Nearly 60 percent of Westland voters supported Proposal A, which will raise the state sales tax. With homeowners looking forward to a major property tax break, school officials remained worried about the financial impact on their budget.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Westland voters favored Proposal A by a 3-to-2 margin Tuesday, preferring a sales tax increase instead of higher state income taxes to pay for public education.

City voters supported the proposal 59.5 percent to 40.5 percent, casting 11,378 votes for it and 7,728 against it, unofficial totals showed. The margin of victory was significant — but not as overwhelming as statewide results. In a heavy turnout, 37.5 percent of Westland's 50,849 voters went to the polls — nearly 9 percent more than voted in the city's November mayoral race. City clerk Diane Fritz came close with her 40-percent prediction. Proposal A won in 37 of the city's 41 voting precincts, lost in three and tied in one.

"I think the proposal is very bad for low-income people," voter Jennifer Marck said as she walked into Edison Elementary School to vote Tuesday afternoon. She and her husband are in the process of buying a house. "I think property taxes and income taxes are much better for people who don't have much money," Marck said. "A sales tax hurts because there are certain things that everybody has to buy."

Though she rejected Proposal A, Marck didn't relish having to choose between a sales tax increase and an income tax hike.

"I feel like we had no choice at all," she said. "And I thought a lot of the commercials were unfair. I don't think they've been telling us the whole picture."

Westland's Mike McCarthy, a 36year-old construction worker, voted for Proposal A.

"I just don't think we can afford the higher income tax," he said. "I think the sales tax is more fair."

McCarthy noted that out-of-state residents who spend money in Michigan will also pay the higher sales tax, boosting in-state revenues.

McCarthy expects to fare better with Proposal A than he would have under the backup plan. Moreover, he helped his retired parents compute their finances and said they, too, will be better off with the proposal.

The Wayne-Westland school board took no official position on Proposal A. With its passage, however, Superintendent Larry Thomas said the district — at best — should be able to maintain current programs.

"I don't believe Proposal A is going to help education as it was advertised to do," he said Wednesday.

Many school programs wereslashed last year amid a severe budget crunch, and Proposal A won't provide the money to restore them, Thomas said. His administration will have to look for "new ways" to improve finances, he said.

The board will have to borrow money more frequently, Thomas said, because state-aid payments to the district will arrive later under the new financing plan than in the past.

"The cash flow," he said, "is going to be terrible."

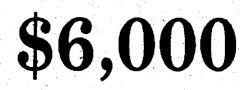

Although the district will receive nearly 3 percent more in state revenues, Thomas said the board this year had to use nearly $7 million from its general fund balance to pay for programs.

"We're probably going to break just about even under Proposal A," he said.

Tax-weary Westland voters — who have routinely rejected local tax proposals — welcome the property tax cut that accompanied school-funding changes.

But, despite the sweeping changes and Proposal A's passage, school officials remain worried. New projections indicate the school board will end the fiscal year with a mere $31,472 in surplus dollars — compared to $6.7 million of one year ago.

trip raises fury

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Despite strong opposition from their colleagues, three Wayne-Westland school board members will attend a weeklong national convention in New Orleans that will cost local taxpayers about $6,000.

Board members Mathew McCusker, Patricia Brown and Debra Fowlkes are registered to attend the National School Boards Association convention April 7-13 in the lively Louisiana city — the state's largest.

But some board members, citing severe budget problems and an earlier moratorium on out-of-state travel for school administrators, strongly criticized the decision.

"It appears improper," board member Richard LeBlanc said, adding later, "It has the appearance of being a perk."

Board president Francis "Bud" Winter chose the trio to attend the convention, despite a recommendation from Superintendent Larry Thomas that only one of the board's seven members make the trip.

"I don't think that there's anything improper about what we're doing at all," Winter said.

His decision has drawn heated criticism from LeBlanc and board members Laurel Raisanen and Vickl Welty.

"I feel that you are acting as a whole board in some of your decisions," Raisanen told Winter during Monday night's meeting.

Raisanen chastised Winter for the $6,000 expense that comes amid a "huge" budget crunch. The district's

Group trying to protect nature site gets reprieve

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

2A(W),

A Westland citizens committee has received a significant boost in its effort to protect a 50-acre nature area northeast of Palmer Road and Wildwood.

The group has been given six months to seek grant monies amid hopes of protecting the wooded area known as Sassefras Trails, which could otherwise be sold to developers by the Wayne-Westland school board.

The committee also wants to transform the old Wilson school — on the same site - into a nature and science education center that would complement Sassafras Trails.

The school board has decided to give the committee, Sassafras Canopy, until Sept. 1 to seek grant monies. Even if the group succeeds, however, questions remain about who would own the property and oversee it.

The board has considered the possibility of selling the land, once used for student field trips. But, bowing to mounting pressure from citizens and local government officials, the board has declared a six-month moratorium on the issue.

Opposition to the possible sale increased during Monday's school board meeting as Sassafras Canopy drew support from Canton Township clerk Loren Bennett and Westland City Council members Charles Pickering, Sandra Cicirelli, Glenn Anderson and Sharon Scott - all of whom attended the session.

Bennett urged the board not to err as he said the Plymouth-Canton board did when it sold land near Cherry Hill and Palmer for a 40-acre subdivision.

Pickering warned that — if the land is sold --- the city council can't block a developer from building on it as long as, zoning requirements are met.

"Once you let go of it to a private interest, you have lost that control," he said.

Pickering indicated that the city should consider joining efforts to preserve Sassafras Trails. He voiced concerns that the citizens committee might have a difficult time getting a grant.

Already, some board members have said they won't vote to sell the land.

"Every time I go down Wildwood, I want to see the trees there," board vice in wetlands and animal life. president Mathew McCusker said.

Board member Richard LeBlanc, however, said he wants the school district freed from liability for the land because crimes have occurred there. At least one sexual assault has been reported in the area in recent months.

If Westland city officials agreed to assume responsibility for the land, Le-Blanc said, "I would vote to give it away today.'

Jack Smiley, executive director of the Detroit Audubon Society, commended the board for delaying any decision about Sassafras Trails.

"I think this is a very wise and prudent move," he said, saying the land is "rich"

If sold, the money from the sale wouldn't go far in solving the school district's financial problems, Smiley said.

He commended nature and science programs in Birmingham, Troy and Ann Arbor and said, "I want to see Wayne-Westland schools back up there in that regard, as well."

Some developers have indicated an interest in buying the land. But district officials are telling the potential buyers for now, at least — that any sale is on hold.

In another development, the board agreed Monday to lease 11,000 square feet of Wilson school - or 25 percent of the building --- to a day-care company for three years. But there was no talk of selling the property, a signal that Sassafras Trails supporters found encouraging.

Livonia to offer course in Japanese

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

Come September, Livonia will join the growing number of school districts across the nation which offer a course in beginning Japanese.

The one-hour pilot program will be taught at Stevenson High School by Melisia Pytläk, a-foreign language and social studies teacher at Holmes Middle School. Pytlak, recently certified to teach Japanese, helped write the course she will teach.

The Livonia Board of Education approved the course for one year Monday.

"We're trying it for the first time, so we need the flexibility to change," said Ken Watson, director of secondary education. "We will monitor it and at the end of the year we will evaluate it and make a decision about what to do next.' After one year, the course could be expanded into all three high schools, or even dropped if it doesn't generate the minimum 19 students needed to fill the class.

Because it is tough to find teachers certified to teach Japanese, it could also be one of the classes telecast districtwide when the district gets its new technology in place.

The class will be open to all high school students. But, realistically, most of the students will come from Stevenson as students from other schools would have to transport themselves for a one-hour class.

The course is the first non-Western language to be taught in Livonia Public Schools. Educators increasingly believe Japanese is the second most important language in today's global economy.

The course will stress both the language and the culture of Japan. Because Japanese is a difficult language to learn. Watson said parents might be surprised at the lack of fluency at the end of one year of study.

"We must make it clear to parents that they won't be as fluent and that there'll be more emphasis on culture," Watson said.

Besides English, the district now offers courses in French, Spanish and German.

$6.7-million budget surplus of one year ago is expected to plummet to just $32,472 by June 30, based on the latest projections.

Much of the uproar over the New Orleans trip occurred behind the scenes, but the issue spilled into public view Monday when Winter, Brown, McCusker and Fowlkes voted to reschedule an April 11 board meeting that the convention-goers would have missed.

Raisanen and LeBlanc opposed

It appears improper. It has the appearance of being a perk.'

they can report on the topics when they return to the district," Winter said Monday, reading from a prepared statement.

"Unlike past school boards, this school board has a monstrous task that lies ahead," Winter "With the undertaking of said. new school boundaries, the middle-school concept, increased violence in the schools and several other issues, it is important that board members be exposed to as much information as possible, not only at the state and local level, but at the national level." Winter said he chose Fowlkes and Brown because they are the newest board members. Fowlkes was appointed in January, and Brown was elected last June.

Winter selected McCusker — the board's "most senior" member because he is among 21 directors with the Michigan Association of School Boards.

Richard LeBlanc

McCusker "will be very active with that group while in New Orleans," Winter said. Winter said he has given board members specific assignments. For example, Fowlkes will learn about human relations issues and Brown will study what other districts are doing to develop nature centers, he said. Wayne-Westland has been under fire from residents to use 50 acres of undeveloped land it owns near Palmer Road and Wildwood for environmental trip, LeBlanc said board members can learn about similar issues by attending less-expensive, in-state conferences.

Raisanen implied that Winter's decision violated a moratorium on out-of-state travel that was imposed last year, amid budget cuts. But Winter said the ban applied to district administrators - not board members.

LeBlanc said some administrators have contacted him to register complaints about the New Orleans trip.

School board questions M. L. King Day policies

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Wayne-Westland parent has touched off a debate after claiming that her daughter was treated unfairly for missing school — and a final exam — on Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday.

Sandra Barrow's daughter Ecole, a John Glenn 11th-grader, had a perfect attendance record this school year until she stayed home Jan. 17 to observe King's birthday. The girl nearly lost academic credit until her mother fought the issue and a teacher let her make up the exam.

Barrow's concerns have sparked a larger debate about whether Wayne-Westland schools shouldclose down for King's birthday, and whether attendance policies are unfair at John Glenn and Wayne Memorial High.

At Wayne Memorial, students may opt out of a final exam if they have a perfect attendance record. At John Glenn, students may avoid finals if they have missed no more than two days.

However, individual teachers may require all students to take the exam, and that's where Wayne resident Ecole Barrow encountered problems, her mother has said.

Confusion over the different policies has sparked some support for Barrow's position that schools should close down for the King holiday. In fact, school board member Debra Fowlkes said during Monday night's meeting that she is "committed" to making King's birthday a school holiday.

Fowlkes also called for a uniform attendance policy for the two high schools.

Superintendent Larry Thomas, who said he believes a King holiday should be considered, noted that officials would have to negotiate such a decision with district employees. The proposed holiday could be subject to talks as early as this year.

Wayne resident Val Wolf addressed the board and labeled it "frightful" that John Glenn and Wayne Memorial have different attendance rules.

"That's not fair," she said.

Some, including board member Richard LeBlanc, have questioned whether any student should be allowed to opt out of final exams. Other officials have noted that exams typically aren't scheduled on King's birthday.

In a related development, principals of the two high schools said Monday that they have seen some benefits of letting students miss final exams based on good attendance.

Wayne Principal Ronald Stratton said more students now have perfect attendance, which he said could lead to better work habits.

"Companies want people who come to work every day," he said. John Glenn Principal Dennis board member Debra Fowlkes • Connolly provided some statistics said during Monday night's meet- regarding his school's policy.

A survey of 81 teachers showed that 84 percent let students opt out of exams if they miss no more than two days, while 10 percent don't, he said: The question didn't apply to other teachers most of whom teach impaired students, he said.

Virtually all of the teachers who. let students opt out believe that, the policy has improved attendance. Connolly said. Most of the teachers said they plan to continue the policy in their classrooms, he said.

The policy at John Glenn began this semester, Connolly said.

"Judging by the first semester, I would say it's very successful at John Glenn," he said.

Meanwhile, longtime National Association for the Advancement of Colored People activist Jim Netter spoke about King's birthday and said students receive conflicting messages about its importance. Noting that the Wayne-Westland district serves Westland, Wayne, Inkster and Canton Township, he said the cities of Wayne and Inkster observe the holiday while Westland and Canton don't.

But Netter suggested that the school district should observe King's birthday as a holiday, so that students wanting to attend community functions honoring King could do so without the risk of losing credit.

Incinerator authority pushes for approval to sell electricity

BY LEANNE ROGERS

Efforts are moving forward to sell electricity generated by trash burned at the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority.

Several steps are still needed, including getting a $5-million grant for air pollution controls already approved but not awarded by the state Department of Natural Resources.

Council members of the five-city authority — Garden City, Westland, Wayne, Dearborn Heights and Inkster — are being updated on the project, which has been in progress for over three years.

"This waste-to-energy project is recycling in a real sense." Waste is becoming something useful. Contrary to what you might hear, this does fit with recycling," said Tom Barnett of Central Wayne Energy Recovery, a limited partnership operating a joint venture with the authority.

After lengthy negotiations, an agreement has been reached with Detroit Edison, which will buy electricity generated by the waste-to-energy project. Barnett said he expects the Public Services Commission to approve the agreement later this month.

The plan is to reopen a third line at the incinerator, taking the daily capacity to 800 tons, and generate electricity through new boilers that would be installed.

For the member communities, part of the benefit of selling the electricity would be to stabilize the fees charged for solid waste.

A concern among the communities has been whether they can find enough additional trash from non-member contacts to produce the energy sold to Edison.

The member communities have reduced tonnage sent to the incinerator through composting and recycling programs. By 1995, state law mandates the elimination of grass clippings and leaves from basic trash disposal.

"The composting has been successful. Grass has been a real problem at the incinerator," said authority executive director Erik Schaeffer.

Although the tonnage processed will be reduced due to composting and recycling, Schaeffer noted the materials being removed are difficult to burn, increasing energy costs.

The private partner will be responsible for getting the additional solid waste, Barnett said.

"We are aware that the additional waste is a concern. We are talking with neighboring communities and private haulers," he said. "It's a chicken-andegg thing. Livonia and Dearborn want to see that the authority is committed to this."

The DNR is delaying the $5-million Solid Waste Alternative Program grant, Barnett said, over some regulations and requirements that were being placed on the project. He said he expects that will be resolved within the next two weeks.

Barnett said he expects the service agreement with the authority to be completed by mid-1994, additional waste to be secured by the end of the year, permits to be obtained by in early 1995, and — following a construction period — the facility to be ready to operate in mid-1997.

Young readers face DoubleDare

Westland middle or junior high school students who patronize the Noble Library in Livonia can get involved in the annual Battle of the Books DoubleDare.

Registration is scheduled next month for the reading planned for seventh- and eighth-graders. The "battle" will be held at noon Saturday, May 14, in the auditorium of the Livonia Civic Center Library.

The kick-off meeting will begin 7 p.m. Thursday, April 7, in Room B of the Civic Center Library. Preregistration is required and may be done by calling for teens based on the Nickelodeon game show DoubleDare. Participants earn prizes by answering questions about books from the official list of battle books.

Those interested in participating should form teams of four readers with one adult sponsor. Registration forms are available at Noble, Sandburg or Civic Center library. Sample questions and strategies for winning will be discussed at the April 7 kick-off meeting along with complete battle rules. belt, and Kirk of Our Savior Church, on Cherry Hill between Newburgh and Wayne Road.

schools in the district, which includes, the northern section of Westland, submitted two pieces of art which Hardy framed at cost for the exhibit.

The guidelines suggested teachers .choose the art works from a specific art lesson. The learning objectives of the lessons are listed on a card next to each piece on the wall.

"The art teachers voluntarily met with Laura to discuss the best ways to make this happen," said Slavik. "We wanted a diversity of products from kindergarten through sixth grade. take advantage of it."

Two of the students' mothers thought the project served multiple purposes as well.

"It's a self-esteem booster. They feel like a celebrity. I think it's nice for the children to have their art matted and framed," said Wendy Kolodzy, whosedaughter Allison is exhibiting an abstract work.

"Ever since we learned her work was one of those chosen for the show, she's been beaming. She's always loved art," said Orozco. "Certainly things like this help motivate. It encourages them to try other things."

The children had their own rea-reproductions of 19th century maritime paintings and discussing the big ships, she created the work illustrating the age of commercial navigation. Dark, foreboding waves seem ready to topple the white sailed beauty.

"I thought it was fun. We got the lesson about the clipper ships and got to paint. I like painting," said Elizabeth.

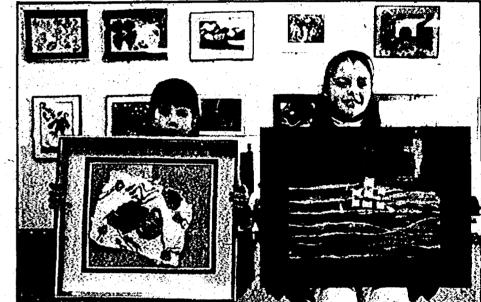

Along with Orozco and Kolodzy's, pieces not to be missed are: a green and orange elephant by Danny Lapping, grade one at Garfield; an impressionistic landscape by Sara Geppert, grade four, Taylor; a running horse by Daniel Trubak, grade two, Grant; Matissa like floral by Michaela Wasek, grade two, Cass; an abstract acrylic by Sara Makmoura, grade three intermediate, Webster; spotted horse by Victoria Rankin, grade two, Cleveland; Rousseau-like floral by Casi Pasciak, grade six, Hoover; unknown animals by Cathie Randall, grade four, Tyler; and acrylic pumpkin by Mike Pyrkosz, grade six, Buchanan.

Large: This large dragon — or is it a dinosaur? — was the tempera point creation of Washington second-grader Marc Molitar.

Impressionist: Sara Markmoura, an Intermediate III student at Webster, did this acrylic, now on display.

"We didn't want to focus on a contest, rather on excellence. We wanted it to be in conjunction with the school district's arts festival (which opened March 14).

Hardy and Slovik initially discussed the project when Slavik was producing a calendar of children's art from Cass last fall.

"I think that the arts are a very vital force. Many in the community don't get to see that, and this gives them the opportunity to sons for applauding the project. Using mixed media, Allison Kolodzy created a windy spring day with kites on handmade paper.

"I'm excited because I never had anything happen like this before. It honored me that people respect my painting," said Allison, a fourth-grader.

Elizabeth's Orozco's mixed media painting captures what life must have been like in the days of clipper ships. After studying

Lawmakers react to Proposal A's challenge

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY STAFF WRITER

Observer area state representatives and senators reacted to the overwhelming passage of Proposal. -A with a mixture of surprise, cautious optimism and anxiety Wednesday.

"I was shocked at the numbers, really shocked," said State Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, whose district includes part of Livonia.

"In June of 1993, Livonia vots ers failed Proposal A by 32 percent. They passed it by 65 percent Tuesday. Redford Township was around 60 percent for it. People really do want property tax relief.'

People also want a quality education system, thus the sense of caution and anxiety in Lansing.

"Proposal A is better than it was before," said Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, who supported the backup plan. "But I am very concerned that there won't be enough money for schools. That's the main concern. The governor has cut all kinds of deals. We are really going to have to be watchdogs to make sure there is adequate funding for schools."

Keith is worried about the instability of sales-tax revenues.

"Everybody was fighting against millages, but they were a stable source of income," he said. "A sales tax fluctuates. When times are good and people are buying things, then there will be money. But when times go bad, the money will dry up.'

Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, a supporter of Proposal A from the beginning, disagrees.

"That is a red herring," said the senator whose district includes Livonia, Redford, Plymouth and Canton. "You could say the same thing about income tax. During a recession when people are out of work, the state collects less money. The people have made the right decision. We have the revenue to fully fund education with this package."

Legislators seem to be split on that.

"I would have preferred that a plan (for school funding) be in place before we did this," said Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, who was opposed to the proposal.

"We were under the gun and I just hope we didn't move too quickly. Dan DeGrow (a Republican state senator from Port Huron) has been very involved with this and said he thinks schools will be in good shape for 10 to 12 years. I hope he is right."

Causing some doubt for Faust and others is the fact that the money just might not be there.

"We've already made major cuts in state governments and we'll need to make more," he said. "They are getting very painful."

State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, said the people of Michigan have sent a very clear message to Lansing.

"They said two things: People do not want their income taxed. They despise direct taxation on productivity. And secondly, they are tired of special interest groups ruling the agenda in Lansing. This was, as much as anything else, a defeat of the MEA (Michigan Education Association).

Vorva, whose district includes part of Livonia, said that the MEA and the tobacco industry formed an "unholy alliance" in an attempt to defeat the proposal.

"The people saw through that," he said. "They saw two groups who would normally be diametrically opposed to each other coming together simply out of greed.

"People saw that they pushed their own concerns over the good of the general public, and they aren't going to stand for that anymore. They aren't going to stand for politicians sucking up to special interests anymore. This vote signals a change in the way politicians will have to do business here."

Family first: Amann ends race for Congress

BY SUSAN ROSIEK STAFF WRITER

Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann ended his race for U.S. Congress Monday, about one month after entering the race. Amann said he was doing so for the "good of my young family."

Amann also said he would not seek re-election to the Wayne County Commission. Instead. he'll practice law, care for his family and "get back into public service sometime in the future. but I don't know where or when."

"I am convinced that in the near future I cannot in good conscience compatibly serve as a congressman for the 13th District while serving as a father for my young family," wrote Amann in a statement to his supporters.

"After spending five days last week in Washington, D.C, I have a greater appreciation for what it takes to serve in Congress. The rigors of representation in Washington, D.C would require that I would have to uproot my family but not be around to nourish its growth.

"Although I am deeply concerned about America and I recognize the opportunity for me to serve in Congress may never come again, my family's needs will never be greater than in the next several years. My family comes first," Amann said.

"The perceived power in Washington, D.C. holds a fraction of the magnetism of a strong and loving family. Congress will thrive without me, but my family would not," he added.

Amann was the first Democrat to announce for the seat long held by his mentor, Democrat William D. Ford, who announced his retirement in late January.

The only other declared candidate in the race for the 13th District is Republican John Schall of Ann Arbor, formerly of Livonia." Observer communities in the 13th District are Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township and the southeast section of Livonia. The district also includes part of Washtenaw County.

Candidates reportedly exploring a run for the seat are Democrat David Geiss, a former aide to Ford, and Republican Cynthia Wilbanks, a former aide to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell. Westland Mayor Robert Thomas also has been mentioned as a possible contender in the Democratic primary.

Amann insisted his departure is about "me and my family" and not about support or raising money "or some brokered deal."

Some had speculated that Amann would have a tough time raising the necessary money because he could not garner United Auto Workers money or support. He said his fund-raising had taken off and he also had lined up an impressive list of endorsements in the short time he was in the race. They included a host of officials from throughout the district.

"Washington, D.C. has changed dramatically since I've worked there. Every moment they're not legislating, these people are out raising money," said Amann, adding, "The tough part is, I don't think the time will come again for me to run for Congress, but I'm a father and that time won't come again either."

A Wayne County commissioner

since 1991, Amann and his wife, Mary, have two daughters; Lindsay, 8, and Lauren, 5. The Amanns live in Wayne. In private life, Amann is an attorney with the Livonia law firm of Brashear, Tangora and Spence.

Amann said he would not seek re-election to the county commission because "others had plans and announced for the seat, and it wouldn't be fair to upset their plans now." The commission district includes Canton Township.

Burce Patterson, an attorney from Canton Township who

A graduate of John Glenn High School in Westland, Amann earned a law degree from the University of Detroit and Georgetown University. While studying in Washington, D.C., Amann served on Ford's staff. He also worked as assistant county executive for criminal justice under Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and was instrumental in setting a noise-abatement policy among the Federation Aviation Administration, Metro Airport and the airlines.

Amann announced his bid for election in front of the Jack Demmer auto dealership on Michigan Avenue, in Wayne. He announced his withdrawal by fax' Monday, hoping to alert supporters before they found out from someone other than him.

Area Irish-Americans hope new accord will bring peace

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

When the Joint Declaration for Peace in Northern Ireland was signed by the British and Irish prime ministers in December, it raised hopes for the first time in 25 years that Europe's longest running conflict might finally end.

Local Irish-Americans aren't sure whether the agreement isn't just another failed initiative.

More than 3,100 people have been killed in the "Troubles" in British-occupied Northern Ireland. Unionists want to remain part of Britian, while Irish nationalists want a united Ireland.

The British say in the agreement they have no "selfish, strategic or economic interest" in Northern Ireland and that they will "encourage, facilitate and enable" the reaching of an agreement among the people of the island, even if that agreement is to have a united Ireland." The document also promises that if the violence ceases, after three months all parties can take part in negotiations on the future of Northern Ireland.

The agreement enables the loyalist minority in Northern Ireland to veto any provision that may arise, something Livonia's Dan O'Kennedy, national vice president of the Irish-American Unity Conference, finds troubling.

"Loyalists represent only 20 percent of the population of all of Ireland and 1.6 percent of the United Kingdom. Giving those people a veto is undemocratic. They have had a veto since Ireland was partitioned in 1920. In every decade since, there has been violence, but the worst has come about in the last 25 years," said Kennedy, who's long worked for peace in Northern Ireland and founded the Redford-Livonia chapter of the IAUC.

"While British troops remain in Ireland to support that veto, there can be no peace. It's a dead end that will bring nothing but violence and injustice.'

Father C. Richard Kelly, pastor of St. Thomas a' Becket in Canton Township, has visited Northern Ireland several times.

"Healing will take a long time, but I would like to think the peace process is on its way to fruition," he said. "The general populace in the North wants peace. I think what the Irish Republican Army is fighting for could be accomplished diplomatically and that the English could be coaxed out of Ireland," said Kelly, adding that the IRA no longer speaks for the general population.

Westland's Des Devine, born in Ireland and host of WCAR Radio's "Irish Hour," just wants the killing to stop.

"There isn't a blade of grass worth another drop of blood. By killing people, we haven't helped anyone and we haven't freed Ireland. Peace is going to be a hard thing to accomplish for the simple reason that we have Protestants who don't want to come under a Dublin government."

A forgotten part of the equation is the people in the south of Ireland, said Devine. "A recent poll done there showed that a higher percentage of people in the South said they want no part of the North. They have problems of their own. That point hasn't been brought out in America at all."

Father John Sullivan, pastor at Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth, is hopeful peace may become a reality.

"My prayer and hope is that this is not just all political, and that folks get down to the fact that these are real people. For so long, families have been hurt on both sides in a country that takes great pride in being so family conscious.

"This is the time maybe when we need to look at families today, not at past centuries. What about" our children and the future of our families? I have great hopes that maybe now we can get over the politics and get to what really is important."

Patrick Butler is a Westland businessman whose grandparents were born in Ireland. His hope is for the violence to stop, Ireland to be united and its culture restored.

"This conflict dates back to when Britain was a colonial power and Ireland was part of the colonial conquest. I suppose that particular world told them that was;; the right thing to do. But I think, we've become a little more enlightened. I would hope we have, anyways."

DETROIT

McNamara seeks new term

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara declared his candidacy for a third term last Friday at his annual St. Patrick's Day party at Laurel Manor in Livonia.

A crowd of more than 1,000, including Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer and numerous candidates for statewide office, were on hand for the announcement.

'We have done so much and there is still so much to do," McNamara said in a press release.

A Livonia Democrat, McNamara was elected to the county's top office in 1986 after many years as Livonia mayor.

The prospect of creating new partnerships for Wayne County gave McNamara the incentive to run, he said. "We have a number of initiatives where we are bringing government, the community and the private sector together," he said. "I want to bring those partnerships together, and use that momentum to move Wayne County forward."

Among McNamara's recent accomplishments are:

The start-up of the new HealthChoice insurance plan for the working poor.

The creation of a county department of the environment. Expansion of Metro Airport.

Laich honored

cbert Laich of Westland accepted a national award recently for the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. The club has been chosen as the Outstanding Affiliate of the Year by the National Wildlife Federation, the country's largest conservation organization. The Michigan citizens' organization was chosen from among 50 state affiliates of the national group. Laich accepted the award for the organization at the federation's annual meeting in Austin, Texas. Laich is president of the 140,000-member organization.

Resolutions submitted by the Michigan group - and approved by delegates - call on Congress to pay for sea lamprey control on a long-term basis and to urge a complete investigation into loon mortality.

Students cited

wenty-three University of Michigan-Dearborn students are learning about the political process through various work experiences offered by the university's political science internship program. During the semester-long internship, students spend two days a week at their placement and receive six hours of acadmemic credit. Students also attend seminars and write a political journal and various papers. Among the students are Timothy Kierschke of Westland, assigned to the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office in Detroit, and Kenneth Kalousek, assigned to U.S. Rep. Joe Knallonherg

Dump stirs debate among officials

The federal government wants to move ahead with testing a former dump site to make sure it is safe, and a county commissioner disputes claims that the county isn't cooperating.

whether the county is cooperating in finding out if a longdormant dump con-

The conflict surfaced late in a two-hour informational hearing held by the federal Environmental Protection Agency in Westland's Bailey Recreation Center.

At issue is determining if there are any hazardous materials in the former dump, north of Warren Road and west of Central City Parkway, adjacent to two apartment complexes.

The EPA argued in favor of opening up the site and finding out what's there.

"We feel strongly about trenching the property," said Ralph Dollhopf. EPA official. A preliminary investigation last year said there were hazardous substances on the property. On the need for expensive testing and possible cleanup, he was disputed by county Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland, whose district includes the dump site.

She insisted that the county has been cooperating and that it continues to want "to do the job right."

But several among the approxiurged the EPA to avoid limiting any testing.

ART EMANUELE/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER EPA session: The federal Environmental Protection Agency's Ralph Dollhopf (standing at far left) presented information to 25 persons at an informational session held Monday to discuss a former landfill in the northwest section of Westland.

The county, Crestwood Development Co., which built the adjacent apartment complexes, and 3M Corp., which formerly operated a plant in the city of Wayne, have been named as the "potential responsible parties" of the dump and may be liable for paying cleanup and/or removal costs.

The company has already opposed the government's unilateral administrative order issued in early January directing those involved to proceed with more testing to determine if toxic materials are on or under the property.

In a 4¹/₂-page letter to EPA admately 25 people in the audience ministrator Carol Browner a month ago, Beard said it is "unconscionable tions the county has taken to make to me" to be a party "to such irre- sure the site is tested to protect the nearly two years ago.

sponsible action," referring to the public and environment. EPA order.

Beard said that the county has been cooperating with the federal agency, although several residents suggested that the county, Crestwood and 3M have been resisting any major and expensive testing. The commissioner added:

"As governmental entities, we must exert extra effort to openly communicate, acknowledge mistakes and work cooperatively to address the enormous problems we face. Needless adversarial and confrontational stands do not serve our mutual goals."

Her letter also detailed the ac-

Beard stressed that an earlier inspection of the property concluded that there was no imminent threat to the public safety or environment.

Dollhopf outlined the history of the site to two separate audiences Monday afternoon and evening.

Slides of the dump taken within the past year showed that 55-gallon drums were visible on the property, adjacent to the William Holliday Nature Preserve.

Among those attending the aftersession were Cheryl noon Graundstadt and Katherine Pare of Westland, who were among the leaders in an environmental feud with the Livonia Public Schools

Cable rates Council's priorities misguided

he Westland City Council wants to save local cable TV subscribers money under powers granted last year under a new federal law aimed at cutting cable rates. Based on the March 7 council action, the Federal Communications Commission must act on the request of the city, which wants to cut rates, and Continental Cablevision Co., which wants to maintain the rate schedule adopted last September.

14A(W)

The council, with apparently little else to worry about, recommended that the basic cable rate be slashed 11 cents a month.

Now that's a real savings for the city's 23,000 cable subscribers, most of whom pay $25 and up.

Frankly, with all the problems facing the city — vacant commercial buildings, expenditures increasing faster than revenues, to name a couple — the council should spend its time on more important things.

The Observer doesn't have a specific costbreakdown of how much time city employees, council members and the assistant city attorney spent studying the rate structure of Continental and its impact on local subscribers.

But it may be close to the $49,000 a year that the council wants to save cable subscribers.

The recent council action reflects a serious flaw in its problem-identification process.

At recent public hearings planned to get residents' input on cable rates, there has been a virtual no-show. —

That means that cable subscribers are satisfied with existing rates or not concerned enough to attend a public hearing to voice their opinions.

So if subscribers aren't worried about cable rates, why should the council be?

Even when the rates were adjusted last September, there was no outcry from subscribers. At that time, half had their rates cut about $2 a month while the other half saw an increase of the same size.

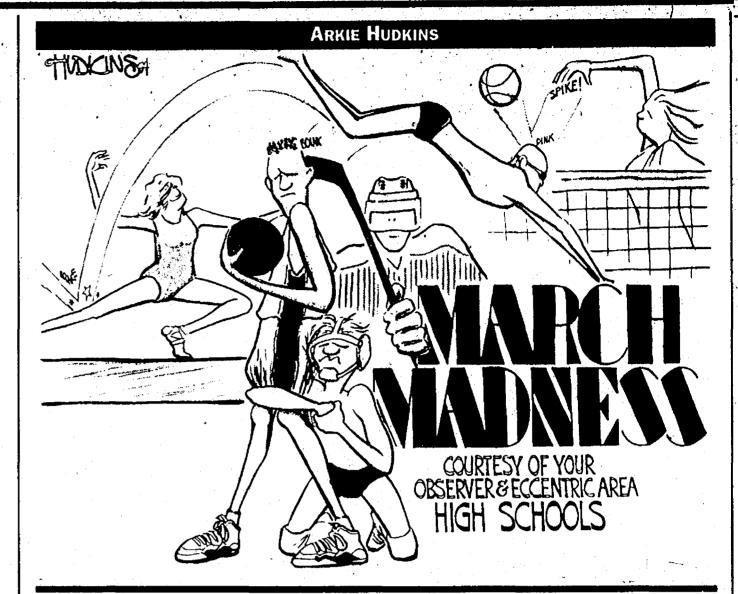

If the council really wanted to save residents real money, it should look for ways to curb municipal spending, especially this spring when it holds several weeks of hearings on the city administration's proposed budget for the new fiscal year.

In an operating budget to come in at about $30 million, there is plenty of opportunity for the council to trim a few bucks from various city accounts — such as out-of-state junkets or turning back part of their salaries into the general fund.

The bottom line is that there is no evidence that people are upset with their cable rates. If they are, they know of several options open to them: They can cancel their subscriptions or reduce the number of premium channels.

Councilman Glenn Anderson said at the March 7 session at which the rate "cut" was recommended to the FCC that he was disappointed that the city couldn't be more involved in controlling cable rates.

Hopefully, Anderson will get over his disappointment as he and his colleagues prepare to tackle Mayor Robert Thomas' proposed budget next month and make real choices on spending priorities.

Conference defended

have recommended that three Wayne-Westland school board members represent our district at the National School Boards Association Conference in New Orleans April 7-13. According to board policy, board members are encouraged to attend at least one national conference and as many in-state conferences as possible each year. However, because of financial constraints, I have asked board members that only three of our seven board members attend this year's national conference. Those board members are vice president Mathew McCusker, treasurer Trish Brown and newly appointed board member Debra Fowlkes.

Unfortunately, there is no formal training required to become a member of any school board of education. That is why these learning experiences are important for all board members and school districts.

Get back to business et's face it. The middle class is in trouble. The great postwar prosperity bubble seems to have burst for the American

It's high time for laws, action ew efforts to prosecute perpetrators and help victims of domestic violence are overdue.

Stories on domestic violence — especially major incidents that end in death or serious in jury — are sadly becoming a regular feature in suburban newspapers.

An Oakland County woman is bludgeoned to death by her estranged husband in a Farmington dental office; a Garden City man barges into his former girlfriend's house in Westland; a Farmington Hills woman, reportedly undergoing treatment for depression, shoots her husband and then kills herself.

These highly publicized cases get front-page treatment

"Garden-variety" domestic violence — undramatic and often even unreported to police is just as troubling and tragic. And sadly, these incidents too are becoming more and more common in our communities. Livonia police, for example, make about a dozen domestic trouble runs during a typical week.

Left untended, these are the festering sores that can and do tear the social fabric of our communities.

But it doesn't have to be that way.

The keys to beating the domestic violence problem are three-fold: legislation from Lansing, local support/education groups, and intervention in each home and every neighborhood where such ugliness occurs.

Yes, we need stronger laws that pave the way for easier prosecution of domestic violence cases. And the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers supports a package of 14 bills moving through the Michigan Legislature to accomplish that.

Many of the bills (which begin with HB 4357) have been approved in both chambers, with three still up for passage in the House. Then they need Gov. John Engler's signature.

Included in the package is legislation that would:

Draw up and follow specific guidelines on issuing restraining orders.

Require criminal prosecution for violation of restraining orders.

Require police agencies to develop policies for responding to domestic violence calls and give victims written information on available community services and legal rights (Birmingham police already do this).

Force judges and magistrates to accept a domestic violence complaint even if it's not signed by the victim.

Increased funding for community agencies that provide shelter and education to victims of domestic violence should also be a priority. Oakland and Wayne Counties, with a combined population of some 5 million, have just two major agencies --- Haven (810-334-1204) and First Step (313-459-5900) — charged with this task.

Finally, people who live close to people who are victims of such abuse can't turn away. The victim needs real help - not criticism or lectures. It's necessary to understand that as bad as their situation may be, it's the only one they know.

No woman, man or child should have to live in fear in the one place on earth they call home.

It's important that our district have representation at this conference and each of the three board members will be required to attend different classes, so that they can report on the topics when they return to the district.

Unlike past school boards, this school board has a monstrous task that lies ahead. With the undertaking of new school boundaries, the middle-school concept, increased violence in the schools and several other issues, it is important that board members be exposed to as much information as possible, not only at the state and local level, but at the national level.

Fowlkes, our newest board member, has had no formal training or past experience to prepare her for the types of decisions she must make as a board member who oversees a $90 million budget. I have asked Fowlkes to also investigate and learn more about human relations issues.

Brown, who has attended board meetings for years as a reporter and editor, also needs more exposure to educational issues and how other districts are responding to those issues. I have asked her to dedicate a portion of her time to learning about what other districts are doing with respect to nature centers like the one the district owns at Sassafras Trails. She has also been asked to attend a class that focuses on violence in the schools.

McCusker, our most senior school board member, is also one of 21 directors who represents the Michigan Association of School Boards and will be very active with that group while in New Orleans.

Please don't be fooled by people who say these events are not important. Some of the topics at this year's conference include: the challenge of change, year-round schools, nurturing student success, gang resistance plan, the board's role in math reform, what constitutes an effective multi-cultural education program, school district public relations, how to cut budgets and avoid hurting kids, preparing students for life in the work place, programs that work to reduce prejudice in America's schools, the principal's role in site-based decision-making, the board's role in the curriculum process, and others.

Brown has decided she would not attend any in-state conferences and would only attend the national conference this year. McCusker attends most in-state events because of the important role he holds with the Michigan Association of School Boards. Fowlkes attended the most recent in-state conference to gain more knowledge about her role as a board member.

Historically speaking, the "middle class" has always been an "endangered species." Large middle class populations are almost always associated with nations that are in their "imperial phase."

Like it or not, the U.S. has been an "empire" for the better part of the 20th century. We often hear commentators speak of the "Imperial Presidency." The politically correct late 20th century term for "empire" is "super-power."

Empires provide the economic "habitat" in which the middle class can thrive. This habitat consists of "great influxes" of the world's wealth into the "Imperial Economy." Historically, these great influxes of wealth have been achieved by armed conquest — as in the cases of ancient Egypt and Rome.

In modern times, the great influxes of wealth are achieved by international trade. The United States is no longer the great trading nation it once was. From 1900 to 1950 our industries were the envy of the entire world. Every modern nation wanted to "Americanize" their industry in those days. American commerce dominated the world's markets. The two World Wars certainly helped. Great wealth flowed into the United States economy.

Eventually — the wealth was shared — and the great post-war American middle class was born.

_It's different now. Wealth is quickly flowing out of the United States economy. Consumption is king — debt abounds. The welfare state is rampant. Political nonsense is heard everywhere, usually spoken by people who want to get money from the government and its taxpayers.

How do we restore the middle class? By restoring American business to a position of world dominance and by abandoning the politics of jealousy.

Cut the capital gains tax to zero. Abolish the ability of labor unions to set "industry-wide" wage levels through "pattern bargaining." Abolish property taxes on business property — what better way to keep our factories from wandering off to Mexico! And make the politicians listen to our great business leaders.

In short, restore competitiveness and cut the socialist nonsense. Restore the old motto: "The business of America is business." That is how we became prosperous in the first place. There is no other choice!

POINTS OF VIEW

Phone company's got wrong number on billing re your phone bills excessive? Do you know what services you are paying for as included in the oneline description of local service charge on your monthly bill?

Do you realize that the monthly billing for Touch-Tone service is $2.43, and yet it is cheaper for the telephone company to provide than the old rotary dial service? If you subscribe to "call waiting" service, did you realize that the monthly rate increased by 26 cepts effective Aug. 1, 1993? Does it seem that many of your calls fall into the category of zone or toll calls?

Historically, we looked at price increases for utilities as being the norm. However, in the past few years, telephone companies throughout the country have been forced to reduce rates.

Costs are declining - interest rates and yields on investments are down. Technological changes have allowed Michigan Bell to reduce maintenance and to serve more customers with fewer employees.

You have undoubtedly read about the past and planned layoffs of thousands of employees at Ameritech. Michigan Bell and its parent Ameritech are not reducing their work force to improve service it is simply to cut costs.

The Michigan Public Service Commission, which was supposed to act as a surrogate for competition, allowed excessive rates to be put in place and the Legislature recently deregulated the industry.

Regulation background

Some background might be helpful. Michigan Bell/Ameritech was until recently regulated like other utilities by the Michigan Public Service Commission. In PA 179, the Michigan Legislature passed the Michigan Telecommunications Act of 1991. I understand, but do no have evidence, that the Legislature acted following an extensive lobbying effort by the telecommunications industry.

Unfortunately prior to this legislation, the Public Service Commission did little to effectively regulate and aggressively. seek price reductions during times of stable prices and falling interest and capital costs. Ratepayers thus continue to pay high prices while Michigan Bell recognizes ever-increasing profits.

In other states, the reduced costs have resulted in reduced rates. However, the same is not true in Michigan. Yes, I do admit that with great fanfare Michigan Bell announced it was reducing its toll rates. However, as you'all realize, the toll rates were too high in the first place.

This was easy to see when you compared a comparable call in length from here to Ann Arbor with a call out of state. Michigan Bell merely reduced its rates to keep out the competition — namely the interexchange carriers who unfortunately cannot compete on the same basis because they offer 1-plus dialing.

Poor regulation

. As I stated, the Public Service Commission never did an adequate job of regulating. Even recently, the commission refused to require Bell to break out the various services included on the one line on your bill and identified as local service charge. If you want a breakdown, you must call the phone company.

That one line includes the monthly service for the local basic service as well as charges for services such as Touch-Tone, call waiting, call forwarding, and inside wire maintenance agreements known as Linebacker or Linebacker Plus.

Each distinct service or package of services carries with it a specific charge. There is absolutely no reason each service and charge is not broken out on each bill.

GUEST COLUMNIST

Bell is obviously concerned in that if a customer sees each item broken out separately along with the cost of each, the customer may choose to cancel one or more services.

Do you know what additional services or options you have signed up for the cost? Perhaps there are services that you never use and wish to cancel. It's all to easy to overlook these potential savings without adequate detail.

No big announcement

If you subscribe to call waiting, the rate increased 26 cents per month effective August 1993. No, there wasn't the big announcement that accompanied the toll rate reduction. It was buried on page 2 of the July billing as the fourth item under "Important Notices,"

Only 26 cents per month or $3.12 per year you might say. However, next to Touch-Tone, call waiting is one of themost, if not the most popular option.

Did you receive a bill insert on 976 services offered by Bell? Most states attempt to control the abuses often found in 1-900 and 976 services, but not Michigan Bell.

An Ameritech representative told me that the brochure entitled "976 Information At Your Fingertips" was meant to be informative and not for the purpose of advertising these services.

Personally, I didn't need the information and I object to Bell including this information with my bill. Furthermore, if it was merely information, why did Bell include the following language "It's simple, helpful, valuable, and convenient ---try it today!"

If you own a business and advertise in the yellow pages, have your rates increased annually? The profits from the yellow pages are supposed to offset costs in providing local service - residential and business. Michigan Bell, like all other phone companies, set up a subsidiary to provide and sell these services.

The subsidiary is not regulated. Some of the revenues flow back to Bell but these companies are known to realize excessive returns with the excessive profits going to the shareholders - not the ratepayers, as intended.

If your phone fails

Has anyone signed up for the Linebacker or Linebacker Plus? These services are designed to provide maintenance on your inside wiring which is no longer owned by Bell. The cost of these services are $1.95 and $2.95 per month, respectively.

The theory is that a monthly fee will guarantee you free service should something happen to the wiring inside your home. For the extra $1 per month -- $12 per year, Bell will provide a phone if yours fails.

I won't argue for or against the merits, but you should evaluate the monthly cost and the number of times you have availed yourself of the service.

If you live in an apartment and signed up for this service because the service representative told you how much a service call would cost in the event you had a problem with the wiring, please check with your apartment manager.

As the wiring is owned by the apartment owner, in all likelihood he or she is responsible for the repairs and thus the service may be of no value.

Recently, Michigan Bell along with the other Ameritech companies initiated a policy known as the Preferential Service Plan. If service is required, preferential treatment is granted to customers who pay the most.

In other words, if you're a subscriber to the lowest basic service and your bills have been kept to a minimum, your service request will be filled after a large user.

Is there anything that can be done? You could call your legislator, but I've had little success with that. If you, like me, are upset about receiving an "information brochure" on 976 services, let them know.

If enough people voice their concerns, we can overcome the failures of the Michigan Public Service Commission and the successful lobbying efforts by Michigan Bell.

I suggest that everyone review their monthly billing. Call the phone company. Find out what's included in the local service charge. Eliminate those unnecessary services.

Call every month to get the details until Bell finds it easier to supply the information with each billing. If you're unhappy with the price increase, let them know.

Consider this background: MNC's earnings per share have plummeted from $12 in 1989 to barely $3 in 1990 and less than $4.50 in 1992 (last available year). Its non-performing assets figure was in the $100-million range in Mylod's contract gave him the option to purchase 200,000 shares of the corporation's common stock at $17.69 (rounded off) per share. In 1992, he exercised that option, investing $3.5 million. His stock was worth $10:25 mil-

Job training is the cure

onday morning I went down to the Fox Theater to catch President Clinton's opening speech at the jobs conference. " Driving in, I was struck at how easy the rushhour drive was. Who would have thought that morning rush hour traffic in Oakland County is lots worse than Detroit! Plainly, a lot of jobs have moved out to the suburbs.

It's worthwhile reflecting why.

Begin with the history of the automobile industry, when the rise of manufacturing and the tremendous increase in labor productivity made possible by assembly-line technology spurred a great demand for labor at wages that seemed impossibly high at the time.

- Faced with the choice between $5 an hour and life on the farm, countless thousands of people moved north to the manufacturing centers. They didn't need great job skills. For most, all they had to do was turn up on time and withstand long hours and boring work. For that, they got good-paying jobs with good benefits and a ticket to the middle class.

But then other countries discovered how to do assembly lines, with equally unskilled labor, -but paid at wages far below American standards. And suddenly, with a giant sucking sound, it seemed as hough our manufacturing jobs were going to previously underdeveloped countries __merica and Europe had a big unemploymer. problem. And we had a jobs conference in Detroit.

What to do? There are two schools of thought.

One is to argue that the unemployment problem is caused largely by governmental policies which drive up the cost of labor so that employers are deterred from hiring.

The solution, therefore, is to attack these policles where possible and to tolerate - indeed, encourage — jobs at very low pay, the only way new jobs are ever created. Trying to do anything about job training or workforce skills is silly, in this view, because the workings of the free market will resolve everything.

I happen to think this school of thought is

PHILIP POWER

It's dangerous because it's a recipe for systematic impoverishment for many of our people.

It's wrong because in ignoring the skills part of the equation it neglects reality. Consider the following breakdown of unemployed people in America:

Those with no high school degree: 12.6 percent.

Those with a high school degree: 7.2 percent. Those with post high school training: 5.7 percent.

Those with a college degree: 3.5 percent. Plainly, skills do matter.

So the question is how best to help both employers and workers act in both their interests to acquire, cheaply and efficiently, the skills necessary for high productivity and for good wages.

Historically, the marketplace in skills is pretty poor. Think of truck driving and cosmetology schools training folks at great cost for jobs that don't exist. Suppose, instead, that the job-training system concentrated on information about what skills will be needed for the jobs of the future.

The new world of job training — the world discussed earlier this week in Detroit - concentrates on information, not on outmoded governmental programs of the past.

That's exciting and it's good the discussion is taking place here in Michigan.

As a high school athlete, Craig Martin has it all. No wrestler can do it any better than he did.

The Livonia Stevenson junior won a state championship and completed an undefeated (41-0) season Saturday when he claimed the 189-pound title in the Class A tournament at Battle Creek.

"I don't know what to say except I'm happy," said Martin after he defeated Jeff Nadig of Saline 5-1 in the championship match. "I'm just kinda coping with it all right now. I worked hard and it all paid off."

He had beaten Nadig in the regional final and had to guard against overconfidence after defeating Troy senior Garrett Gould - the other premeet favorite — in the semifinals Saturday morning, 14-12 in overtime.

"The coaches bring you back down to earth and help to get your head focused," he said. "There's so much time between that match and the finals you get settled down and relaxed. You get everything off your mind and start preparing all over again."

Martin won his first two bouts by 6-3 and 9-6 decisions, but had been anticipating a possible clash with Gould, who eventually finished third with a 55-1 record.

"You're supposed take one match time, but I couldn't help looking forward to it," he said. "I was really nervous. A lot of people wanted to see that match, and I planned on giving them the best match I could."

Martin was behind 6-2 early but proved resilient and eventually found but the first time it didn't work because it went out of bounds." Martin said. "I knew that was open. I tried the same move and made sure it was in bounds.

'He's a strong kid; he's beaten a lot of people, but I still didn't give up. I just kept going after it. He tired out before me, and I took advantage of it. I won't downtalk him at all; he's a great wrestler.'

Stevenson coach Don Berg said Martin was rewarded for his hard work and conditioning by being able to pull out a win over Gould.

"You have to be able to go nine minutes — six minutes in regulation, two in overtime and 30 seconds in sudden death — so we condition for nine," he said. "The running, the pushups, all the stuff we do paid dividends in that match.'

Martin scored an early takedown against Nadig and was in command the entire time. While few points were scored, Nadig was unable to get off the bottom and was never the aggres-80r.

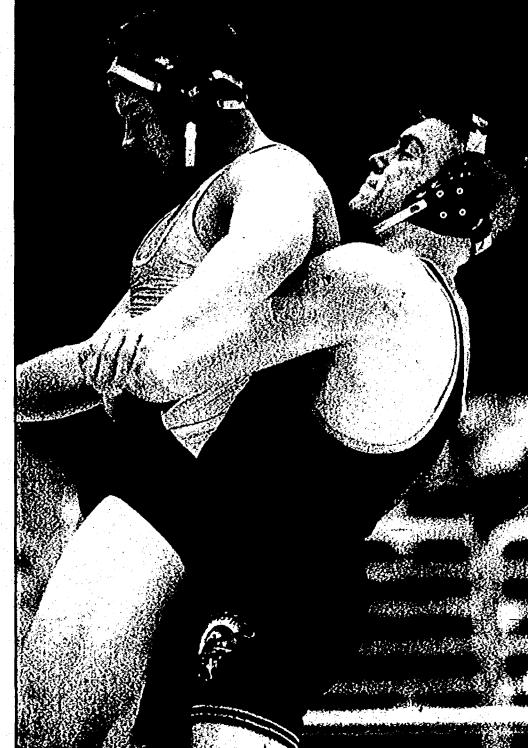

Martin qualified for state but didn't place as a sophomore; however, the experience proved beneficial.

"I learned a lot last year," he said. "If you win one, you can't get too relaxed because if you have a bad match you don't go on.

"Last year I was kinda overwhelmed. This time I could get my nerves to work for me in a positive way instead of against me."

Martin would like the opportunity to defend his title next year as long as he stays at the same weight.

Cooley deals CC 73-62 defeat

BY NEAL ZIPSER STAFF WRITER

Throughout the season, the Redford Catholic Central basketball team got used to proving people wrong. So being an underdog Tuesday against state-ranked Detroit Cooley was nothing new.

On Tuesday, however, the clock struck midnight for the Shamrocks, as Cooley ended CC's season with a 73-62 defeat in the Southfield regional.

The Shamrocks, who proved the skeptics wrong during the regular season after winning the Catholic League Central Division and playoffs, ended the season 17-6 overall.

"We've been underdogs all year and have been trying to play through it," said center Joe Daly, who ended his CC career with 13 points. "It was a satisfying season, but obviously it's disappointing that we didn't meet our goal of going all the way. All of (the seniors) are taking it hard. You never want it to end, but it does."

The state-ranked Cardinals (17-6) play Detroit Murray Wright for the regional title Friday. The Pilots easily defeated Dearborn in the first game of the Southfield twin bill, 70-50.

After the game, CC coach Bernie Holowicki left in question whether he will return — or be asked to return - as the Shamrocks' coach for a 24th season.

"It's disappointing to see the season end," Holowicki said. "This is a great group — one of the best I've ever coached. There is no doubt I will miss the seniors. I'm very proud of them.'

Senior Andy Slankster scored 14 of his team-high 16 points in the fourth to lead the Shamrocks. Junior Mike Ridley added 11.

Guard Brian Ponder led the Cardinals' attack with 25 points. Cooley also received strong games from Devon Hale (16), Brian Williams (15) and Luther Bule (11).

After recovering from a 12-4 deficit, CC rallied to tie the score at 12 to end the first quarter. The Shamrocks led by as many as three in the second, but trailed 28-27 at halftime.

Cooley received a spark from Williams — the team's lone senior - who doubled his seasonpoint average in the first half and converted six-straight free throws to give Cooley the halftime lead.

The Cardinals made 27 of 37 free throws compared with 16 of 23 for CC.

Despite seven points in the third from Daly, the rejuvenated Cardinals squad tallied the final eight points of the quarter to take a 47-38 lead.

With Slankster leading the way, the Shamrocks clawed back to close the margin to 50-44 with 6:23 left, but an 8.0 run by Cooley put the game out of reach.

"We knew they could shoot," Ponder said. "The first half, we were playing like we were just happy to be out there. In the second half, it was more like life or death."

CC was in foul trouble all game as Slankster, Justin Hoener, Anthony Hesano and Andy Kummer fouled out.

"We got in foul trouble, and I think that made us a little gun shy," Holowicki said. "I think we should have attacked the basket more. They were even letting us drive."

Both coaches agreed it wasn't one of their team's better games of the season.

"We just weren't competitive enough tonight," Holowicki said, "We could have shot free throws

Door wide open

Ladywood sees path into finals

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

As a coach, Tom Teeters has gone to the state volleyball finals nine times, winning two state titles at Livonia Ladywood (1988, '89) and one at Livonia Clarenceville ('78).

With Ladywood, Teeters is taking his team to the big dance for the fifth time, but this may be the most surprising of any of the five.

-The Blazers (42-7-2 overall) open Class A quarterfinal play at 8:30 p.m. Friday at Portage Central. The opponent is Bay City Central (46-8-3).

"It's hard to compare teams, but this one has exceeded all expectations by far," Teeters said. "This team has had its valleys, we've had to make some pit stops along the way.

"At the Comstock Tournament, we learned we had to get more consistent hitting. At the Madonna Tournament we found out we had to do a better job at passing." With Teeters making all the moves of a chess master, the Blazers have accomplished nearly all of their seasonal goals.

They won the Central Division of the Catholic League, going undefeated. Ladywood then added a Catholic League playoff title. Operation-Friendship, district and regional crowns followed suit. Ladywood is now in position to get to the championship game. On one side of the bracket is No. 1 and defending state champion Portage Northern, along with No. - 2-ranked Temperance Bedford, which defeated Ladywood in the Schoolcraft Invitational final. If the Blazers get past Bay City Central, they will play the winner of the Port Huron Northern-Detroit Cass Tech match.

"We've got the draw, but can we take advantage?" Teeters asked. "Some teams have a good draw and don't take advantage.

"And once you get in the finals, anything can happen. It would be a tremendous upset if anybody beats Portage Northern. But right now we're not looking beyond this team (Bay City Central)."

Teeters has been juggling his lineup all season long. Throughout the year he's been fine-tuning his ballclub.

Just four days prior to the start of the regular season, All-State basketball player Tara Overaitis, a returning second-team All-Observer outside hitter, transferred to Dearborn Divine Child.

Up stepped 6-foot-3 junior

Anne Poglits, who has learned to become a hitting force both from the front and back row.

"We've given her more responsibility," Teeters said. "She gave us what we needed to make our team decent. And the other players had to fit into that."

Poglits gets most of the attention, but this is a well-rounded Ladywood team.

"We changed our serve reception pattern after the district and it worked better for the regional.' Teeters said. "Kristy Walker (a 5-9 senior) has learned to play the middle and back side. Jill Wilson (a 5-5 sophomore) now plays the right back and is our middle man up. And to keep our serving strong, we bring in Christie Soter (a 5-4 junior) to serve for Jill.

"But the key thing is that we still had to have our best passers, Kristy and Jill, touch the ball."

Renae Rozell, a 5-7 junior setter, has been adept at orchestrating Ladywood's 5-1 attack. Stacey Judd, a 5-9 sophomore, adds hitting power to the front row.

Across the net Friday will be a veteran Bay City Central team, which returns four starters from a -year ago. Coach Loreen Laracey has won five district titles and eliminated rival Bay City Western (15-9, 15-5) and Davison (8-15, 15-12, 15-12).

Leading the way is Jamie Kowalkowski, a 6-3 junior who can play back row.

Other standouts include setter Heather Van Ochten, Heather Heinz and Stephanie Way.

"It looks like it's going to be our serving against their serve reception," Teeters said. "They look like they score most of their points off the transition to the quick ball.

"Their setter moves the ball around and that can be an advantage to them.'

Items for the Sports Roundup must be submitted by noon Friday (for Monday issue) and noon Tuesday (for Thursday issue). Items run once only.

III MULCAHY STEPS DOWN

Matt Mulcahy is stepping down after two seasons in his second stint as Livonia Stevenson High hockey coach.

Mulcahy, 50, made the announcement at the team's banquet Tuesday at DeLuca's Restaurant.

"I told Roger Frayer (Stevenson's athletic director) of my intentions in early January," Mulcahy said. "It's really a combination of things. Right now you need your afternoons totally free because of the practice hours, and I can't do that because of my job situation (at Ford Motor Company).

"I've been playing hockey since I was 7, and I need some time of my own to devote to playing hockey. I'll just come out and watch next year."

Mulcahy finished with a 29-17-1 record over the past two seasons. The Spartans won the Suburban High School Hockey League title outright this season.

"It's nice to go out with a league championship," he said. "It's important they go out and find the best coach possible because I think Stevenson is going to have a good team next year."

N YOUTH HOCKEY CHAMPS

The Livonia Squirt Flyers captured the 1994 Trenton Invitational hockey tournament last weekend with a 6-0 win over the Trenton Gems as Jeff Andes scored what proved to be the game-winner in the opening period of the championship final.

The Flyers, coached by Gordon Butler, opened tournament play with a 7-0 win over the Trenton Animals followed by a 7-3 win over the Trenton Red Wings.

In the semifinals, Sean Lewis' third-period goal gave the Flyers a 1-0 victory over R.F.B. Kings Goalie Patrick Boucher had three shutouts in four games.

Amateur Hockey Association Bantam A tournament. The Knights reached the finals with a 7-4 win over Jackson. 'Members of the Knights, coached by Bob Tyler, include: Greg Berger, Matt Bishop, Steve Dekovich, Ian Devlin, Matt Grant, Jeff Lang, Billy Marshall, John Pacini, Ryan Strzempek, B.J. Assistant coaches include Jerry Ahmet and Larry Marshail, The team is sponsored by Wisti Excavating, American Gear & Engineering, Man-u-tec and Henry Ford Medical Center (Fairlane).

E LALLY TAKES LUMPS

The only thing smiling on Irish Brett Lally Tuesday night in Boston were the fists of Dana Rosenblatt. The former North American Boxing Federation middleweight champion from Plymouth suffered a ninth-round TKO at the hands of Rosenblatt, an up-andcoming 22-year-old middleweight contender from Boston.

Lally, to his credit, was only the third fighter to last eight rounds against Rosenblatt (19-0 with 15 knockouts). Still, it was the 31year-old Lally's sixth loss in his last 13 bouts, dropping his record to 31-10.

"Lally is a mean son-of-a-gun," said Rosenblatt's trainer Jim Connely. "We planned for a guy who was going to walk in and jab. This guy was running in with his burr-head. I think he shaved his head on purpose."

Lally's head landed more blows than his fists. Rosenblatt was in total control throughout the fight. He had Lally on the ropes after eight rounds and only the sounding of the bell kept the fight going. The fight was stopped at 1:29 of the ninth round.

REDFORD MAN ENSHRINED

Bob Kaump, Redford Township's softball coordinator and a resident since 1978, will be inducted into the Metro Detroit American Softball Association Hall of Fame on April 22. Kaump, a teacher at Farmington's Power Middle School, is one of only three umpires inducted by the ASA. He has umpired numerous national tournaments and, as a player, his 55-and-over Nothdurft team won the 1993 national title. He was named All-America pitcher and won a gold medal at the 1993 Senior Olympics. His name will be on a plaque at the ASA Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City as well as at the local shrine at the Bailey Center in Westland.

Shamrocks 4th at state

Unranked, undermanned and unnoticed, Catholic Central shocked the prep swim world, and probably itself, with its fourthplace finish in the Class A swim championships Friday and Saturday at the University of Michigan's Canham Natatorium.

"I studied the thing real hard and I knew we had a chance to do something," said first-year CC coach Jeff Shoemaker. "But it was a case where everyone had to swim perfectly. And that's exactly what happened. Everyone swam perfectly. Shoemaker's "team" at the finals consisted of four swimmers: James Leslie, Paul Magoulik, Steve Reinke and John Zarow. The fearless foursome scored 88 points in seven events, less only than powerhouses Birmingham Brother Rice (147), Ann Arbor Pioneer (140), and Birmingham Groves (129).

(school record 1:27.37) and fifth in the 400 free relay (3:13.90).

"It was quite a feat," Shoemaker said. "We weren't ranked by anybody. I mean, nobody even knew we were there."

They do now.

All in all, it was another proud day for Observerland swimming.

North Farmington and Plymouth Salem tied for sixth place (70 points) and Plymouth Canton finished 12th (37). There were also three individual state champions and a relay champion.

"It was a phenomenal day," Shoemaker said. "All four swam the best times of their lives."

Leslie placed second in both the 200-yard freestyle (1:41.70) and the 500 freestyle (school record 4:34.42).

Magoulik placed fifth in the 50 free with a school record 21.81. Reinke placed sixth in the 100 butterfly (51.67) and 12th in the 100 backstroke (55.30).

North's Jon Kershaw won the 200 free (1:41.09) and the 100 free (40.74).

Salem's Fred Locke won the 50 free (21:18). The Rocks won the 200 freestyle relay with Locke, Joe Ervin, Eric Seidelman and Dave Bracht combining on a 1:26.47. Locke also took third in the 100 free (47.07).

Other top performances: North's Karl Kozicki took fifth in 200 individual medley (1:57.06) and seventh in the 500 free (4:39.05). Plymouth Canton's Jeff Clark took third in the 50 free (21.35) and sixth in the 100 free (47.38).

Livonia Franklin's Randy Cobb placed fifth 100 breaststroke (1:00.12) and Farmington Harrison diver John Hovey took eighth with 391.50 points.

Stevenson teammate Scott Goldman placed eighth at 140, and Ben Lewis was eliminated early at 171. Both are juniors, too.

Goldman, who was 2-3 in the tournament, lost his final match 12-6 to Holt's Corey Mead, whom he had beaten in the first round, 24-16.

"I tried to let him up, but he grabbed my hand and wouldn't get up," Goldman said. "He wouldn't go takedowns with me, because he knew he'd lose. He just wanted to stay on the mats.

"In the first match, I kept letting him up and taking him down, basically, (The final) was a little frustrating. I wanted to go takedowns with him, because that way I knew I would win."

It was Goldman's first trip to

"This was the first step to becoming a state champ. That's my goal for next year," he said.

"I wish I would have done better, but I guess I can be happy with myself. I thought I wrestled pretty well, but things don't always go your way."

Lewis, a district and regional champion, was upset in the first round by Redford Catholic Central's Dan Krueger, 14-12.

Krueger used it as a springboard to finish second while a disheartened Lewis lost his second match by pin and was eliminated.

"(Lewis) wanted to win too badly," Berg said. "That was it more than anything. It wasn't that he was outwrestled that much. He forgot to relax and do his thing. But give Krueger his

"Ben had a great season, 30plus wins. Last year he was sitting in the stands, and this year he got to participate. "He was crestfallen after he lost his second match. He just wasn't there. It wasn't Ben Lewis out there. It was Ben Lewis, but not Ben Lewis the wrestler."

J ings. At the plate, there were several superb performances. Center fielder Scott Anderson batted .375 and led the team in hits (18), runs scored (18), doubles (four) and stolen bases (9-for-9). He also had two triples, a home run and eight runs batted in.

Third-baseman Jeff Pendell had 11 hits, batted .355, scored 10 runs, was 5-for-5 in stolen bases and drove in a team-high 11 runs. Other standouts: Aaron Jones, .417, two doubles, three triples, seven RBI; Craig Overaitis, .375, one homer, six RBI; Solak, .294, two homers, six RBI; and Dan Taylor, .348, nine RBI.

George was particularly impressed with the play of his freshmen, Jones and Taylor. Taylor filled in for starting shortstop Jeff Miller, who suffered a deep thigh bruise in the fourth game and didn't play again. Taylor committed just two errors in eight games.

Madonna ended its trip last Friday in Cocoa Beach by beating Swarthmore College (Pa.) 9-3 on Solak's three-hitter and Stonehill College (North Easton, Mass.) 5-0 on a two-hitter by Mike Grahl ing Crusaders.

George could have hoped for.

In a single game on March 9, Madonna defeated Maryville University (St. Louis) 5-4, Henkel getting the win in relief of starter Ryan Grabetz. Chris Gajewski's run-scoring single in the seventh won it. On March 7, the Crusaders won twice, 9-4 over Malone College (Canton, Ohio) and 17-4 over Lock Haven (Pa.). Solak got the win in the first; Butler won the second in relief of Grahl.

The win streak started March 6 with a 4-0 win over New Hampshire, Joe Jentzer earning the win, and an 8-4 win over Wilmington College (New Castle, Del.), with Craig Benedict the winner. A day earlier, the Crusaders played three games: They lost 5-2 to Fairleigh Dickinson (Madison, N.J.) and 12-6 to Radford University (Va.), and beat Delaware Tech 3-2. McKaig and Kugelmanlost in the first two; Grabetz won the third, with Henkel getting a save.

They opened the trip March 4 with a 6-1 win over Kings College. (Wilkes-Barre, Pa.). Raptis was the winner.

Madonna next travels south to Ohio Dominican for a pair of doubleheaders Friday and Saturday. The Crusaders plan to open at home March 26 with a 1 p.m. doubleheader against Northwood University.

By then everyone should have recovered from the epidemic that knocked out more than half the team a week ago. "The highlight of the trip was winning nine games," said George. "The lowlight was everyone getting sick."

in the first round Friday and set the stage for his tournament run when he defeated Livonia Stevenson regional champion Ben Lewis, 14-10.

It was the first time they had wrestled each other since Lewis won by a point last year in the Observerland Tournament.

"I'd been looking forward to it," Krueger said. "I was beating him as a sophomore by quite a few points, but he came back and won in overtime.

"He's placed in a lot of tournaments, and (beating Lewis) made me feel good about what I was able to do."

Krueger, who also lost his first match at state last year, pinned Grand Haven's Matt Horodyski in his next match (1:44) to reach the semis, and he defeated Romeo's Andy Migliano 8-5 to earn a berth in the championship tion and followed in the footsteps of his brothers by doing well at the state meet. Lee was a twotime champion and Jason was third at 171 last year.

"I thought of them a lot," Krueger said. "Before I wrestled, I was thinking of my brothers, how they've done in wrestling and how (good) I can be."

Krueger lost in the final on a second-period pin (3:27) to Holt's Jason Hogarth (46-1).

He was quick and aggressive and used those traits to match the more powerfully built Hogarth in the first period, 4.4. But Krueger started the second in the down position and had a hard time getting lose and escaping.

"He was strong," Krueger said. "He had me caught on the bottom. I think I could have gotten out with a little more time. He wrestled great.

"I felt good (about his tournament chances) when I saw the bracket sheet, because Hogarth and some other people were on the other side.

Krueger (41-13) pulled an upset

All You Need is a Modem Almost any computer

N-LINE! is an electronic bulletin board service that lets you access all sorts of exciting menus. When you subscribe to ON-LINE!, you'll have lively "conversations" when you enter Multi-User Chat or Chat Conferences.

When you want to know what's happening you can pull the community calendar of events up on your screen and find someplace to go or something to do.

When you're in the mood to cook, you'll be able to choose from hundreds of recipes - yours or other ON-LINE! users. Or, if you're tired of cooking, you'll want to check the Dining Out menu.

Almost any computer manufactured in the last five years (even earlier) can be used for ON-LINE¹ communications. (For more sophisticated applications, you'll need at least 640k of RAM memory and a VGA color monitor.) But you also need a modem, which lets your computer use your regular home phone line to communicate with other computers.

Why leaves remain on some trees

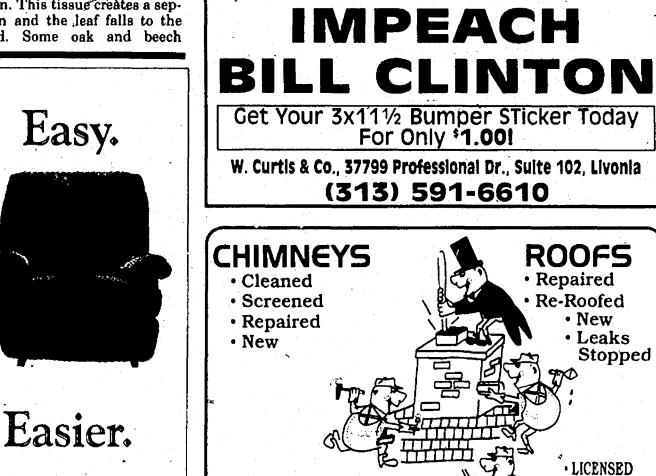

NATURE TRAILS TIMOTHY

The natural world is full of mysteries, so many mysteries that man will never be able to solve them all. In fact, when one mystery is pursued, new mysteries or questions arise that NOWICKI were not thought of before. Scientists, naturalists and curious people throughout the ages have wondered how things work in the natural world. How things work is often easier to answer than why they work that way.

One question that people often ask me is "Why don't all the leaves on oak trees and beech trees fall off in fall?" I've never been able to give people a reasonable answer until I watched some squirrels in my backyard the other day.

In fall, water is cut off from the stem to the leaf because of scarlike tissue that forms at the connection. This tissue creates a separation and the leaf falls to the ground. Some oak and beech leaves do not form a complete layer of scar tissue and thus the leaf does not fall off.

That is the standard explanation of how leaves fall off the branches and why some do not, and maybe the story ends there. But why do oak and beech trees do it more than any other kinds of trees? What advantage could the tree derive from not losing all its leaves, if any?

If we could "think" like a tree for a moment, let's branch off with some reasons why it produces so many acorns or beech nuts. When a nut matures and falls to the ground it sprouts into a young tree. If it lands in the shade of the adult tree, it will not survive because it cannot get enough sunlight to produce food.

So the tree needs something to move the acorns to an area where they might survive. Squirrels eat nuts, but they also bury them for future use. Some of those nuts will not be found and may then grow into a new tree. Thousands of nuts must be produced in order for a few to survive.

Oak and beech trees produce an abundant crop of nuts every three years, on the average. Between those years, it's harder for squirrels to find enough food, but the oak and beech trees want the squirrels to stay around so they can disperse their nuts when they are produced.

Leaves that remain on the branches all winter provide excellent insulation for maternity nests. All other leaves are on the ground soaked with melted snow. So my speculation is that there is an advantage for oak and beech trees to keep some of their leaves on the branches all winter. By doing so, squirrels will remain in the area even during years when the nut crop is very low.

Some of the finest students in metro Detroit will be performing music from their ethnic backgrounds, as well as music by American composers, 4 p.m. Sunday, March 20 at Varner Recital Hall, on the campus of Oakland University, in Rochester. Tickets are $10, students, $5. Call 689-3459.

"The Detroit Musician's League represents teachers and students from metro Detroit including Livonia, West Bloomfield, Troy and Bloomfield Hills," said Catherine Rollin of Bloomfield Hills. On the program are compositions for piano, violin, viola and flute from the four continents. "The concluding work, Dave Brubeck's 'They All Sang Yankee Doodle,' for two pianos, unifies the diverse ethnic origins that make up this country," said Rollin.

Participating students are planists Mark Hadley, Rebecca Chan, Vickie Aparece, Fu-zu Jen, Michael Wang, Yi-Chun Kuo, Saike Suzuki, LeeAnn Bess, Katie Davidson, violinist Roger Divine, flutist Jennifer Tittjung and violinist Jason Chan. While doing research on the real Annie Oakley, Sitting Bull, Buffalo Bill and Frank Butler for their production of "Annie Get Your Gun," 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, March 18-19, and 3 p.m. Sunday, March 20, students at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills discovered the existence of the Annie Oakley Foundation. Annie Oakley's great niece, Bess Edwards lives in Greenville, Ohio where Annie was born, and is coming to Farmington Hills to visit the students. Edwards is also attending opening night of Mercy's presentation of "Annie Get Your Gun." Don't miss this fine production, tickets are $8, students and seniors, $6. Call 476-3270. Mercy High School is at 29300 Eleven Mile Road. Schoolcraft College's '1994 Winter Theatre opens 8 p.m. Friday, March 18 with Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt's musical "The Fantasticks." Dinner, prepared by Schoolcraft's awardwinning culinary arts department, will be served 6:30 p.m. in the Waterman Center on campus, 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile Roads in Livonia. The show will follow at 8 p.m. in the Liberal Arts Theatre. Dinner theater tickets are $15.50 per person. A theater only show will be offered April 1, tickets are $6. Call (313) 462-4409. Dinner theaters will be offered 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, March 18, 19, 25, 26 and April 2.

Fine cast true to tradition of 'Fiddler'

■ "Fiddler on the Roof" presented by Nancy Gurwin Productions at the Jewish Community Center captures the warmth of this timeless tale.

BY EILEEN OXLEY Special Writer

ater lacks in size it makes up for in soul.

That soul inhabits Nancy Gurwin's production of "Fiddler on the Roof" presently playing at the theater nestled within the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield. And Gurwin's interpretation, like a line from the beloved Sheldon Harnick — Jerry Bock musical,

"keeps its balance in tradition." "It's pretty true to script — we haven't added or taken anything away," said Gurwin. The show is directed and choreographed by Kathi Bush.

The timeless and touching story of Tevye, a poor Jewish dairyman who struggles to survive in 1905 Czarist Russia, is set against the greater backdrop of that era in which a series of pogroms (persecutions) were organized to drive out the Jews.

It's all about change and, in Tevye's case, his three daughters and their courtships become a metaphor for that inevitable alteration which may not be such a bad thing. They pick men they love and, in varying degrees of rebellion, turn their backs on the old venerable way of matchmaking by embracing the new one of choice.

REVIEW

by 12-year-old violinist Aaron Lewis, steps out from the show's sidestage orchestra occasionally (a neat technique) to reinforce that bittersweet message of nothing-everstays-the-sameness through playing the same snatch of sonorous music.

The rest of the cast is excellent with several noteworthy performances. Jac Cortes may not be a fiery Tevye, but his warmth and earthiness are certainly endearing, especially when he sings the tender duet "Do You Love Me?" with Diana Reynolds who plays his long-suffering wife Golde with humor and depth.

All the daughters are good with Janet Patton adding a touch of sweet teenaged vulnerability as the youngest, Chara, and Susan Goodman Friedman playing a perky Hodel.

But special accolades must be given to two professional actors who shine above the rest — Paul Silver, a 10-year veteran of the Michigan Opera Theatre, gives a flawless performance as Perchik, the revolutionary student who falls in love with Hodel. And Nina Kircher, who's also had considerable acting experience, makes a wonderfully kibitzing Yentle, the story's matchmaker.

Leading role: Jac Cortes of Keego Harbor stars as Tevye in "Fiddler on the Roof."

Some of the best lines are hers as when Golde remarks that Tziedel and Motel (Kors Van Mourik), a penniless tailor who later marries Tziedel, still "play like children."

Attend LSO's Young Artist Competition

For the first time ever, the Livonîa Symphony is allowing people to attend the annual Young Artist Competition to be held 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, March 19, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, March 20 in the Kresge Auditorium at Madonna University, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia, (I-96 at Levan Road).

Admission to see this competition of the finest young artists from all over the State of Michigan, Windsor and Chicago, is $2 per day. Guests may stay the whole day. Contestants are scheduled to play for 15 minutes with a five minute break between. There will be a lunch break from noon to 1:15 p.m. on each day.

Guests will hear works by Ravel,

Strauss, Bizet, Mozart, Tchaikovsky, Schumann, Chopin, Khachaturian, Liszt, Handel, Puccini, Bach, Beethoven, Shostakovich, Saint-Saens and more.

Each contestant will be judged on musicianship, technique and overall stature as a possible performing artist with the orchestra.

This year the competition has a record 42 contestants competing in three areas — orchestra instruments 19 piano 10, and vocal 13.

Saturday morning there will be two voice, a clarinet, trombone, flute, violin and three piano contestants. In the afternoon the audience will hear, three piano, seven voice, two violin, flute, and a clarinet contestant. On Sunday morning there will be two voice, two piano, two violin, a clarinet, flute and trumpet contestants. In the afternoon there will be two voice, two piano, a clarinet, trumpet, flute, cello and saxophone contestants.

Each area will have a first place prize of $1,000 and a solo appearance with the orchestra on April 30. The second place prize in each area will receive a check for $500.

The judges are Frank DiBlasi, conductor of the Livonia Symphony Orchestra; John Redmon, head of the music department and a vocal teacher at Madonna University; and Karen Nixon Lane, conductor of the Farmington Area Philharmonic.

Competition judge: Frank Di-Blasi, conductor of the LSO, is one of the three judges of the Young Artist Competition.

LSO hosts delightful cabaret concert and fur aren't part of the family plan. Mom (Mimi Rogers) believes her nine-year-old daughter can't keep her room clean, much less care for a pet. Her stepfather (Christopher McDonald) says no because he's hyper-allergic to animal hair. Still, despite all the objections and excuses, Eva just can't live without a pet. And neither can Shorty Kohn (Harvey Keitel) in "Monkey Trouble," opening Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

Shorty, a two-bit hustler, has made quite a Fagen-esque living over the years by training a capuchin monkey to entertain and "lift" the crowds along the Boardwalk at Venice Beach. Trained to relieve admirers of their wallets and jewelry without their knowledge, the monkey also burglarizes homes.

n seiden seinen die Gestein der States seine seine seine seine Prices seine seinen sein

Now, a couple of uptown crooks want Shorty to put the monkey's felonious skills to work in a heist that could land them all on easy street.

But Shorty has a problem. He's abused his pet a little too much and his monkey is on the run. Desperate, he sets out to find his missing link at any cost in.

Miles away, Eva is startled by a small capuchin that suddenly leaps from a tree. Captivated by the creature's comical antics, she decides to claim his as her own.

As their bond develops, Eva quickly learns that caring for her new friend, whom she names Dodger, is not going to be as easy as she first though. He goes to the bathroom on the floor, is hard to control, and he's a pain to hide from her friends and her unsuspecting parents.

In the ensuing days, Eva discovers Dodger's dubious talents and attempts to break him from his life of crime. Just as he starts to make progress, she gets blamed for his pocket-picking.

Caught in a growing web of deceit, Eva finds it difficult to deal with her own dishonesty, and she must find a way to set things straight before her monkey business is exposed. But Shorty is onto her and he wants his mealticket back.

Writer/director Franco Amurri says his daughter, also named Eva, was the inspiration behind "Monkey Trouble." "She wanted a dog so badly," recalls the director. "And the key issue in our house became whether an eightyear-old could be responsible enough to care for a pet."

A father's love was Amurri's primary motivation for making the film. "I wanted to tell a story based on my own experiences and observations of my daughter's world," he said.

"If I was going to dedicate two or three years to a project, I wanted to make a film my daughter wouldn't have to wait 10 years to see. In the end, I wanted to make a film that families can enjoy together."

Although in real life, Amurri's daughter's longed for a dog as a pet, when developing the story for the screen, the writer/director felt "a monkey would present more interesting possibilities than a dog or a cat.'

That one change would eventually translate into enormous challenges for the filmmakers, and resulted in a pre-production period of almost a year and a half.

During that time, an elaborate search was conducted to find a specific type of capuchin monkey to star as Dodger, who is in virtually every scene in the film. The search was complicated by the fact that although there are some 30 sub-species of capuchins, none had ever been trained to appear in a film.

In addition to teaching Dodger the rudimentaries of screen acting, his trainers were faced with the challenges of having him, run, retrieve, climb trees, perform tricks on the back of a moving bicycle and hang from a flying kite, all on the director's cue.

A New Line release, "Monkey Trouble' is rated PG, (Some material may not be suitable for preteenagers).

A sick child: What should a parent do?

his reminder is to parents about dropping off sick children at the day-care home or center. A family day-care home provider in Livonia left a pleading message on my voice mail to please explain to parents about the necessity of having backup care for children too ill to participate in daily activities.

She wanted readers, who have children enrolled in early childhood education/prescl ool programs, to be aware of the problems, particularly the discomfort children often experience when they are ill, and their need to be home. The Livonia family day-care provider wanted this printed so that it might help other child-(are professionals who might have similar problems.

First of all, all families who have child en enrolled in day care need a responsible, acc-ssible, available person to serve as a backup or is a substitute caregiver. This backup person should be used occasionally when the child is too ill to go to day care, provided the parent cannet care for the ill child at the time, and when the daycare center is closed for whatever reason.

When children are first enrolled in a preschool program, during the interview or enroument process, the director or provider will ask if parents have backup caregiving arrangements. The center or day-care home director usually will give parents a handbook that goes into detail about their health policy and procedures for handling sick children. It should further explain what action the staff will take when children become ill while in care.

Yoga shapes up body and spirit

For most people, getting in shape means working up a sweat in aerobics class or pumping iron at the gym. But for those who aren't into those kinds of workouts, there's yet another way that can get your body in shape physically and spiritually - yoga.

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

If aerobics is a Corvette and weightlifting is a Dodge Ram, is yoga a Yugo? Yes and no.

Yoga isn't flashy like aerobics. and it won't give you a Charles Atlas body. But it can tone and stretch your muscles, tweak your posture, regulate your breathing and wash away the tension that dogs you like an IRS agent with a quota.

"A lot of the people who come to yoga are the people who can't do aerobics and can't jog," said Shirley Gill, who teaches yoga in the Clarenceville schools' adult education program. Even folks with artificial limbs and arthritis will find yoga agreeable with their disability. Gill said.

"The rest of the world is saying, 'Hurry up and get it now,' " while voga "helps you accept that everything doesn't have to be done quickly.

Yoga is a 5,000-year-old life-embracing philosophy that is part spiritual and part physical exercise. It's not a religion per se, but some people use it to feel closer to God. Bloomfield Hills resident Pamela Still, yoga is not easy either.

Jana Kelly, a social worker who teaches yoga part-time in Southfield and Birmingham, got hooked 20 years ago when she saw yoga demonstrated on television. Kelly describes yoga as "internal (and) very mental. It's kind of a personal vacation. It nurtures self-care, which can be very helpful to people."

Some humans are turned off by the internal and mental portions of the practice, Kelly said. "I'll do the body work, but don't tell me about God," she said they say.

And that's entirely possible. The Yoga Association of Greater Detroit will have its 11th Yoga Day on Saturday, April 16, at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggery Road, between Six and Seven Mile roads in Livonia.

The day is divided into four sessions made up of six sub-sessions, each covering a different aspect of yoga. There will be six to nine instructors per session, all gleaned from the ranks of the yoga association, including Spiro, Farkas, Gill and Kelly.

For $45 you may partake of all four sessions. Two sessions cost $25. A hot vegetarian lunch will be served for $7.50. Those attending may also bring a sack lunch. Keep kids at home?

Parents know their children, and the childcare professional expects them to. Parents are the primary caregivers and know the litt'e signs their particular child will give to signal a l is not well - a tug at the ear, an unusually quie nature, sudden whining or clinging to a parent.

Children often show parents signs of r ot feeling well in ways sometimes only parents can tell. That's what makes parents better at giving their child that special emotional, nurturing si pport needed when they are ill. Possible medic: tion, bed rest, and a favorite soft toy and parents are the best remedies for flu, ear or tummy aches, and other childhood illnesses that often prevent children from attending day care.

Children should stay home or should be sent home when these signs occur:

(1) Fever - If a child has a temperature of 100 degrees or above taken by mouth, 101 degrees or above taken rectally or 99 degrees or above taken under arm.

(2) Diarrhea - If child has two loose or watery stools, even if there are no other signs of illness. This may occasionally be caused by new foods a child has eaten, but may call the parent to find out if this is the likely cause.

(3) Vomiting - Any vomiting is a reason to send a child home. The exception is babics who may burp up food following a feeding (this is not vomiting). Motion sickness (from use of play equipment or riding in a car or other vehicle) which goes away after the motion stops would not be a reason to send a child home.

(4) Rash - Any rash illness should be checked by a physician. Any red or blotchy marks on face, trunk or arms and legs is a reason to send a child home. The child should remain at home until well after chicken pox, measles, rubella and other viruses have subsided. A child with scarlet fever should be treated with an antibiotic for 24 hours before returning to day care.

If a physician diagnoses a child as having Fifth disease, the child does not need to stay at home if he or she feels well. The exception is allergy and mild diaper rash already known to the parent are not reasons to send a child home.

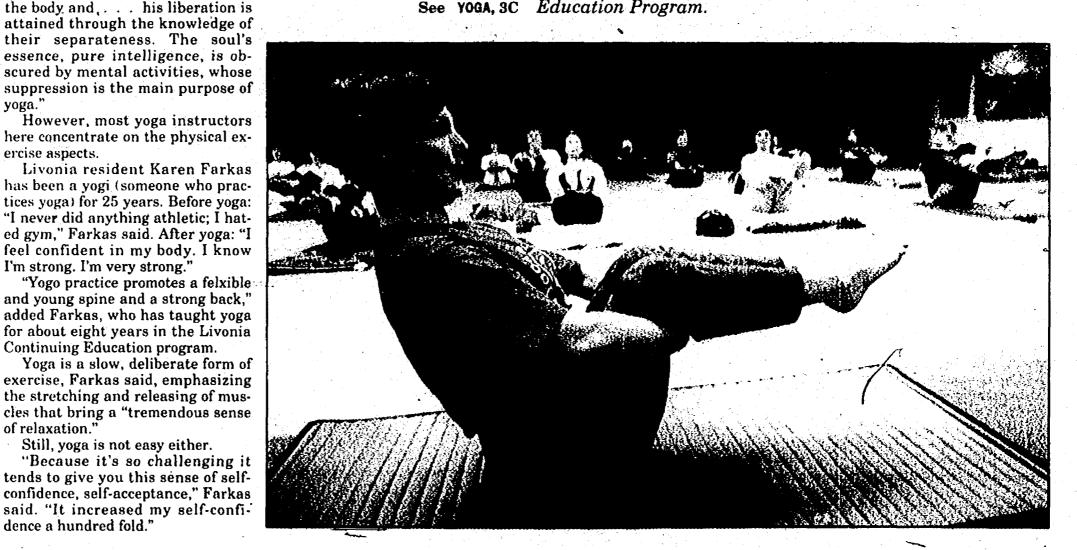

(5) Crying and complaining for a long time -Anytime a child is not him- or herself and is complaining about discomfort or just cranky and crying more than usual for that child.

(6) Injury - Whenever an injury is serious enough to need a physician's attention, a parent should be contacted to take the child hon e.

While not an emergency situation (no need to have the child picked up immediately), children with impetigo, lice, pinkeye, pinworms, r ngworm, scabies and thrush (candida) should remain at home until successfully treated.

Parents be attentive to their child's signals and symptoms of illness before hand. A parent being attentive when symptoms first occur and taking necessary action can help a child to recover faster. Thus, by calling your child's pe liatrician, or giving a child needed time to simply rest.

dence a hundred fold."

Lori Dow knows what it's like to have a child with attention deficit disorder. She has three sons, exhibiting different forms of the hereditary syndrome.

Her first son has ADD with hyperactivity, the second without. When the third son started exhibiting ADD tendencies, it was easier to spot because the family "was very educated" about the disorder.

C Roberta Zarea, on the other hand, is still learning. Her 6-year-old daughter was diagnosed with ADD last March. She also has an expressive language disorder and audio processing disorder.

"She's unpredictable; she's not consistent in her behavior and her learning skills," Zarea said. "It's very common to have other learning disorders with ADD."

Dow is president and Zarea is a member of Children and Adults with Attention Deficit Disorder of Northwest Wayne County, which will sponsor a workshop for parents and professionals at the Holiday Inn Livonia-West on Saturday, March 26.

The workshop will focus on "Activating Parent's and Professionals in the Special Education Process." Running from 9 a.m. to 3

The workshop will delve into such topics as the law, participation in the individual educationplanning process, initiating due process, communicating effectively, resolving conflicts, and laws on adaptation of the workplace for the disabled.

The cost is $20 for box lunch, materials and workshop; or $13 for the materials and workshop only.

CHADD is a parent-based organization formed to better the lives of individuals with ADD and the people who care for them. It also promotes teamwork and partnership between parents and schools.

"Parents and schools have to be positive and supportive of each other, rather than fighting with each other," Dow said. "And parents need to be assertive and know their rights.

"We try to educate parents and give them support; we try to educate the community. But our biggest challenge is working with the schools for the betterment of the child.'

Zarea's daughter and Dow's three sons are among 1.75 million American children who have been diagnosed with and treated for attention deficit disorder. It's estimated that another 1.75 million will go undiagnosed into adulthood. Children with ADD are characterized by symp-tems of institutioness impulsioness and some toms of inattentiveness, impulsiveness and sometimes hyperactivity which start before the age of hibit eight to be diagnosed with ADD.

"Impulsivity is such a factor that that's what gets them into trouble," Dow said. "They don't think before they act, and a lot of what they do isn't age-appropriate. They're emotionally immature, so they do a lot of things that aren't age-appropriate."

Children with ADD need to be taught what is acceptable and not acceptable, but a lot of the ordinary behavioral techniques don't work. One that does work is ignoring the negative behavior and emphasizing the positive behavior.

But ignoring the negative behavior can draw comments from strangers, even family members, who don't understand why a parent isn't dealing with an unruly child, according to Zarea.

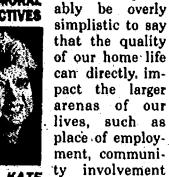

Most times the hyperactivity subsides as the child gets older, but residual effects of ADD - like the inability to focus and stay on task - remain. And as the child gets older, he or she learns coping mechanisms, so ADD isn't such a disability, Dow said.

"No two children with ADD exhibit the same symptoms or require the same help," she added. That's why it is so difficult for the schools that want to have a formula for educating these kids, so parents and schools have to work together to come up with an individualized program."

there is something to be observed about the kind of learning that does take place within the institution of our family life that can impact the other institutions in our society.

There is a saying that our homes are to give us "roots and wings." The home environment can give us a grounding — a heritage — the story and roots of our people that can serve as the road maps to help us along our own life's journeys. The home can also be a place where we can test our wings, a place where we are encouraged to "Go for it" and "Become all that we're meant to be."

Maybe it's time we take an intentional look at some of the positive things that an environment of safety and belonging and hope can offer in terms of patterns for everyday living — wherever we are.

Back in the late 1970s, there was a survey done on what constitutes a healthy family. So much had been written about what's wrong with families that Delores Curran asked 551 psychologists, teachers, family therapists and youth counselors to describe qualities shared by families which promoted healthy relationships. She came up with 15 traits which are commonly found in healthy families.

She is quick to point out that no family or home environment ever incorporates all of these qualities. Good thing. When I read over the list, I asked myself "Would six out of 15 be a good start at least?"

What this list provides is at least a discussion starter about ways we can become more intentional in creating our home environments to become ecologies of hope and belonging and health.

Here are the 15 traits of a healthy family:

1. Communicating and listening.

2. Fostering table time and conversation.

3. Affirming and supporting. 4. Respecting others.

5. Trusting.

6. Sharing time with a sense of play and humor. 7. Balancing interaction among members.

8. Sharing some leisure time together.

9. Teaching morals — and imparting a sense of right and wrong. 10. Enjoying tradition and rituals.

11. Sharing a religious core. 12. Respecting privacy.

13. Valuing service to others. 14. Seeking help with problems. 15. Fostering and sharing responsibilities.

This survey sought to build on family strengths. Maybe it's time to look at our family systems whatever their configuration single, blended, two-parent, empty nester, newly married, roommates, whatever - and focus on. the healthy traits that these basic environments can offer to our larger society.

We know that some home environments also can be places where harm and neglect can happen. And for many people, it's helpful to work through some of the negative patterning with professionals who can provide that kind of "safe, nurturing environment" that is much like that idealized "home" that is pictured here.

And yet, in spite of our sophisticated research and knowledge about family systems today, it would benefit us also to take a look at the positive strengths and seek to find ways that we can make our own home life and basic relationships more like ecologies of hope and healing and wellbeing.

Promise Keepers, founded in 1990 by Colorado University head football coach Bill McCartney, is a Christ-centered ministry dedicated to uniting men through vital relationships to become godly influences in their world.

The initial goal of Promise Keepers was to fill Colorado University's Folsoni Field with 50,000 men to honor Jesus Christ and to learn more about becoming men of integrity. That goal was realized at Promise Keepers 1993 in Boulder, Colo.

The organization has enlarged its vision to gather men in stadiums throughout the nation with the goal in 1994 being to hold conferences at six stadiums - in Indianapolis, Ind., Boulder, Colo., Portland, Ore., Anaheim, Calif., Dallas-Fort Worth, Texas, and Boise, Idaho.

At one time there was one area CHADD chapter with some 600 members. It has since broken up sinto nine different chapters throughout the metropolitan area. The Northwest Wayne chapter takes in the Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, South Redford and Northville school districts, and has more than 200 members.

The group meets the third Thursday of the month at the Livonia Civic Center Library. Sign-in is at 7 p.m., with the meeting — sometimes featuring a speaker, sometimes a video or a rap session — at 7:30 p.m.

For Dow, the group was a godsend. Her oldest son was diagnosed at 8 years of age and being involved in CHADD "gave me power as a parent.

"I can't imagine how a parent can do it without information." Dow added. "It's difficult keeping the family dynamics when you're challenged by ADD, but I couldn't imagine doing it without the good support system of CHADD and my husband."

can prevent a mildly ill child from becoming seriously ill.

Also by keeping a child home when they are ill, can help to minimize the spread of germs. By being an attentive, take-action parent when your child becomes ill also can minimize the number of days spent away from work or from your child's center. Ignoring the signs can only prolong illness, keeping children from getting the necessary care they need, while adding undue stress by being away from your job.

When children come to day care not able to actively participate in the daily activities, not only are they frustrated and unhappy, the caregiving staff is unhappy as well. Staff people become frustrated when they are unable to provide necessary care for a sick child. This is especially true in family day care where a provider has up to six children at a time; without another adult on site to attend to the other five healthy children in care.

In a larger setting, a staff person may be assigned to care for the mildly ill child, until the par-

ROLL CALL REPORT Area Dems kill ethics probe

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending March

HOUSE

Post Office Probe: By a vote of 238 for and 186 against, the House killed a proposal (H Res 238) that its Ethics Committee begin probing charges that certain House members embezzled from the House Post Office in a stampsfor-cash scam. With this vote, the House adopted a Democratic leadership motion that tabled a Republican bid for an immediate probe. Earlier, the House approved a separate Democratic resolution to defer any House probe until after federal prosecutors complete an ongoing criminal investigation of the matter.

At issue was a court disclosure last July by former House Postmaster Robert Rota. Pleading guilty to his involvement in the scheme, he told authorities "several" members of Congress illegally received cash from the post office.

The allegation came after the House completed an internal probe of the post office scandal. The House has not looked into Rota's charges. The U.S. attorney investigating the scandal took a stand against H Res 238, saying it could compromise his probe.

CA yes vote opposed an immediate Ethics Committee investigation of the post office scandal. Area representatives voting yes were: Bob Carr, D-Pontiac, Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Ford, D-Ypslianti. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham.

Immigration Issue: By a vote of 78 for and 329 against, the House rejected an amendment requiring school districts to tally and report the number of students who are illegal aliens or have parents who are not legal U.S. residents. The amendment was proposed to a bill (HR 6) renewing the Elementary and Secondary Education Act that remained in debate. The counting requirement was aimed at schools with high concentrations of disadvantaged students.

A yes vote favored the counting requirement. Area representatives voting no were: Bob Carr, Dale Kildee, Joseh Knollenberg, Sander Levin and William Ford.

Education Bill: By a vote of 128 for 287 against, the House rejected an amendment that sought to block creation of a new education program. The vote preserved the program. It occurred during debate on HR 6 (above).

At issue was whether to spend $10 million annually for pilot projects that would help disadvantaged students in selected districts make the transition to elementary school from preschool program such as Head Start.

Amendment supporters said the transition assistance should be provided nationwide through normal funding channels in the bill, not parceled out to a small number of school districts. Dan Miller, R-Fla., said "scarce federal dollars" should be spent on "broad national education concerns rather than on specific constituencies."

Amendment foe Jolene Unsoeld,)-Wash., said: "We need to support these young children early in heir education. Research shows hat without this support in those sarly years, we can expect inreased school failure, higher dropput rates, all of which are more costly in the long run."

A yes vote was opposed to new 'ederal education program. Area representatives voting yes were: Knollenberg. Voting no: Carr, Kildee, Levin and Ford.

SENATE

Budget Amendment: By a vote of 63 for and 37 against, the Senate rejected a proposed amendment to the Constitution (SJ Res 41) whose main sponsores were Paul Simon, D-III. and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah. Supporters fell four votes short of the two-thirds majority needed to send the legislation to the House.

This was the stricter of two balanced budget proposals before the Senate. It allowed annual deficits only with the approval of threefifths majorities of Congress, or when both houses agreed by majority vote that the country faced war or a national security crisis. It required three-fifths majorities to raise the debt limit, and majorities to raise taxes.

A yes vote supported the Simon-Hatch amendment. Michigan Senators Carl Levin, D, voted no and Donald Riegle, D, voted no.

÷ I

Substitute Amendment: By a vote of 22 for and 78 against, the Senate rejected a balanced budget constitutional amendment that was a scaled-back version of SJ Res 41 (above). This offering by Harry Reid, D-Nev., also allowed deficit spending only when three-fifths majorities of both houses voted to allow red ink, or when the nation was in or near military conflict.

But it applied only to the federal operating budget, exempting capital spending such as for public works projects. It allowed deficits in times of recession. It exempted Social Security receipts and expenditures from calculations of whether the budget is balanced. And it proposed no change in procedures for raising the national debt, limit and levying taxes.

A yes vote supported the Reid substitute. Sens. Levin and Riegte both voted no.

Acrylics on canvas catch curator's eye lymouth's Carol Walkiewicz had never exhibited her artwork before, despite dabbling in the world of acrylics and brushstrokes for upwards of 30 years.

But Atrium Gallery's Pat Jania of Novi jumped at the chance to exhibit six of the former Westland resident's contemporary acrylics on canvas.

"It takes awhile for artists to finally make that decision to sell their work," Jania said. "She finally made that decision. And this is her first show.

'We like to present unusual styles and unique pieces," Jania added, "and these are entirely different than anything we've had because they're so contemporary - and we consider ourselves a contemporary gallery.

"It's exciting because they're so different."

Four large abstracts and two smaller paintings by Walkiewicz are on exhibit through March at Atrium Gallery, 109 N. Center, in downtown Northville. They range in price from $150 to $750.

The work exudes a floral feeling even though it represents just a series of short brushstrokes. Says Jania: "It's bursting forth with color, like the opening of a flower. The flow of color is quite interesting."

Despite what the eye sees, Walkiewicz doesn't set out painting in still life. "It's more a feeling she manages to create on canvas through the movement of her brushstroke," said Jania, gallery

Plymouth taps new arts director

The Plymouth Community Arts Council begins its 25th year with a new executive director and promising plans for new, expanded headquarters.

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

Pewabic tile on Randy Lee's desk sums up her philosophy of the arts:

"That's a loose translation of Hippocrates, and one I heard my dad say many times growing up. I didn't completely understand it then. Years later, my sister and I saw the phrase on a wall at the Detroit Institute of Arts - suddenly the meaning was clear," said Lee, newly appointed executive director of the Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC).

Lee took over the part-time position in January month from Christine llas, who left for a full-time job with a Farmington Hills marketing firm. Ilas will stay on the board of directors as a volunteer and handle communications and promotions, said Karen Tripp, PCAC president.

"This job is perfect for me because it blends the two areas I'mmost enthused about - education and promotion of the arts, I'm looking forward to making things that I've been committed to actually happen," said Lee of Plymouth.

The executive director's job is one of two paid positions at PCAC, a co-owner with Heidi Eizelman of Farmington Hills.

An art teacher at Annapolis High School in Dearborn Heights for the past 27 years, Walkiewicz flirts with realism but prefers abstraction when at the easel in her home studio.

'Abstraction lets me express myself better and, besides, I enjoy it more. Sometimes I have a theme in mind, but other times I play with colors, shapes and forms. I don't want every piece to say a particular thing.'

Jania's floral interpretation doesn't surprise Walkiewicz, who likes to grow flowers in her garden. "I like natural things like plants and flowers, and that's probably apparent in my work."

The 4-year-old gallery carries a lot of blownglass. Walkiewicz' pieces especially complement those of Birmingham glassblower Stan Megdall.

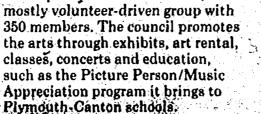

"Some of our prettiest pieces from Stan have a jewel tone - teals, magentas, golds, lapis blues, purples, deep colors instead of a pastel look," Jania said. "Carol's pieces have that quality."

As a youngster growing up in Grosse Pointe Woods, Walkiewicz loved to design and make things. Often, she experimented with different materials. She remembers transforming gift wrapping into an animal or a doll. Later, she made doll clothes from her own designs.

"I was never much of a pattern person," she said. "I've always wanted to design things."

Walkiewicz didn't start to paint until college. She earned a bachelor's degree in design from the University of Michigan and a master's in art education from Eastern Michigan.

It also sponsors the Damaris Student Fine Arts Awards and adult art education at Center for Creative Studies, Detroit.

"Randy has unsurpassed passion for Plymouth and for keeping arts activities happening here. I think she's put in 80 hours a week since she took over and the job only calls for 25," Tripp said. "Christine's (llas) marketing know-how helped increase the council's visibility. Now we need to increase programming to meet the community's needs. Randy's education background can only enhance the council and its programs." PCAC celebrates its 25th anniversary this year and plans a longawaited move from cramped quarters downtown to the former Jehovah Witnesses Kingdom Hall, 774 Sheldon Road. The Plynouth City Commission approved preliminary plans Feb. 7 for the arts group to buy the 4,000square-foot building on a land contract arrangement with the city.

PCAC's annual operating budget is about $100,000, which comes from fund-raisers, program fees, memberships, grants and donations. And like most other arts groups, it hasn't seen much state support since the mid-1980s, when Michigan Council grants were around $7,000 a year. So, like her predecessor, Lee says fund-raising will be a priority.

for the Arts and Cultural Affairs

"Arts groups in larger communities may not be suffering as much as those in smaller places because they have a greater population to draw from. Smaller arts groups need to look to other sources of income and beef up programming to reach more people. We'll enhance our efforts with corporate fund-raising," Lee said.

In addition to aggressive fundraising, Lee has five other long and short-term goals:

Relocate PCAC headquarters to the former Jehovah Witnesses building by spring 1994 and begin renovations. The church includes a stage for concerts and has the space needed for art/music classrooms and the art rental gallery, now at Dunning-Hough Library.

Add programs for senior citizens, including monthly art appreciation classes and three to four yearly trips to the Detroit Institute of Arts. Generate more volunteers, which translates into new ideas, Lee said. Increase programming. Increase membership.

Lee taught first grade in Ann Arbor before sons Christopher and Matthew, now age 19 and 17 respectively, were born. She's been a PCAC volunteer since 1983 and, hefore becoming executive director, agreed to co-chair its murder mystery fund-raiser earlier this month at Laurel Manor Banquet & Conference Center, Livonia.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

She also co-chairs Plymouth Study Group, whose membership includes 150 Plymouth-area women, and is director of Excellence in Education, a Plymouth-based group that awards study grants to Plymouth-Canton youths.

She hasn't dabbled much in arts and isn't a musician, but Lee's appreciation of the arts is strong and deeply rooted. Her family, who moved from Livonia to Plymouth in 1969, fostered the arts with regular outings to the Detroit Institute of Arts, theater and symphony, she said.

"It's a pretty good show this year," said chairwoman Evelyn Henry of Redford Township. "We have a diversity of work."

Ralph Glenn, chairman of the art department at Madonna University in Livonia, judged the 86-piece show, awarding first, second and third place as well as eight honorable mentions. Media include oil, watercolor, First place went to Helene Zelenka for the oil triptych, "Tulips No. 1."

"Overall, the quality of the show was very high on the basis of very effectively being able to handle their technique subject matter," said Glenn, a Bloomfield Hills resident.

"The tulips," he said, "were very sensitive, very soft and ephemeral."

Hedwig Reineke won second place for a dynamic "Volcano," painted in watercolor. Explosions of orange color the work with a lively energy.

New magazines insightful harbingers of spring spring have arrived and you'll find many of them at local newsstands. Sample some of the following magazines and you'll get a foretaste of the season that is about to reveal its love-DIAZ ly countenance across southeast Michigan:

Country Home (April) ---"Celebrate Spring," the cover of this glossy magazine announces, and inside every page seems tinged, with sunlight. Standout features include an up-close look at a rainbow-hued seaside cottage on Vancouver's beautiful Salt Spring Island; a visit to the historic home and fragrance gardens of a Connecticut perfume maker (via CH's luscious photos, you can practically smell the foxglove, roses and other heaven scents); plus "Morning Glories," a ninepage spread on delectable country inn breakfasts.

Also, don't pass up Craig Kennedy's nostalgic look at a time when, each spring, the junior class — armed with crepe paper, glitter and some staple guns created a dreamy and memorable prom in high school gymnasiums as LaBelle Provence (French across the land.

Michigan Living (March) ----Golfers, take note. This is ML's tor"), Crawford's (if you go, never annual "tee time" issue and you

Heralds of won't want to plan any of this year's major golf outings without a thorough look at it first. From your armchair, take a tour of the new Thoroughbred Golf Club, just north of Muskegon, at the Double JJ Dude Ranch. (No buffaloes roam here but, occasionally, horses saunter across the fairway.)

Check out other new spots, from the Quest, overlooking Houghton Lake, to the Majestic on Walden Lake (the course swings around the lake and if you play only the front nine, you can return to the clubhouse via ferry), to the Gailes at Oscoda (named by Golf Digest last year as the outstanding new resort .course). Finally, read Dave Seanor's incisive comments on wetlands holes - which, according to Seanor and other experts - are fast becoming "the signature of Michigan cours--es.'

Detroit Monthly (March) -DM has a new executive editor, Mary Kramer (from Crain's Detroit Business), a modified look and, please God, some fresh, new ideas.

Via "Streetwalk," take a springtime stroll through downtown Northville's growing collection of delightful shops and eateries. A map of the lively area is included along with brief information bites on such spots country decor), the Atrium Gallery (for "the novice art collecskip dessert) and the colorful

Certified master chef Milos Cihelka (of the Golden Mushroom in - Southfield) instructs students on how to prepare such goodies as deer, bear, boar, rabbit, pheasant, quail and duck. Bonuses: Cihelka's recipe for Venison Steaks with Mushrooms, recommended cookbooks and where to buy game in the Detroit area, including alligator meat.

■ The Saturday Evening Post (March/April) - No, it has nothing specifically to do with spring but read Tracy Thompson's "Seeking the Wizards of Prozac" in the Post, anyway.

It's a fascinating article about Thompson's search for the three men - Ray Fuller, David Wong and Bryan Molloy - chiefly responsible for developing the controversial wonder drug used to treat depression. It's an especially intriguing tale since Thompson herself suffered from severe bouts of depression for 30 years before Prozac came along in 1988 and apparently, in a sense, resurrected her.

Always accessible to the lay reader, the feature clearly explains the basic make-up of Prozac, briefly traces its history and paints an arresting word-picture the ancient Greeks called melan- ornamental grasses to "city folk" individuals responsible for changthought-provoking surprises. PLYMOUTH FRAMEWORKS

Through April — An exhibit features contemporary artist Barbara Wood. "An artist who communicates with the viewer" and "emotional energy" are descriptions of Wood and her work. Focusing on women as her primary subject, Wood brings fresh delight in her reflection of mood and intimate scenes capturing the essence of a moment others have experienced. Fascinated with color, her pictures can be bold and vigorous or have a poetic delicacy. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, 833 Penniman, Plymouth, (313) 459-3355.

URBAN PARK-DETROIT ART CENTER

Continuing — "Living on the Edge: Homeless in America," an exhibition of photographs by Westland photographer Guy Warren. For the last three years, Warren has traveled across the U.S., documenting what has become an army of homeless people. Using the stark, sometimes harsh elements of black and white photography, he hits home hard with unaltered images that show what it me ins to tough it out on the streets. To April 4. Hours: 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday-Saturday, noon to 7 p.m. Sunday. Bring a donation of canned food, blankets or money to benefit homeless people in the Detroit area. GALLERY: FUNCTION ART

Friday, March 18 - Gonzalo Rodriguez and Susan Brookshire, both recent graduates of the Center for Creative Studies, are featured artists through March 30. The works of both artists investigate the mystical and sensual, while retaining practicality and functionality. Works by artists such as Ray Katz, Derek Conte and Matt Schellenberg are displayed. Two of Detroit's finest fiction writers, Lolita Hernandez and Perri Giovannucci, will participate in the Third Friday Reading Series 6-9 p.m. Friday; $5 donation at the door. (The series is co-sponsored by the "Art in the Air" radio show, 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Thursdays on WPON-AM 1460.) The gallery is at 23-B W. III OAKLAND COUNTY GALLERIA Saturday, March 19 — "Image, Light and Structure 1994," an invitational glass exhibition, continues to April 28. Awards presentation 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday, in the Executive Office Building, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac, (810) 858-0415. THE SYBARIS GALLERY Saturday, March 19 — "The Inner Spirit," a show of sculpture by Kyoung Ae Cho and Linda Kelly, and an exhibit of brooches made from industrial materials and precious metals and stones by Helen Mason, will continue through April 22. Opening reception to meet the artists 6-8 p.m. Saturday. Cho graduated with a master of fine arts degree from the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills in 1991. She chooses to work with nature for its powerful associations and her objective is to collaborate with its inherent form, paying homage to what she feels nature provides. Kelly's forms have their beginnings in baskets and are on a human scale. She speaks of her forms reflecting the human experience. Mason searches for ways to make three-dimensional forms that will be extensions of the physical presence of the wearer. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 202 E. Third, Royal Oak, (810) 544-3388. I REVOLUTION: A GALLERY. PROJECT Saturday, March 19 - The gallery will have a wildlife art preview through April 3 as a kickoff to the Michigan Wildlife Art Festival, showing works by nationally known wildlife artists. The entire gallery will be drained and stocked with the greatest specimens of wildlife art that can be captured. Featured artist Bruce Langton will be honored at a reception 4-8 p.m. Saturday. Langton will be showing his newest release, "Fishing the Mist." This is a chance to meet the artist and see his limited edition prints, etchings, bronze sculptures and original art. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-"riday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, in the Novi Town Center at 43267 Crescent Blvd., south of I-96 and east off Novi Road, Novi, 380-0470.

JEAN PAUL SLUSSER GALLERY

Saturday, March 19 — The ninth annual Student Awards Exhibition continues to March 26. Awards ceremony and reception 7 p.m. Saturday. The juried exhibit features award-winning works by University of Michigan School of Art artists and designers who are recipients of various endowment and merit awards and prizes made possible by alumni and friends of the School of Art. The gallery is in the U-M Art and Architecture Building in Ann Arbor. Call (313) 763-4417.

E THE ARTISTS' GALLERY Sunday, March 20 — "Creating

Jewelry — A Sensual Experience," a display of jewelry by Annette Berenholz, will be presented March 19 to April 24. Reception 1-4 p.m. Sunday. The artist uses a variety of precious stones, and sterling silver as well as gold. The metal is stretched, heated, bent, heated again and finally polished, making a refined object of beauty that has vitality and integrity.

urday, 1-5 p.m. Sunday, in Orchard Place Mall at 30905 Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills, (810) 855-8832.

CENTER GALLERIES Tuesday, March 22 --- "War

Toys" by California sculptor Bella Feldman continues to April 15. The artist will discuss her sculpture, including "War Toys," 11:45 a.m. Tuesday at Boughton Auditorium, in the Center for Creative Studies Institute of Music and Dance Building at John R and Kirby in Detroit; a reception and Toys" will follow immediately at Center Galleries. Admission to the slide lecture and gallery talk is free and open to the public. Feldman's assembly of 26 smallscale "toys" is disarmingly childlike and potentially lethal. Created in response to the Gulf War, they bristle with antennae, threatening projections and razorsharp saw blades. Installed on the floor like children's toys left out after a day's play, they imply that playthings may lead to destructive impulses. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, closed April 1-4, in the Park Shel ton Building at 15 E. Kirby, ground floor, Suite 107, Detroit. (313) 874-1955.

PARK WEST GALLERY

To March 17 — The soaring, wildly imaginative and colorful works of Russian artist Marc Chagall are featured in an exhibit and sale, including more than 100 lithographs, engravings, aquatints and etchings. Featured is the entire Chagall Bible, an epic series of 105 illustrations that has been hailed as the single greatest printmaking accomplishment of the 20th century. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, 29469 Northwestern Highway, just north of 12 Mile in Southfield, (810) 354-2343. THE ART CENTER

Through March 18 — An exhibit of the Michigan Annual XXII, a statewide fine art competition, continues. Award recipients include Yoriko Cronin of Farming ton Hills, who was given the Pres-

comb Place, Mount Clemens, (810) 469-8666. B PAINT CREEK CENTER FOR THE ARTS

To March 18 - "History/Faith," an exhibit of paintings and sculptures by Matthew Hanna in the Main Gallery; an installation by Marcia Freedman in Artsight; and recent works by Sunmi Yu in Artists' Corner continue, Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 407 Pine, Rochester, (810) 651-4110.

H BACKDOOR GALLERY

Through March 19 — "Entering the Dreaming" includes new fiber and sculpted dolls by Marian Draugalis as well as drawings and hand-colored photographs by illustrator Patricia Green. In the exhibit, stories, maps, messages and treasures guide the novice dream traveler through a magical realm populated by shadow dancers, light beings and song mistresses. Hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday-Friday, noon to 5 p.m. Saturday or by appointment, 37220 Eight Mile, Farmington, (810) 474-8306.

CIRCLE GALLERY

Through March 20 --- "Meditations and Magic," an exciting exhibit of vibrant, colorful works by Judith Bledsoe, continues. Bledsoe's rich, luminous works convey her passionate love affair with life and reflect a playful fascination with the world around her, and also include lively, imaginary landscapes inhabited by fantastic animals and magical people. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday and Thursday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Wednesday and Saturday, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, in the Somerset Collection at Big Beaver Road and Coolidge in Troy, (810) 649-1779. Employee training a Village Green key

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

There's no sense reinventing thewheel as far as a Farmington Hills apartment construction and management firm is concerned.

An in-house orientation and training course based on similar programs at McDonald's and Disney has made a difference in how employees approach their work and profitability, a key Village Green Management executive maintains. "Our main goals, number one, are to increase the level of performance of all our employees," said Terry Schwartz, CEO of Village Green Management. "Second would be better performing communities for our customers.

"Third, having highly qualified people translates to a better bottom line. We add value to the assets of our clients," he said.

All new employees participate in a daylong orientation program that includes such topics as human resources, fair housing and stress management.

Those inclined to the management and leasing side then have three days of training in company operations/ computers and two days in sales.

Maintenance specialists have their own courses after the first-day orientation.

A two-year, post-graduate executive intern course is available for employees who aspire to higher management. "Our employee turnover is considerably lower than it was in the '80s,'

Schwartz said. "Last year, with 70 communities, our site manager and maintenance supervisor turnover rate was 17 percent. In this industry, you're looking at 50 percent. "Our employees have a greater understanding of client goals and objectives than most others in this business," he said. "Because of that, there's more focus.'

And consistency. "We manage probably the most diversified portfolio of anyone in the U.S." Schwartz said, adding that Village Green oversees about 12,000

8,000 owned by others.

Village Green employs about 700 in nine states.

Schwartz and Jonathan Holtzman. chairman of the Village Green Companies, started the training program five years ago. Virtually all employees on board before it was instituted have since gone through, too.

"I always felt and Jonathan believes that you set people up for failure if you just throw them out there to do the job," Schwartz said. "If people are inconsistent, why have a large company?

"We're different. We push. We have expectations. I think you shake out those who aren't quality. You'll see it right away," Schwartz said.

Jackie Green is assistant manager at Village Green of Waterford.

"I guess the most valuable part of training was process and delivery of information," she said. "It was very useful and very practical. Sales training was the most helpful. I liked that part mostly because of the enthusiasm."

Lisa Gale joined Schwartz's team about four years ago and will soon manage Village Green of Franklin.

"There's a lot to learn, especially when you're new," Gale said. "It's the we-care philosophy - they really stress that."

Village Green has made its program available to its clients and other management firms in non-competitive parts of the country.

Bonnie Burskey, assistant vice president for Acquest Realty Advisors in Bloomfield Hills, has sat in on some of the training sessions.

"It seemed rather unique to me, to Schwartz said.

see someone so involved that the leasing staff had the company's message and objectives in mind, to understand the value of tenants and how to market effectively to them," Burskey said.

"Years ago, there wasn't much training," Schwartz said. "You had to be a self-starter. My experience is there's some level of training in most of the leading companies.

"As for smaller companies, they bring someone in one day a year for seminars. If there's an apartment association, in our neck of the woods there is one, it opens it up for members of smaller companies to send people.

"I believe in-house we offer the broadest training throughout the nation for a company our size,'

Tom Wilson - Executive of the Year

By DOUG FUNKE

Hills isn't your typical subdivision, even for Oakland County.

STAFF WRITER

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Tom Wilson, a Rochester Hills resident, may be the ultimate insider's insider.

ing for the western division.

The 44-year-old actor turned business executive is president of the Palace of Auburn Hills, Detroit Pistons. Pine Knob and Detroit Neon.

He must be doing something right.

Since the late 1980s, the Palace became the first arena named Best New Venue and Arena of the Year in successive years by Performance magazine. The Pistons won two NBA championships. Pine Knob experienced a refurbishing.

"To have a successful organization, you have to have a passion for it, not only the work, but for the people in the organization and everything the organization stands for," he said.

The personable Wilson also is •involved with the wider community, including the Boy Scouts of America, CATCH, William Beaumont Hospital and the American Cancer Society.

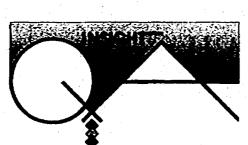

Wilson obviously commands respect for his capabilities and accomplishments. He recently was selected Executive of the Year by the Oakland Executives Association, an organization for professionals and senior corporate managers.

Following are edited excerpts of a recent interview with Wilson:

What do you see as your role being president of so many different enterprises?

Wilson: For the most part, when there are so many different entities, your main responsibility is to get good people to work for you and with you - I like with you better - provide some direction for these people, then get out of their way.

How do you prepare for a job like yours?

the people. I went from acting to working in the marketing area for hockey and basketball.

When I started here, there were five people working for the Pistons. Almost everything you do around here, I've done.

A lot of people with the Pistons came in with telemarketing. That's probably one of the toughest jobs there is. Only the strongest survive. That's how I came up.

When we were at the Silverdome and we had a lot of promotions and the trucks came in, I was down there, myself, unloading.

You have a basic business background - I majored in business administration at Wayne State - and you get in sports.

Over the course of 15 years, I went from basketball, to the Palace to Pine Knob, each one being a logical extension of another.

What's your typical day like?

Wilson: I come in around 6 a.m. and work out and get upstairs between 7:30 and 8. From then on, there is no typical day. I believe (in managing by, walking around. The more places you are, the more information you're able to disseminate and the more you're able to learn.

I may spend some time talking with Billy McKinney (general manager of the Pistons) about the team, then talk with the marketing people and then I'll spend time with the financial people. You do have a life as far as planning out a schedule, but ceed. Wilson: It's marketing, public many times you are led by Dr. Marshall G. Katz, an internist from West Bloomfield, was appointed corporate medical director for Blue Care Network of East Michigan, 🖗 based in Saginaw. Katz

Gov. John Engler reappointed Francisco J. Villarruel of Livonia, an attorney in private practice, to the Michigan Civil Rights Commission. The governor appointed Victoria L. Cicone of Troy to the Nursing Home Administrators Board. She's a registered nurse and administrator of Shelby Nursing Center.

Tana Dean has joined the salesstaff of Kimcraft Printers, Livonia. The Saline resident's background includes electronic prepress and print sales.

Saginaw-based Rehmann Robson, an accounting firm, has promoted two accountants in the Farmington Hills office. Deborah Fallucca of Troy becomes assistant vice president and Pat Watson of Plymouth becomes senior manager. Fallucca does tax consulting and compliance for individual and corporate clients. Watson works in the consulting department and law firm profitability group.

Donald Reid of Birmingham has joined R.L. Polk & Co. as director of technical services for the corporate data center in Taylor. He previously managed technical services for Volkswagen of America. William C. Doty of Birmingham became manager of the development center and standards for corporate information systems in Taylor. He managed application development processes for several major firms, including Douglas & Lomason and Volkswagen.

becomes design director of The Hot Shop Design Group, the independent design studio at Bozell/ North Advertising, Southfield. She previously was a senior designer at Cromwell Communications, Royal Oak.

Howard B. Padgham was elected a trustee of Lawrence Technological University, Southfield. The Clarkston resident is an engineer for LH car programs at Chrysler Corp.

Frank Spinella of Troy has joined Money Mailer of Michigan-Northwestern Ohio as regional sales trainer. He's responsible for training, developing and supervising new Money Mailer franchisees. He's been a senior account executive for REACH Magazine/Val Pak and general manager of the Advisor and Source Newspapers.

George C. Nordenholt of Birmingham was elected president of The International Organization for Fluid Power and Motion Control Professionals, based in Milwaukee. Frank Garner of Rochester Hills was named to the board of directors. Nordenholt, a retired application engineer, teaches at Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn. Garner is manager of training programs for Vickers, Inc., Rochester Hills.

David Dankovich of Royal Oak, a sales representative for Liberty Mutual Insurance, Troy, since 1993, received the insurer's Auto Plus award for sales of auto policies.

Dr. Herbert Y. Bez of Southfield was elected to the board of trustees of Horizon Health Systém, parent company of Bi- County Community Hospital, Warren, and Riverside Osteopathic Hospital, Trenton. He's a surgeon on staff at Bi-County. Donald J. Bortz Jr. of Bloomfield Township was elected to the Horizon Health Systems corporate membership. He owns and operates Bortz Health Care, with 13 locations, including one in West Bloomfield.

Bloomfield Hills for building new today without spending a fortune buying a rambling estate, tearing it down, then starting from scratch, Komer said.

That's why those who already live nearby likely will gravitate to Boulder Park.

"A lot of people are in large homes. So much needs to be done to update the electrical, mechanical," Komer said. "Plus they don't need so many rooms. It takes a lot of money to restore."

The Classic is a two-story model with the master suite downstairs and two bedrooms up with an option for a third. A library/study is off the main entrance. The living room and dining room flow together.

The kitchen contains an island, a walk-in pantry with automatic door light and all major appliances, including double oven, electric grill range cooktop, microwave and dishwasher.

The master suite contains a whirlpool tub and separate shower, two walk-in closets and a distinct dressing area.

The two upstairs bedrooms share a bathroom, but separate lavatories on either side of the toilet and tub allow for two users at the same time.

The Regency is a little larger with a more contemporary layout and exterior design. The two upstairs bedrooms each have a toilet and bath or shower.

The Regency also has skylights in the kitchen and each upstairs bedroom.

Both models have a full basement, two-car garage, first-floor laundry, oak flooring throughout, two furnaces, two air-conditioning systems, a 50-gallon water heater and a home security system.

Other upgraded touches include 5¹/₂-inch trim, three hinges on doors, customized cabinets with adjustable shelves and under-cabinet illumination in the kitchen.

The exterior is fieldstone and wood siding.

"We wanted to try something different from typical reclaimed brick," Komer said.

The property formerly was a large estate with separate servants quarters, Komer said. Evergreens and berms have been landscaped to cut the noise and view of traffic from Woodward.

"Also, the houses are very well insulated, sound conditioned," Komer said. "There's not much to hear. Another thing — there's not a lot of heavy truck traffic on Woodward."

1,500 part time who work tickets, food, ushers, housekeeping.

Are sports and entertainment businesses in danger of pricing the middle class and working poor out of the market?

Wilson: I think it's a great danger for all of us in major sports. The economics of games, all of the games, dictate prices have to be at a certain level.

In the upper level (of the arena), we haven't raised prices since we've been here. You can get a $10 ticket here.

From a Piston perspective, we could have sold out on season tickets, but we cut it off so we have 2,000-3,000 seats for the public. We've worked with Entertainment Publications (two-forone), so if you wanted to, you could find your way into the Palace for $5.

In the case of entertainment, the artist almost always sets the price. The dollars left for the venue at the end of the day is very small. Almost everything goes to the act. It can be 80-20.

Obviously community service is important to you.

Wilson: I get a lot of enjoyment "There seems to be a preoccu- out of it, personally. I guess it's Boulder Park is in the Bloom--field Hills School District.

The current property tax rate, for city, county and school services is $39.24 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value.

That means the owner of a $445,000 house in Boulder Park now pays $8,730 per year in property taxes. That could change in the aftermath of Tuesday's statewide school funding ballot.

The sales center (647-9580) at Boulder Park is open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

""There's something good that happens almost every day due to the many things we're involved with, something that can make you smile."

> Tom Wilson entertainment executive

I'm a movie buff, movies and theater. We try to catch a film every week if we can. Particularly in summer, we try to travel when we can. We're regulars at Disney once or twice a year.

What's the biggest kick with vour work?

Wilson: There's something good that happens almost every day due to the many things we're involved with, something that can make you smile.

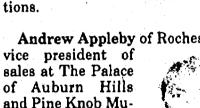

The enjoyment I get is the people I work with. They're my best friends in the world. This is the closest thing to a family business I'll ever be part of.

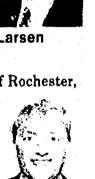

And the down side?

Prudential Securities helps women fight hunger

Prudential Securities, with offices in Oakland and Wayne counties, sponsored the first-ever Women's Power Breakfast to support Gleaners Community Food Bank of Greater Detroit.

The breakfast was March 16 at the Detroit Club.

With the generosity of Prudential Securities, 100 percent of breakfast tickets ($100 benefactors, $50 patrons) will directly benefit the Gleaners Community Food Bank.

а.

Christine Vladimiroff, president and chief executive officer of Second Harvest, was featured speaker.

Second Harvest, recognized as sociate vice president-invest- distributed 100 million pounds of the nation's third largest charity and the largest non-government feeding program, is a nationwide consortium of 183 food banks serving 46,000 charitable agencies.

Vladimiroff has earned international recognition as a leading spokespe.son on the issue of hunger and was a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations International Conference on Nutrition in Rome in 1992.

Introducing Vladimiroff to breakfast attendees was Nancy Barrette of Farmington Hills, asments, Prudential Securities. Prudential Securities not only underwrote the breakfast but also made a grant to Gleaners' capital campaign.

"We are very pleased to be a part of this important event and assist Gleaners to reach its goal of letting no person go hungry," Barrette said.

Last year, Gleaners collected 13 million pounds of food and distributed it to 184 soup kitchens, shelters and other feeding agencies throughout the six-county area. Since 1977, Gleaners has food.

"Fighting hunger for children and adults who are homeless, unemployed and suffering other personal hardships is not unique to metropolitan Detroit," said Trudy DunCombe Archer, breakfast co-chair. "However, it's our hope that the Women's Power Breakfast will assist us to build more awareness of the fight against hunger in our own communities.'

Lisa A. Ford of Grosse Pointe Farms and Dulcie Rosenfeld of Detroit, who both serve on the board of directors for Gleaners, co-chaired the Women's Power Council of the Greater Detroit Breakfast with Archer, a Detroiter.

More than 350 women were invited to the breakfast. "The event is modeled after a highly successful program held annually in New York where invitations are a coveted sign of 'making it'," Rosenfeld said. "We hope this event will build into an equally prestigious program and harvest new resources for Gleaners and the fight against hunger."

Gleaners was founded in 1977 through a partnership between organizations serving the hungry and needy, and the Food Industry Chamber of Commerce.

Strategic assessment spurs Livonia tube maker

When Chrysler Corp. pared its list of suppliers of tubular parts by 75 percent, one of the five survivors was Prime Tube, a Livonia manufacturer with a payroll of 45 people.

To Prime Tube president Frank Firak, the selection served as solid evidence that several years of effort and $100,000 invested in improving the company's operations and its products does, indeed, pay.

Many of the performance-enhancing changes undertaken by Prime Tube were originally spawned by a strategic assessment carried out with the help of a team of experts from the Midwest Manufacturing Technology Center in Ann Arbor.

"Some of the programs resulting from that work with the MMTC are a strong part of the reason we were chosen as a tierone supplier by Chrysler," Firak said.

Prime Tube is a repeat customer of the MMTC, starting out as a participant in one of the center's continuous improvement user groups and later drawing on several technical services provided by the organization.

Tapping the MMTC's expertise, Prime Tube decided to undergo an evaluation of its business and market.

One aim of the evaluation, explains Ray VanderBok of the MMTC, is to help companies identify what steps they must take to "align themselves with their customers"; another is to give them a clear picture of how they stack up against their competition.

But the real trick, VanderBok said, "is not the number of recommended actions for improvement, but identifying which ones to do first — the activities that will make the biggest difference. Small manufacturers are limited in resources and people. They have to focus on the areas where they will get the biggest bang for the buck."

His company intends to implement all of the recommended improvement actions, beginning with the ones that promise the biggest return on investment, Firak said.

Actions already taken, some with the assistance of MMTC staff, include implementing a preventive maintenance program and an automated inspection system, reconfiguring the plant into work cells, and determining literacy requirements for all manufacturing iobs.

These measures are paying off. For example, scrap and rework has decreased by at least 50 percent. The company has reduced its inventory by about 30 percent.

These and other improvements are making Prime Tube more competitive, permitting them to pass cost savings on to customers. Among automotive suppliers, Firak says, reducing costs without sacrificing quality has become an imperative for survival.

Intense competition is squeezing profit margins and forcing companies like Prime Tube to sharpen their focus on markets and customers.

Largely because of a major customer's across-the-board moves to cut input costs, Prime Tube's sales dropped in the past year, Firak says. That decline might have been fatal if Prime Tube had not already been well into its program of continuous improvement. "If we had not implemented the changes recommended by the MMTC," Firak says, 'we would have been forced to shut our doors."

Instead, he adds, Prime Tube is becoming a better, more efficient company with a tighter business focus and a brightening financial picture.

For Information on how you can benefit from the services of the MMTC, call (313) 769-4377.

Custom Connect Classifieds The New Voice in Classified Advertising

New Custom Connect Classifieds extend the range and power of the traditional print ad with voice Classified Service PLUS extended customer access through the Ameritech Pages Plus section of the Yellow Pages phone book.

Custom Connect Classifieds Feature:

Provide 24-Hour Access and Security, screen responses at your convenience and leave messages or further instructions. There is no need to release your name, phone number or business address.

Advertise in one newspaper, but reach potential customers throughout the network.

Promote Employment, Vehicles/Boats and Accessories for Sale and Real Estate classifieds with additional categories on the way.

Target markets and respondents.

With Custom Connect Classifieds all types of businesses can 22 Macomb screen responses faster, at a reduced overhead. You won't tle up phones or valuable personnel waiting for customers to answer your classified ads.

To Place Advertising -

- 1. When you place a classified ad for Real Estate, Employment or Vehicles/Boats tell the representative that you are interested in Custom Connect Classifieds. (13) will appear at the end of your ad, preceded by (810) 453-4800 and followed by two 4-digit extentions.
- 2. Any one with a touch-tone phone throughout the network who responds to your ad will hear your personally recorded message, and can leave a message on your mailbox.
- 3. Call Custom Connect Classifieds from any touch-tone phone 24-hours a day, seven days a week, to check responses to your ad. You will have a personal password to access your messages, your privacy will be protected.
