland's top kickers, North Farmington's Scot Lord and CC's Adam Borchert, remain uncommitted.

Lord, a punter and tight end who scored a 33 on his ACT, has been appointed to West Point but is still considering Miami (Ohio), Oklahoma and Arizona.

Lord would play both positions if he attends West Point but would only punt at Miami (Ohio), Oklahoma or Arizona. Because of scholarship reductions and reluctance to give punters scholarships at Division I schools, Lord might

"I think I'm Division I material, but if push comes to shove, I could always go Division II," Lord said. "Division I schools have only so many scholarships and they don't want to waste any on punters, but punting is an important part of the game.'

Borchert, who scored 35 out of a possible 36 on the ACT and has a 4.9 grade point average taking honors classes at CC, will decide between Ivy League schools Harvard, Yale and Pennsylvania.

Borchert attempted only three field goals because most of CC's drives ended in touchdowns and made two, with a long of 43. More than half of Borchert's kickoffs reached the end zone.

Pats stand tall vs. Northville

Livonia Franklin is becoming a team of action under first-year coach Larry Jackson.

Behind Jason Maschke's gamehigh 24 points, the Patriots pulled off a mild surprise Friday. downing Northville in a Western Lakes Activities Association (Western Division) game, 68-59.

Franklin is 4-3 overall and 2-1 in the WLAA, while Northville dipped to 6-3 and 0-3.

Franklin, who opened a 25-9 first-quarter advantage, led wireto-wire.

Northville cut the deficit to one during the second half, but couldn't get over the hump.

Franklin held off the Mustangsy by hitting 20 of 26 free throws for 77 percent.

"We played hard and played with a lot of determination.' Jackson said. "We didn't want Northville's size to intimidate us. We wanted to take the ball strong inside and hit the 15- to 20-foot jump shot. I thought we played

Maschke, a 6-foot-3 senior transfer from Redford Catholic Central, also pulled down nine rebounds. Paul Kruschka, a 6-2 senior forward, added 15 points.

John Buser, a 6-6 senior forward, led the Mustangs with 22. Josh Williams, a 6-8 senior center, added 12, while John Ferrar contributed 10.

JOHN GLENN 81, W.L. CENTRAL 57: Westland John Glenn continued to roll in WLAA play Priday behind senior forward Tony Goins' 25 points, 11 rebounds and eight assists. Glenn is 6-1 overall and 3-0 in the WLAA (tied with Plymouth Salem). Guy Rucker, a 6-9 junior center, contributed 22 points and nine rebounds. Brent Washington and Tariq Horne chipped in with 10 points apiece.

Scott Emert led Walled Lake Central (6-3, 2-1), which could not overcome $342-26 halftime deficit, with 12 points. Craig Hill and Eric Yaklin each contributed 10.

E CHURCHILL SO, W.L. WESTERN 48: Livonia Churchill won its second straight Priday with a WLAA victory at Walled Lake Western. Senior forward Adam Bowser and senior center Bill Morris each tallied 10 points, while Jaime Williston and Jedd Thorderson each contributed eight.

Williston helped put the clamps in the second half on Western's high acorer Paul Whiting, who finished with 23. Whiting had 17 first-half points, but only six in the second.

We played a little better defense and the kids arose to the challenge," said Churchill coach Tom Lang, whose team trailed 30-25 at intermission. "I was proud of the way they played. Two wins in a row really makes us feel good over here."

Western is winless in eight tries, while Churchill is 3-6 overall and 1-2 in the WLAA.

SALEM 79, STEVENSON 60: Senior guard Sanjeev Seth scored a career-high 24 points, including six 3-pointers Priday, leading host Plymouth Salem (8-1, 3-0) to the WLAA win over Livonia Stevenson (1-7, 1-2).

James Head, a 6-foot-7 senior forward headed for the University of Iowa, contributed 17 points and 14 rebounds. Senior forward Adam Hammons added 12

Steve Jacobs and Brett Perris each scored 14 for the Spartans, Chris Chichila added 13. Stevenson trailed 40-33 at intermission before Salem pull away late in the third quarter on a couple of three-pointers by Seth, followed by another trey from Jeff Lamb.

E LUTHERAN WESTLAND 70. HAMTRAMCK 68: Junior guard Chris Tiernan scored 20 points Friday, propelling Lutheran High Westland (2-5, 1-1) to the Metro Conference triumph over the visiting Cosmos (2-6, 2-1).

Senior guards Andy Manthei and Jim Hoeft each chipped in with 10 points. Manthei also had five steals and three assists.

Andre Turner, a 6-6 senior forward, led Hamtramck and all scoters with 22 points. Walter Wright, a senior forward, added 10. "We kept our composure and we were able to protect the ball better this game," said Lutheran High coach Scott Wiemer, whose team held off a 20-15 fourth-quarter run by Hamtramck. "We also did a good job rebounding. We were able to check them off the boards." CLARENCEVILLE 75, CRAMBROOK 44: All 11 players scored Friday as Livonia Clarenceville Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook (3-5, 0-3). Cousins Mark and John Kalai scored 23 and 20 points, respectively, to lead the victorious Trojans. Chris Smith added nine.

Madonna ends skid

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

It was a night of firsts Wednesday for Madonna University's men's basketball team:

■ The Fighting Crusaders held two-consecutive opponents to under 100 points;

■ They found an inside game to complement their defense;

■ They actually had a lead at halftime. All were first-time-this-season accomplishments for Madonna.

Oh yes — there was something else. The Crusaders won a home game, beating Concordia College 102-97. Attitude, according to coach Bill Sharpe, was as big a factor as anything in Madonna's win. "They came out and made it known they were going to win," he said. "They really tried to work the game play. A lot of them just decided their man wasn't going to score on them.' It showed, in the first half in particular when the Crusaders powered in front 61-52. Unlike earlier efforts this season, when they seemed to live or die (the latter ruled by a wide margin) by the three-point shot, they've cut back on perimeter shots and tried to work for better one in closer.

Against Concordia, Madonna attempted just 21 threes (making seven). The Cardinals were 9-of-21 on treys.

What turned the tide was the play of the Crusaders' big men, 6foot-7 Brandon Slone and 6-8 Sam Kuehn. Both freshmen recorded career-highs in scoring, Slone pouring in 28 points and Kuehn 13. Kuehn also nabbed a collegiate-best 11 rebounds; Slone had nine.

Dan Dombrow netted 12 points and Doug Soper had 11. Soper, the sophomore point guard, also had 11 assists and five boards. Concordia got 26 points from Brent Pontillo and 23 from Joe Pechota.

There was another first for the Crusaders: They got a lead and held it. The previous Saturday, they had rallied to tie University of Michigan-Dearborn midway through the second half, only to let up and lose by 17.

This time, they withstood the pressure. With four minutes to play, Concordia was down by 12. With less than a minute left, the game was tied. But Slone knocked down a pair of free throws and Madonna's defense held. Soper iced the victory with 13 seconds to go, making 3-of-4 free throws after a foul and technical foul were called against the Cards.

"Two weeks ago, Concordia would have beat us," said Sharpe, whose team ended a 10-game losing streak with the win. Madonna is now 2-19. "They just made up their mind Concordia wasn't going to beat them. I think the freshmen are coming together now."

Concordia was hardly top-notch competition. The Cards are now 1-15. Their errant free throw shooting was their undoing: 12-of-27 (44 percent) to Madonna's 29of-43 (67 percent).

MADONNA (WOMEN) 73, CONCORDIA 58: It's been an uphill struggle for the Lady Crusaders, but they finally reached the break-even point with Thursday's win at Concordia.

That was the good news. Here's the bad: Starting point guard Shawn Bannon injured her right knee with two minutes left in the first half. The extent of the injury was unknown.

We'll have to wait for the swelling to go down," said Madonna coach Bill Potter. The injury occurred when Bannon came to a jump stop as she went in for a layup. I feel it will hurt us without her leadership," said Potter. "But I also feel we have quality people that can take her spot - if she "It's always bad when you lose your No. 1 guard." Make that No. 1 player. Bannon, a junior, is a transfer from Central Michigan University, where she was a starter. She leads the Crusaders in scoring, assists and steals. She had scored six points before being hurt. They hardly needed her against Concordia (5-13 overall). Jill Burt (21 points) and Stephanie Crelley (20 points, nine rebounds) picked up the scoring slack quite well; Meegan Marlatt (seven assists) and Tracy Prybylski (six assists), who took over for Bannon, distributed the ball.

Vikki Koenig contributed as well, with 13 points and eight boards. The win evened Madonna's record at 8-8.
