A two-year deficit-spending cycle is expected to end for the Wayne-Westland school board, but officials remain critical of a state aid system that they say is cheating local students.

The board is expected to post a $448,696 aurplus next June 30, compared to a $1.9 million deficit that plagued the district this year, accord-firm of Plante & Moran. The rosier financial outlook stems received from the state foundation from a concerted effort to slash spending and from voter approval of a two-year, 3-inill tax increase in June.

Although voters did their part to help the ailing district, local officials say they are being shortchanged at the state level.

Statistics to back up that claim emerged Monday night as Plante & Moran representatives unveiled the findings of their independent audit, conducted annually.

A comparison of seven local dising to a new audit conducted by the tricts showed that Wayne-Westland ranked dead last in per-pupil money grant.

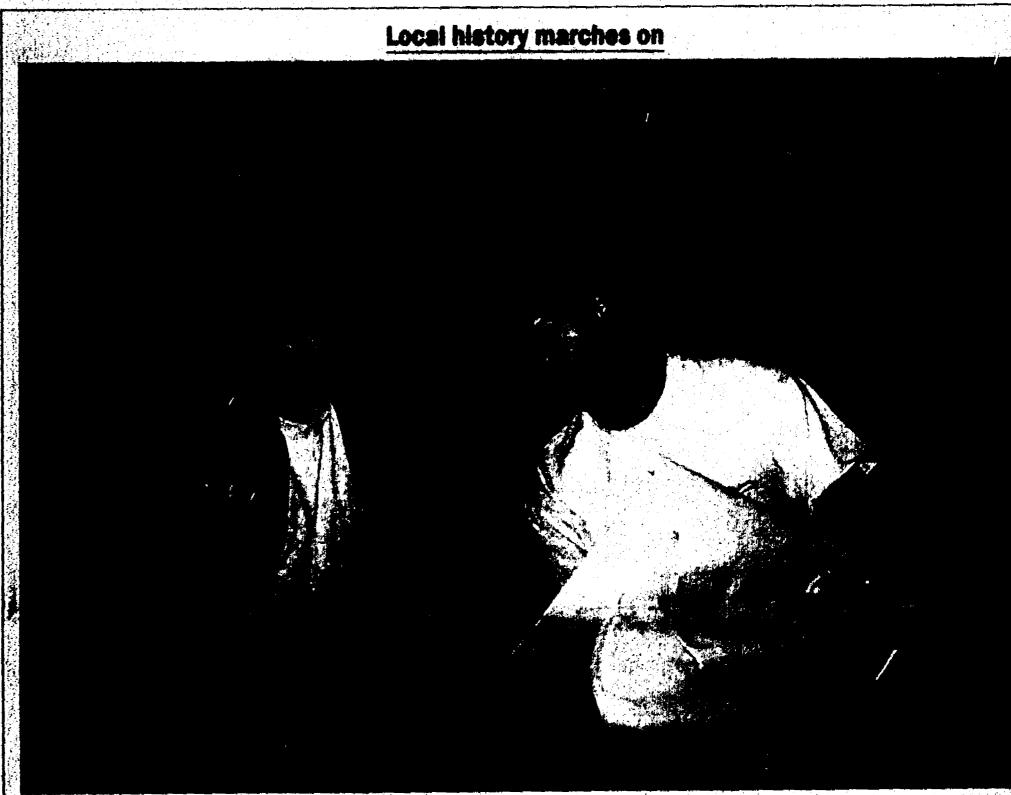

"There's not equity between the school districts," Superintendent Duane Moore said.

For the fiscal year that ended June 30. Wayne-Westland received $5,421 per pupil from the state. By comparison, the state gave the Romulus district $7,150 per pupil, a $1,729 difference, said Kelly Howey, a Plante & Moran associate.

Other districts that surpassed Wayne-Westland in state aid include ed Dearborn, Livonia, Inkster, Garden City and Plymouth-Canton. (An accompanying chart shows the perpupil dollar comparison.)

Apartment fire blamed on electric heater: city

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

2A(W)

A Westland apartment fire that injured six people early Sunday has been blamed on an electric. heater that was placed too close to a couch, causing it to ignite, said George Riley, assistant fire chief.

The accidental fire at Westland Plaza Apartments, on Warren Road east of Middlebelt, caused $500,000 in damages and left residents of 12 apartments temporarily homeless, Riley said.

The latest developments came as a 76-year-old woman remained in critical condition for burns she received on her face, chest, arms and back.

Loretta Wayne's condition hadn't changed on Tuesday afternoon in the burn unit of the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Wayne, who lived with her sister in the apartment where the fire began, was injured while climbing a stairwell to warn her upstairs neighbors about the blaze.

Five other residents who suffered lesser injuries were treated and released at area hospitals.

Some residents were rescued by climbing down fire truck ladders. and others jumped from secondfloor and third-story windows to escape the blaze that ripped quickly through the apartment building.

In a revised count, fire officials say that one of the 12 apartments was covered by renter's insurance. Officials earlier believed that none of the units was insured.

"Renter's insurance really needs to be purchased," Riley warned all apartment dwellers.

Meanwhile, fire officials commended Westland Plaza residents and fire department personnel from Garden City and Livonia for helping Westland firefighters during the blaze.

Fire Chief Michael Reddy said, "Although the residents faced a chaotic and frightening situation, they came to each other's aid to assist the fire department, and. without that aid; we would have probably been faced with numerous losses of life due to the fire."

In one dramatic example, a reaident standing outside of the burning building helped to catch a 10-month-old child that was dropped by its father from a third-story apartment. The resident used his arms and a bean

Reddy also said that cooperative training efforts with neighboring fire departments showed results Sunday,

"The cross-training of our surrounding community fire departments with our department has proved most beneficial," Reddy said. "I am proud of the performance of all the firefighters who extinguished the fire,"

Riley said the departments worked together "like a machine." Some difficulties were reported for fire equipment trying to enter a security gate at the apartment complex. But a resident moved quickly to manually open a gate that failed to open, fire officials said.

Watching building: A private security company employee keeps watch on the apartment building, which was extensively damaged by an early Sunday morning fire.

Despite uncertainties in state funding. Howey said Wayne-Westland's finance department, headed by Patrica Brand, did "an excellent job" of planning the district's budget.

Tom Doyle, a Plante & Moran partner, told the school board Monday that the latest analysis of financial statements shows that officials have kept close tabs on the budget.

Moreover, Doyle said, the latest audit includes "the best opinion we could give" on the district's accounting procedures.

The audit showed that the board spent $91.1 million during the fiscal year that ended June 30, leaving a deficit of $1.9 million.

Howey noted that the deficit was lower than earlier projections of $2.2 million.

Because of changes in the school employee retirement system, the district has seen its local cost escalating dramatically. The district paid $3.4 million in 1994 and $8.9 million in 1995, an increase blamed on a shift of responsibility from the state to the Wayne-Westland's cost is estimated at $10.2 for the fiscal year ending next June, an amount that is already planned in the budget.

However, the district could be pushed into another deficit year if potential state-level changes shift even more retirement costs to the local district, Brand said.

As usual, officials just don't know what to expect.

Schools, state senator spar over 'choice' bill

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, views schools of choice as "not all that earth-shaking," merely a return to the freedom parents had in Michigan before 1982 in choosing where their children would go to school.

Livonia educators, whose district includes the northern section of Westland, disagree. They are alarmed about the impact of Senate Bill 639, the school choice bill, recently passed by the Senate and now in the House. If the legislation becomes law, districts won't be able to prohibit students from transferring to any other district willing to accept them.

"That's sick," Timmons said after Geake explained how schools of choice would work.

"No, it's just different," Geake shot back.

The trustees recently voted to oppose adoption of school code reform proposals, including schools of choice, until lawmakers put the proposals under a microscope.

Four lawmakers - Geake; Rep. Lynn Bankes, R-Redford; Rep. Gerry Law, R.Plymouth; and Rep. Eileen DeHart, D-Westland - assembled Monday before the trustees and Livonia Public Schools' administrators to do just that. The districts of Geake, Bankes and Law include Livonia, and DeHart represents the portion of the district in Westland.

Just as districts have adapted to new rules, the state switches directions, comes up with complex reforms, and throws little. light on how they will work, said Superintendent Ken Watson. Rapid change with little discus-, sion may lead to unperceived problems and even litigation ... Families wanting to make this down the road, he said.

School code reforms that repeal 2,841 sections of the old code, add 15 new ones, and modify 37 others

are bound to bring unexpected complications, Watson said, Geake is one of 20 senators who voted for schools-of-choice in Senate Bill 639. In doing so, he disregarded a flurry of phone calls and letters from Livonia residents. urging a no vote.

"They did not fully understand that we are just returning to a system we had in 1982," he said: "They weren't told the whole story."

Geake knew he was entering enemy territory Monday when Watson chided him with these words of welcome: "It's not easy standing up there when you're as popular as head lice in the second grade."

The philosophy behind schools of choice is simple, Geake said. "Where a family lives now should , no longer control where a kid goes to school.'

transfer face two roadblocks. They must transport their child to school. And the district they want to go to must have room.

"This bill provides that no local school district be required to accept non-resident students,' Geake said. "I believe this is a very important saleguard preserving local control. However, if they choose to accept these students, they will receive the foundation allowance which each individual pupil brings with him or her.

"No child should be a captive of his school district. We had freedom of choice for more than 100. years, until legislation adopted in 1982 mandated that children receive permission from their local school district to attend public schools elsewhere. The result was that only those who could afford private or parochial schools had any choice at all."

Of course, if students leave a district, their foundation grant from the state goes with them, capped at $6,653 per student. That means a loss of income for districts which lose students.

Educators fear schools of choice will bring a myriad of other concerns. Some districts may not want to pack classrooms to maximize their income, but may be forced to if the state suffers bad economic times.

"If the state economy goes down the tubes and our budget deteriorates and we have students clamoring to get in, we may have to do this," said trustee Sue Clulow. "It puts a bounty on the heads of kids.'

Nancy Shuw, president of the Livonia Education Association, the teachers' union, said smaller districts could be destroyed if students leave to get more classes elsewhere.

Districts such as Redford Union would have trouble competing with a district such as Livonia, Watson said. Students admitted to Livonia would get a quality education at the expense of other districts.

Halloween specials available

In admitting students, districts may solicit the "cream of the crop," educators fear.

Parents will be reluctant to vote for higher local school taxes if their child attends another district, they fear.

Watson also pointed out another major concern: white flight out of integrated districts. "It will exacerbate what's already a major problem.'

Geake admitted schools of choice has nothing to do with providing a quality education. He cited Minnesota, where 4 percent of parents have opted for schools of choice. Most do so, he said, for matters of convenience, not to attend a better school. "You no longer own children; they should be free to leave."

Trustee Frank Kokenakes questioned why a "whole new law" is needed to satisfy 4 percent of the population when 96 percent are already satisfied.

In some previous council elections, debates have been featured on WLND Channel 8, the city's governmental channel.

But Diane Abbott, the city's cable consultant, said Tuesday that major repairs to the station's studio have made it almost impossible to feature a debate there.

"The building has been torn apart for a new roof," she said. "We can't use our studios" for a major debate.

Rather than a debate, the eight candidates are each being offered. an individual, six-minute spot that will be aired the week prior to the election.

Despite uncertainties in state funding, Howey said Wayne-Westland's finance department, headed by Patrica Brand, did "an excellent job" of planning the district's budget.

Tom Doyle, a Plante & Moran partner, told the school board Monday that the latest analysis of financial statements shows that officials have kept close tabs on the budget.

Moreover, Doyle said, the latest audit includes "the best opinion we could give" on the district's accounting procedures.

The audit showed that the board spent $91.1 million during the fiscal year that ended June 30, leaving a deficit of $1.9 million.

Howey noted that the deficit was lower than earlier projections of $2.2 million.

Because of changes in the school employee retirement system, the district has seen its local cost escalating dramatically. The district paid $3.4 million in 1994 and $8.9 million in 1995, an increase blamed on a shift of responsibility from the state to the local district.

Wayne-Westland's cost is estimated at $10.2 for the fiscal year ending next June, an amount that is already planned in the budget.

However, the district could be pushed into another deficit year if potential state-level changes shift even more retirement costs to the local district, Brand said.

As usual, officials just don't know what to expect.

Among other highlights of Monday's audit presentation:

The board spent 84 percent of its budget on salaries and benefits in 1994, compared to 88 percent in 1995.

But the board is expected to see a $448,696 surplus by next June unless a snag occurs at the state level. That's a possibility that looms, Brand said.

A five-year analysis of the board's year-ending budget balance shows a decline from $6.8 million in 1992 to the projected $448,696 in 1996, with two years of deficit spending in between.

Board member Richard Le-Blanc said the district needs to. seek "creative ways" to fund a hot lunch program, which now requires a $200,000 allocation from district coffers.

Board member Mathew McCusker warned that the 3-mill tax that voters approved in June will be levied for only two years, leaving officials worried about potential shortfalls in coming years.

Senior program is set

"A Time for Seniors" will provide free information on a variety of topics for elderly people Saturday morning. Co-sponsored by federal, state and county officials who represent Westland, the program will be at 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 28, in Garden City's Maplewood Community Center, on Maplewood, a halfmile north of Ford, and just west of Merriman.

Topics covered will be proposed changes in Medicare and Medicaid programs, Social Security benefits, long-term care, wills, seniors' legal rights; and personal safety.

Taking part are U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, state Sen. George Hart, D-Dearborn, state Reps. Eileen DeHart, D-Westland and Thomas Kelly, D. Wayne, and county Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland.

People planning to attend are advised to call a Rivers staffer, Faith Paroski, at 721-1411.

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, views schools of choice as "not all that earth-shaking," merely a return to the freedom parents had in Michigan before 1982 in choosing where their children would go to school.

Livonia educators, whose district includes the northern section of Westland, disagree, They are alarmed about the impact of Senate Bill 639, the school choice bill, recently passed by the Senate and now in the House. If the legislation becomes law, districts won't be able to prohibit students from transferring to any other district willing to accept them.

A quick exchange of words Monday between Geake and Livonia Board of Education Trustee Ken Timmons shows the gulf that exists between the two sides.

"That's sick," Timmons said after Geake explained how schools of choice would work.

"No, it's just different," Geake shot back.

The trustees recently voted to are bound to bring unexpected oppose adoption of school code reform proposals, including schools of choice, until lawmakers put the proposals under a microscope.

Four lawmakers - Geake; Rep. Lynn Bankes, R-Redford; Rep. Gerry Law, R-Plymouth; and Rep. Elleen DeHart, D-Westland - assembled Monday before the trustees and Livonia Public Schools' administrators to do just that. The districts of Geake, Bankes and Law Include Livonia, and DeHart represents the portion of the district in Westland.

Just as districts have adapted to new rules, the state switches directions, comes up with complex reforms, and throws little light on how they will work, said Superintendent Ken Watson. Rapid change with little discussion may lead to unperceived. problems and even litigation down the road, he said.

School code reforms that repeal 2,841 sections of the old code, add 15 new ones, and modify 37 others complications, Watson said.

Geake is one of 20 senators who voted for schools-of-choice in Senate Bill 639. In doing so, he disregarded a flurry of phone calls and letters from Livonia residents urging a no vote,

"They did not fully understand that we are just returning to a system we had in 1982," he said. "They weren't told the whole story."

Geake knew he was entering enemy territory Monday when Watson chided him with these words of welcome: "It's not easy standing up there when you're as popular as head lice in the second grade."

The philosophy behind schools of choice is simple. Geake said. "Where a family lives now should no longer control where a kid goes to school."

Families wanting to make this transfer face two roadblocks. They must transport their child to school. And the district they want to go to must have room.

"This bill provides that no local school district be required to accept non-resident students," Geake said. "I believe this is a very important safeguard preserving local control. However, if they choose to accept these students, they will receive the foundation allowance which each individual pupil brings with him or her.

"No child should be a captive of his school district. We had freedom of choice for more than 100 years, until legislation adopted in 1982 mandated that children receive permission from their local school district to attend public schools elsewhere. The result was that only those who could afford private or parochial schools had any choice at all."

Of course, if students leave a district, their foundation grant from the state goes with them, capped at $6,653 per student. That means a loss of income for districts which lose students, Educators fear schools of choice will bring a myriad of other concerns, Some districts may not want to pack classrooms to maximize their income, but may be forced to if the state suffers bad economic times.

"If the state economy goes down the tubes and our budget deteriorates and we have students, clamoring to get in, we may have to do this," said trustee Sue Clulow. "It puts a bounty on the heads of kids."

Nancy Shaw, president of the Livonia Education Association, the teachers' union, said smaller districts could be destroyed if students leave to get more classes elsewhere.

Districts such as Redford Union would have trouble competing with a district such as Livonia, Watson said. Students admitted to Livonia would get a quality education at the expense of the population when 96 percent of other districts.

In admitting students, districts may solicit the "cream of the crop," educators fear.

Parents will be reluctant to vote for higher local school taxes if their child attends another dis. trict, they fear.

Watson also pointed out anoth er major concern: white flight out of integrated districts. "It will exacerbate what's already a major problem."

Geake admitted schools of choice has nothing to do with providing a quality education. He cited Minnesota, where 4 percent of parents have opted for schools of choice. Most do so, he said, for matters of convenience, not to attend a better school. "You no longer own children; they should be free to leave."

Trustee Frank Kokenakes questioned why a "whole new law" is needed to satisfy 4 percent are already satisfied.

Officer cleared of action in attempted murder case

A veteran Canton police officer has been cleared of violating department rules and regulations in the aftermath of court testimony that he had in his possession clothes that had been worn by his afire in Westland last January.

"They went and literally talked to everyone involved in this," said Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro, about the departmental investigation of officer George C. Sharp. "We have thor-oughly investigated this issue, interviewing all participants and have found nothing wrong in officer Sharp's actions."

Janik, was injured when she was testified that attempts were made

"How can clothes be evidence if nied he purposely withheld the the Westland police didn't consider them evidence?" Santomauro said. "An unknown nurse gave George, his wife and her dad a bag of clothing and a purse. The dad sister-in-law when she was set took the purse. The bag was put in the basement."

While questioned by his brother.in.law's attorney, Otis Culpepper, Sharp said that while he and his wife, Candice, were in the University of Michigan Burn Center, they received a bag of clothing that belonged to Karen Janik.

Under intense cross-examination by Wayne County Assistant Sharp's sister-in-law, Karen Prosecutor Jerry Dorsey, Sharp set afire in her former Westland to contact the Westland police tion, Sharp said that his wife or Sharp also said that his wife or another sister-in-law told him that Kubitskey said the clothes should be turned over to the defense attorney. Sharp said it didn't occur to him to turn the clothing over to Kubitskey.

Santomauro said that the other sister-in-law will submit to a polygraph when she comes back to Michigan.

Janik's ex-husband, Michael, a Canton resident formerly of Garden City and Westland, was charged with assault with intent to murder and arson. A mistrial was declared in August, and a new trial is pending.

"It is our consistent practice and policy to conduct such an investigation when "Did you understand that it we think there may be or may have been a violation of department rules and regulations," Santomauro said. "The focus is to find out what happened."

Gas leak prompts evacuation

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A natural gas leak Monday afternoon forced the evacuation of some Westland businesses and prompted the one-hour closing of Merriman Road near Palmer, Fire Chief Michael Reddy said.

The incident occurred shortly after noon when a construction crew struck a two-inch gas line while working along Merriman Road between Palmer and Parkwood, Reddy said.

The rupture released "a large amount" of natural gas into the atmosphere, but winds quickly dispersed it, he said.

At least two nearby businesses were temporarily evacuated, and Merriman Road was shut down for about an hour as fire officials took safety precautions.

"We stood by with fire trucks in case of any explosion," Reddy said, but added that none occurred.

Firefighters from two of the city's fire stations went to the scene, along with two rescue squads, he said,

The crews had cleared the scene by 1:55 p.m., less than two hours after the gas leak was reported.

The incident was the second natural gas leak in as many weeks that prompted a small-scale evacuation and a road closing in Westland.

On the previous Monday evening, Inkster Road was temporarily closed near Joy, and several businesses were evacuated when a contractor working on a water main accidentally struck a gas line, said George Riley, assistant Westland fire chief.

That rupture also didn't cause an explosion, but some motorists had to find new routes because of the temporary closing of Inkster Road just south of Joy.

Some businesses also suffered. The Copper Door, a bar on the southwest corner of Inkster and Joy, was supposed to host a monthly meeting of more than 200 members of a Harley-Davidson motorcycle club, bartender Kim James said.

After the 6:15 p.m. gas leak occurred, the Copper Door had to close for the night, forcing the motorcycle club to cancel its meeting there, she said.

Firefighters union honored

The Westland Firefighters Association Local 1279 was honored last week by the Westland City Council for raising $10,000 for the Detroit Receiving Hospital Burn Unit.

The council adopted a resolution in honor of firefighters who organized a golf outing to raise money for the burn. unit.

Firefighters are planning to make the golf outing an annual event, with next year's proceeds going to the to terminally ill children.

At the Oct. 16 council meeting, city. officials presented a resolution to firefighter Keith Barthauer and his wife, Colleen, for helping to organize the golf outing.

Others mentioned in the council's resolution are fire Sgts. Brian Craft and Jeff Pochron, Capts. Fred Milligan and Rick Stanke, and dispatcher Karen Downey.

Also, I'm on the board of directors of Parkside Credit Union, and I understand budgets: I chaired the supervisory committee, and that helped with budgetary deci- sions. I also have a record of community involvement," such as with Westland Goodfellows.	"We have to deal with youth problems. Often, young people don't have enough to do to keep them involved in positive things. We need to reduce the drug prob- lem and combat crime and graffi- ti. I would like to see a (lang Resistance Education And Training (GREAT) program. Also, we haven't dealt effectively with the city's infrastructure, such as streets in the subdivi- sions and secondary roads. They're in pretty bad shape, and we need to restore them. Also, I believe we need additional police officers on the street."	*Enforcement seems like a losing battle. We need more education." Anderson said he supports the Gang Resistance Education And Training program, similar in some ways to the anti-drugs DARE program. "We need to look for sources of funding. More officers alone won't solve the problem. We need activities in areas where kids are being recruited into gangs. We need to fill their free time, especially when both parents are working. We also need to increase parent- ing programs."	"I don't like patting myself on the back, but I guess I feel best about supporting the library. I got calls both ways on that pro- ject. But we were losing our partnership with Wayne, and we either had to virtually eliminate our library services, restrict them, use outside libraries or build one ourselves. I know that we made the right decision."	"I like the concept very much, but I think the details have ye to be worked out. The council has to have input, and we nee to involve the polico and fire departments. It's a great con- cept, but I want to see how we going to attempt what he (the mayor) wants to do. We'd hav have some pretty concrete pla in place."

As long as I walk and talk and drive a car, I will be involved." Barns also emphasized her work as a Jefferson Elementary School vol- unteer, a former eity council member and a former state rep- resentative.	"The priority of any community has to be the health, safety and welfare of the citizens. We have to be secure in our homes. After that is taken care of, then you go into other areas. I would like to be there for the revision of the master plan. I was elected to the original city charter commission. And I would like to be there for the fruition of the city library. I'm glad I was a part of that in Lansing (as a representative). (The late) Sen. William Faust and I worked hard to get state money for that project.	"I wish we had the leadership and the money to bring these young people into something that makes them feel good. Not all kids have the same environ- ment. How do we fill that gap? I think we have to have some way of teaching parenting. Also, we need to teach kids to say no to sex. I don't think we're teaching that. The schools and the city have to cooperate and work together."	"Raising two responsible kids. That's the most important thing I could do as a human being in the community. I also kept a prison out of Westland and helped to get money for the library."	"I enjoy seeing a police car co ing down my street. I would a port more police and firefight I would like to see the police monitoring the community. What the configuration (of the Vision 2000 program) would t that would have to be worked out."

I was also the city's first mayor and served as a state representative for 12 years. The council is a legislative posi- tion and in the 10 years I've been on the council, I feel I'm well qualified for the position."	"I want to see the new Westland library finished and completed and have it operating for the planned November 1996 opening. The council is working on the traffic flow problem in the Wayne Road-Warren Road area with improved signage to encourage drivers to use other routes to get to the 1-96 and 1-275 freeways while discouraging drivers from using the Wayne-Warren inter- section. I want to see the comple- tion of the zoning ordinance revi- sions and upgrading of the city's master plan to reflect what exists today and what we envision for the future."	"We have faced the problem and it is not under total control. We have a program with the police department, working with youths to encourage them to use the new after-school recreation program. The city also has the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program."	"My contributions have been my efforts toward the community's historical preservation. I was appointed to the city's historical commission by then mayor Charles Pickering. The commis- sion is completing work on the Meeting House (also known as the Rowe House, used by 13 local organizations as a meeting place.)"	"The city council before 1990 manpower goals for the police and fire departments and we exceeded those goals. Last ye the council added two additio police officers. We are system cally bringing about what Ma Thomas proposed. The counci- has also approved advanced I support training for the fire department and funds for it i the 1996-97 budget. Also, I'm a communicator; my job occupa- tion is that of a communicator. That's a large part of finding solutions: being able to commu- nicate.	"An advanced life support sys- tem for the fire department. The city has the wherewithal to pro- vide that. I would also increase police presence in the communi- ty, particularly in regard to the gang problem. I would push for some type of organized, recre- ational activity, such as creating a water recreational area in the northwest sector of the city. I'd like to see a 20-acre lake with cances, fishing and things like that. It would require the coun- ty, the mayor's office and the council to work together."	"We need more of a police pres- ence, and we need to let police officers focus more on the prob- lems. I would like to see certain police officers delegated to traffic accidents and writing tickets, freeing up other officers to do other work (such as reducing the gang problem.) I would like to see four to six more officers a day. Education is also important. We have to get parents more involved."	"I authored the "Scared Safe" (teen driving) program and was involved in pilot curbside recy- cling, the leaf pickup program, hiring more police officers, and co-sponsoring the Youth Gang Task Force. I also am vice chair- man of the Nankin Transit Commission. There's a lot that I've done that I'm proud of."	"If we don't start dreaming al what could be, then things wi never come about. I have the personal skills, the academic background and personal back- ground. I have a sense of com- munity."	"Completion of the library and performance pavilion will add a new dimension to our communi- ty. I also believe in the Downtown Development Authority. If we do our best to improve the business climate, it will make people want to live, shop and work here. I also have environmental concerns. I don't believe that the city is proactive enough. I would propose a wood- lands ordinance if elected, and I support an eventual citywide curbside recycling program with a subscription rate."	"There has to be more coopera- tion between the school districts, the courts, the public safety departments, the council and the administrative staff members. We need to identify the groups causing the problems and be more proactive. Programs like "Turn Off The Violence" and after-school program will help. I will say that I believe some young people who get into trou- ble may not be actual gang mem- bers, but may just be aggrea- sive."	"My willingness to volunteer my time for projects that impact the quality of life for Westland resi- dents. It is significant involve- ment, it's free of charge, and I'm a hard worker." As an example, LeBlanc cited his involvement on the Youth Assistance advisory council."	"I believe that community poing is today's response to residents' concerns. "I think that we have to address the deterioration of our city, both commercial and residential. It's starting to happen all over, not just in one section. We need to look at areas other than just Wayne Road between Ford and Palmer. We've got to recycle our land. We've got to address the youth gang problem, there's no question about it. Education has got to go to the parents to let them understand what to watch for in their kids. And we have to start looking at the financial pic- ture of how to pay for services in the future.	"I think we should consider quarterly meetings to deal with the problem. We've got to start involving people, such as the PTAs, and let them give the city ideas on what to do to correct the problem. We need to cooperate with school districts."	"The amount of help that l've given individual people when they called me. I've helped a lot of people. That's part of the job." # Legislators spar on student discipline methods

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

The state Senate this week is revising Michigan's 19-year-old school code, plodding through the 89-page bill a step at a time. Here are some of the major arguments in Tuesday's debate:

'Some more equal'

A medical doctor and a doctor . of psychology each won a round in their fight over whether to forbid corporal punishment in public schools.

Sen. John Schwarz, the medical doctor, succeeded in putting back into the code a general prohibition on physical punishment except in special circumstances.

"If a student gets out of line threatening, raising his hand to a teacher or school staff member, Ph.D., Geake, R-Northville, said, attacking another student - the school employee can do whatever is necessary to constrain the stusaid Schwarz, R-Battle dent," Creek.

"Without this, there are absolutely no regulations whatsoever. Without this, you give carte blanche (blank check) to teachers and staff to beat on little kids," said Schwarz, adding it would allowschool personnel to act in selfdefense, prevent a pupil from harming himself and take possession of a pupil's weapon.

Senators backed Schwarz, 22-11, in rejecting Sen. Robert Geake's proposal to strip the section out of the school code, Although the vote wasn't officially recorded, it appeared Sen. Michael Bouchard; R-Birmingham, and a handful of Republicans loined all Democrats in keeping the no-hit rule.

establish policies consistent with criminal law."

Bouchard, supporting Schwarz, noted the current no-hit rule was passed in 1992 "after extensive testimony and input from parents. We came up with a set of circumstances that would allow for the useof force."

Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Salem, the daughter of a medical doctor, backed Schwarz because "what we found was a tremendous" amount of abuse of low-income, minority and rural students."

Schwarz's section applies to Michigan's 560-plus public school districts, but Geake won a minor victory when he had the nohit restriction lifted for 37 "public school academies" or charter. schools. (The bill also would allow an unlimited number of PSAs, currently capped at 75.)

"PSAs should be free to adopt their own policies," said Geake, who was supported by the GOP leadership on an unrecorded 15-9 vote.

That led Smith to charge unequal treatment by Geake's amendment. "Why do some (students) deserve more protection from abuse? Some are more equal than others," she said, lifting a line from novelist George Orwell's Animal Farm. In that book, animals take control of a farm, Soviet-style, but then the pigs unfurl a banner that says: "All animals are equal, but pigs are more equal than others."

Who can teach?

"I can't believe we're lowering standards when we're talking about educational quality," said Sen. Jim Berryman, D-Adrian. Berryman lost an amendment to remove a plan called "alternative teacher certification" for high school teachers from the code.

The new plan allows persons with 1) five years work experience in the field and 2) a college degree in the subject in which they plan to teach to be certified by the state to teach grades 9-12.

"Just because they have realworld experience, it doesn't mean they can teach," said Berryman, who was supported by all Democrats and three Republicans, including Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion. But Berryman's amend-

Senate passes school choice bill

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Parents could send their children to public school in any district that will receive them under a state Senate-passed "choice" bill.

The home district couldn't refuse the transfer. The receiving district would get $5,300 a head in state aid. But the state wouldn't have to pay for transportation under Senate Bill 639.

"Michigan Education Freedom Act — it's a great political sound bite. I wonder how many focus groups were used to come up with that title," said an opponent, Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township.

"We're setting parents free in passing public school chioce," said the sponsor, Sen. Bill Schuette, R-Midland. "Local control reigns. Transportation is not offered, and the high school athletic rules which discourage and prohibit transferees from playing for at least one semester remain

The Oct. 18 vote was 20-15 with three absent and largely along party lines:

YES - all Republicans including Loren Bennett of Canton and Robert Geake of Northville. NO — all Democrats including

George Hart of Dearborn, Current law, since 1982, allows a losing district to block a transfer. "Today, if a parent wants to move their child from one public school to another, you must first obtain permission," said Schuette. "That doesn't happen too often. The receiving district is under no mandate, no requirement to to accept the students."

"This is not a state-issued mandate," said Bennett, a supporter. "If it was, I would have no part of it. No one is being forced to leave a particular school district. Neither are they any longer being required to stay.'

Peters said little choice is offered by Schuette's bill because "in Oakland County I was told by administrators that they like this have to accept anybody. They can say, hey, we don't have any room.'

Citing Pontiac with $5,000 per child and Bloomfield Hills with $11,000, Peters said, "I can guarantee there is not going to be much shifting back and forth in those districts.

Quality education isn't going to be improved. It is only going to make it more difficult for those poorer districts," said Peters, arguing 60-70 of students never will be helped by schools of choice.

Countered Schuette: "In 1994 Bloomfield Hills let in 120 students, Pontiac 293 and Clarkston 204. They are letting kids in today, so let's be accurate with the figures."

"This begins to set up an elite system for a few," said Sen. Joe Young Jr., D-Detroit.

Sen. Chris Dingell, D. Trenton, warned the bill will run afoul of Michigan Supreme Court rulings. "The Supreme Court state in that series of cases (Milliken vs. Bradof a person self-segregating, there is segregation."

Sen, Jim Berryman, D-Adrien, predicted there will be heavy recruiting of athletes across district lines if the Schuette bill becomes law. A football player recruited in a spring semester would lose only one semester of eligibility ---spring, when interscholastic football isn't played - but still be eligible next fall.

"If this bill passes, recruitment will be very, very prevalent," Berryman said.

Current law was passed in 1982. after it was revealed that a Muskegon area district heavily recruited top scholars and athletes. from neighboring districts. Many groups of districts allow movement across boundary lines by agreement with their neighbors, but no law requires them to do so.

Lynn Rivers gets early GOP foe

BY RALPH R, ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Former Ann Arbor business executive Joseph Fitzsimmons is preparing to challenge freshman Democrat U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers in next year's election.

Rivers, a former Ann Arbor school board member and state representative, was elected last November and sworn into office in January for a two-year term. Her 13th District stretches from Garden City and Westland on the east to Ann Arbor on the west.

Fitzsimmons, 60, is the first to file for the congressional seat and has already raised $100,000, he said, and hopes to raise $1 million.

Like many Republicans, Fitzsimmons stresses self-reliance: "You've got to stand up on your own two feet," he said in an Observer interview Oct. 24. "Go on. Get out of bed and go to work. No free lunches. No free lunches as far as I'm concerned. To me you've got to get up and hit singles over a long period of time. No home runs. To do that, get yourself a decent background, education, self-discipline and you'll be very successful in this wonderful country of ours. But the present situation breeds dependency and failure.'

Unlike many Republicans, Fitzsimmons is pro-choice on abortion. "It's a tough decision (to have an abortion)," he said. "I think adoption is a better choice, but it's an individual decision as far as I'm concerned."

His background

Fitzsimmons, an Ann Arbor resident, recently stepped down as chairman of Ann Arbor-based University Microfilms International, where he worked almost 30 years. UMI has been a pioneer in applying technology to acquiring, preserving and distributing a wide range of literature from the Gutenberg Bible to the Observer.

But retirement isn't in the 6foot, 5-inch candidate's vocabulary. "I'll never retire," he said. "Once you retire, you die."

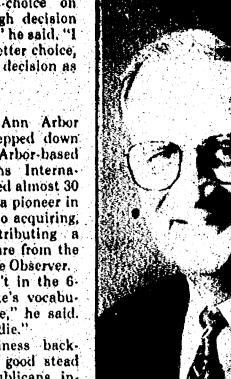

Fitzsimmons' business background puts him in good stead with many area Republicans, including Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson, R.Canton Township, 13th District Republican Party Chairman Sean Cox, state Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton Township, and Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who have all endorsed him.

Early endorsements

Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack also likes Fitzsimmons. "He brings private sector experience and philosophy to government that many times is not there," Yack said.

Although Yack doesn't question Rivers' integrity or fault her performance in terms of constituent service - "Her staff does a good job with problem-solving" ---he opposes her nonetheless based on political differences.

Fitzsimmons illustrates the difference between himself and Rivers by noting how she voted and how he would have voted on 40 "key votes" in the current Congress' first 100 days.

Rivers' votes differed from Fitzsimmons' positions 24 times. "She is on the far left, as liberal as can be," he said. But that is not entirely clear, he added, because "she's voting on a Republican agenda."

Rivers' response

Rivers said Fitzsimmons' characterization is unfair because she supported several provisions of the Republicans' Contract with America.

"If you look at the options available to me on any given vote, you'll see that I've tried to do the reasonable thing," she said.

"I hope we're going to deal with reality in this campaign and not get into mudslinging.'

Rivers, Fitzsimmons said, "is, in my view, tied to (U.S. Rep. David) Bonior and takes direction from him."

Rivers responds: "My husband #### himself as a free agent.

"I have no ties (to other political figures)," he said. "I believe I'm an independent thinker and will vote my conscience and what I think is best for our people."

Campaign issues

In his campaign, Fitzsimmons said he will emphasize four items:

Crime/drugs: He favors an "allout war" on people who use and sell illegal drugs. "I think we've got to get tough on that issue. We can get rid of 80 percent of the criminals by getting rid of the drugs."

Education: "To be productive you've got to be literate. I want to get (kids) hooked on books or hooked on the computer screen." Inefficient government: "We have to find a way to get the waste out of the process. I can tell you that in the Medicare system practically everybody is on the take one way or another."

Overregulation: "Reduce the tremendous number of regulations we have, especially those that are focused on making it difficult for business, especially small business, to perform. I want (small businesses) springing up like flowers. That's where all the growth is coming from."

Fitzsimmons said he plans to serve no more than six years if elected. "I have no interest in staying any longer than that," he said. "I think I can make a major contribution in that period of time."

Then he added, "I suppose I could go over, but my point is that I think turnover is good. I'm really against long-term politicians."

If elected, Fitzsimmons said he will return to the district often. "I'm looking to be back here Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday," he said. "I will spend as much time here as I absolutely can."

Fitzsimmons has an electrical engineering degree from Cornell University.

A Michigan resident since 1968. Fitzsimmons has five grown children, including a son, Joe Jr., living in Canton and a son, Mike, who is an orthopedic surgeon.

Human service agency is given statewide award

Spectrum Human Services, based in Livonia, has earned a statewide award for its four-year commitment to helping its employees improve their health and fitness,

The company was among 15 Detroit-area businesses recognized by the Governor's Council of Physical Fitness, Health and Sports at the council's recent state conference in Ypsilanti.

Some 63 percent of Spectrum's 730 employees participate in educational and evaluative programs at least once a year. Programs cover topics such as blood pressure and cholesterol screening, body-fat evaluation, and health risk appraisal.

The company offers many incentives to encourage employees to participate in health programs and activities. A $1.credit toward an employee's health insurance premium is given to participating. employees every pay period.

Employees also can earn up to eight personal leave hours by participating in the "Welk Across America" program.

Spectrum's health programs also include employee's children and spouses. The "Well-Baby" program sends nutrition, exercise and pre-natal care information to the agency's expectant mothers and the wives of the agency's expectant fathers.

"Congratulations to these businesses for caring about their employees enough to provide a healthy alternative to the caffeine fueled workday where the only exercise an employee gets is a stroll to the snack machine," said Scott Chapman, executive director of the Michigan Fitness Foundation, a group that supports the programs, services and activities of the Governor's Couneil,

The council was formed three years ago to combat the high rates of preventable disease stemming from the lack of physical activity among Michigan residents.

State report says court load levels off

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Michiganians in 1994 sued each other more, witnessed a jump in juvenile cases but saw filings drop in their local district courts.

"Labor-intensive criminal, domestic and juvenile case filings increased over the previous year, while less complex traffic filings declined," said an annual report from the State Court Administrator's Office.

Actually, the total number of new case filings dropped, and many hardly kept pace with population growth. Trial court filings were almost level - 3.19 million previous year.

Trial courts consist mainly of three types:

Circuit - Total new case filings rose 1.3 percent to 240,270. Of these, 44 percent were domestic relations (mainly. divorces), civil matters 25 percent, criminal matters 25 percent, and appeals from district courts 4 percent. (Numbers are rounded off.) Probate - Overall filings fell-7.5 percent due to a drop in cases involving estates, guardianships and the mentally ill. Bub juvenile cases rose 4.6 percent to 94,704. Of those, 62 percent were criminal matters: 17 percent traffic; 11 per-in 1994 versus 3.197 million the cent child protective proceedings; and 10 percent "status" violations such as runaways.

> District -- New cases were up a bare 0.3 percent to 2.8 million. Some 75 percent were traffic-related; 14 percent, civil; and 11 percent, criminal. A drop in traffic cases was offset in workload terms by more criminal cases. (District courts hold pre-trial exams for criminal cases that are tried in circuit courts.)

Michigan has two appellate courts.

The Court of Appeals saw new case filings drop nearly 10 percent to 11,287, in part because voters approved a constitutional amendment limiting the right of appeal by those who have pleaded guilty.

The Supreme Court's business was up 16 percent to 3,188 new cases. The state's highest court completed 2,733 cases, up 9 percent.

Of all the cases brought to it, the Supreme Court denied leave to appeal 88 percent of the time.

Meanwhile, state legislators are studying the Supreme Court's proposal to consolidate the circuit and probate courts - a measure that would require voter approval - and an experimental program of integrating circuit and district courts.

ment to keep certification standards lost on a 16-19 unrecorded vote.

"This does not reduce requirements," countered Sen. Leon Stille, R-Spring Lake, chair of the Senate Education Committee that produced the bill. "It's only for a single or double-class load - not a full (teaching) load."

Added Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron: "Most (teachers) will come through the traditional process. Let the districts decide (on whether to use alternative certification). Universities make money," DeGrow said, arguing that mid-career people who want to teach school must go to an education college for lengthy course work.

Berryman, a possible 1998 gubernatorial candidate, jumped on that line, "That said it all! It's dollar driven. The purpose is not to hire the most qualified but a way to get around the system and save a buck."

Smaller classes

Class sizes in certifiably "at risk" districts would be lowered under an amendment that Demo- amount of appeal," said Stille. 22-11 vote.

That definition includes not only Detroit and Flint but Pontiac, Ecorse, Hamtramck, Highland Park, River Rouge, Inkster and Lansing.

It would limit class sizes to 17 in kindergarten through third grade, said Conroy, citing the experience of Republican Gov. Lamar Alexander in Tennessee. (Alexander later became secretary of Education in the Bush cabinet.)

"Lower class size had a large effect. After the fourth grade, it didn't make much difference,"said Conroy.

If the Conroy amendment survives in the Senate and makes it through the House, the 30 districts would be told to dip into their $230 million in special "atrisk" aid to hire more teachers. "On the surface, it has a fair

Longer year

DeGrow won voice vote support for his amendment to change the way the school day is lengthened from 180 days, where it has been for a half-century, to 195 days. The Senate agreed to add one school day to the calendar for each of 15 years, beginning in 1997, rather than five days in three separate years, as proposed in the revised school code.

Carleton saved

State schools would no longer be told to observe Will Carleton Day -- which few, if any, do anyway. The new code, aiming to remove all unneccessary regulations, stripped out a reference to the 19th century Chatauqua speaker whose most famous work. "Over the Hill to the Poor-

House," once took the country by storm.

The 21-verse tale of a 70-yearold woman rejected by her grown children was considered a giant literary accomplishment in the davs before Social Security, but today Carleton is largely forgotten, even in the Monroe County village named for him.

"He was a very important person in his time," said Sen. Phil: Hoffman, R-Horton, whose district includes the Hillsdale County poorhouse that Carleton wrote about.

"It should be left to the individual districts," replied Stille. The pro-Carleton amendment, sponsored by Sen. Jackie Vaughn, D-Detroit, fell on a 17-17 tie vote. The State Board of Education last week also asked for reinstatement of Will Carleton Day at the insistence of member Gary Wol-

Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD), a common and potentially serious disability that affects a significant number of children and adults, will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 28, in the Livonia Civic Center Library.

The seminar, which will provide information on recognizing, understanding and treating the disability, will feature Dr. Hugh Leichtman of Wediko Children's Services, Boston. Leichtman is an expert and speaker on ADD. The seminar is free and open to the public.

ADD is a neurobiological disability that can have serious consequences, including school failure and dropout, depression, conduct disorder, failed relationships and even substance abuse.

Children and adults with ADD exhibit symptoms which may include difficulty paying attention,

An informational seminar on distractibility, impulsive behavior, and, in some cases; hyperactivity.

ADD affects 3 to 5 percent of school-aged children, perhaps 50 percent of these children are never properly diagnosed and treated, and 30-70 percent of these children will continue to exhibit symptoms in adulthood.

Fortunately, ADD is highly treatable. In his discussion, Leichtman will review the treatment options, including medical, psychological and educational interventions and behavior management techniques.

Leichtman also will provide information on identification and assessment including necessary skills to conduct a comprehensive evaluation of a person who may have ADD. This evaluation includes psychological testing, a medical evaluation, and school and family history.

In addition, Leichtman will provide practical tips for educators and parents to use in daily life to promote success at home and school.

This seminar is part of a na-

4 candidates best for council

estland voters face an energetic field of City Council candidates on Tuesday, Nov. 7, with eight people campaigning for four openings.

The field includes several capable challengers in addition to four experienced incumbents

In the next few years, the City Council faces the typical problems of a growing suburb, how to maintain and/or improve city services with limited dollars, how to listen to the concerns of homeowners and business people and reach decisions on legitimate concerns; how to maintain a professional relationship with Mayor Robert Thomas while still keeping its independence; and having a vision of what is needed for the city's future.

After reviewing and analyzing the field of eight candidates, the Observer concludes there are many more effective candidates than there are openings.

Based on their backgrounds, our observation of them as council members or private citizens, and their responses in newspaper staff interviews, the Observer recommends incumbents Glenn Anderson, Thomas Brown, and David Cox; and challenger Richard LeBlanc.

While each has distinctly different legislative skills and viewpoints, the Observer believes that the four will bring a balanced perspective to the City Council.

The newcomer recommended to the council is LeBlanc, who has faced numerous difficult decisions as a member of the Wayne-Westland Board of Education. He is energetic, he studies issues, and he is able to positively solve problems.

His work on the Westland Library Board also gives valuable insight on the problems that, on a larger scale, are faced by the city government.

Anderson, elected to his first four-year term in 1991, has demonstrated that he does his homework, looks at problems objectively, comes up with solutions, and insists on an open political process for the council.

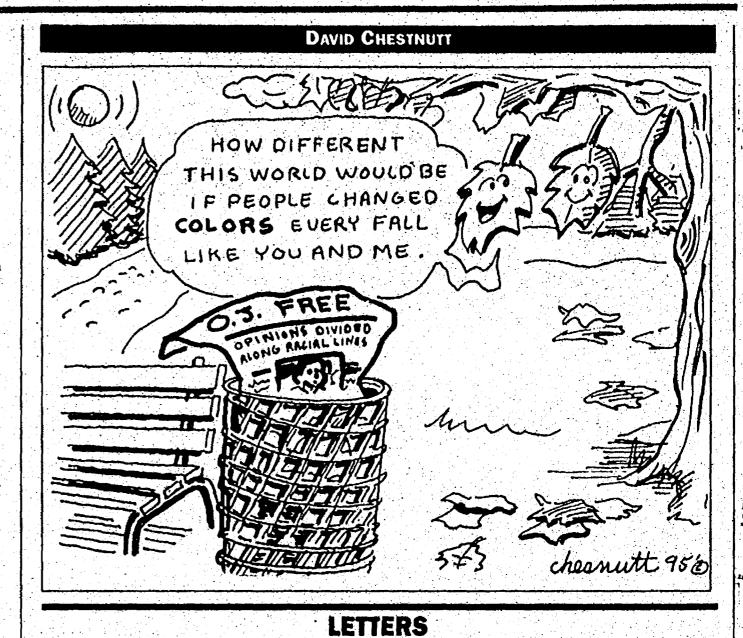

Brown, who has been referred to as "Mr. Westland," has held nearly every elective office in Nankin Township and the city of Westland as well as serving 12 years as a state representative. Despite his age, 78, Brown continues to demonstrate that he has the skills to be an effective councilman. In addition, he has what some refer to as "institutional memory" to better serve the community.

Cox, nearing the end of a two-year term, has shown that he has the skills for identifying problems and coming up with reasonable solutions, as well as the energy to initiate projects and see them through to completion. Cox has demonstrated that he does his homework and represents the community well.

Voters who want to continue to have experience on the council may also consider Charles Pickering, a former mayor who has been elected to two four-year terms.

While he hasn't devoted the time this fall for an effective campaign, Pickering does have excellent legislative skills and has been effective in his position.

Election day is Tuesday, Nov. 7. We urge eligible voters to cast a ballot for Richard LeBlanc, Glenn Anderson, Thomas Brown and David Cox.

Don't split city

ome politically influential people at City Hall seem determined to "Inksterize" the city - that is to say, divide it north from south. They seem willing to let the southern half of the city be plagued with crime, gangs and drugs - and now even with our very own high density low-income apartment complex! All in the name of questionable profits for the politically connected few.

Packing low-income people into high density apartment complexes has almost never worked for the benefit of the tenants - or the surrounding neighborhood. Look at the city of Taylor's infamous "Crack Ridge" apartments. Or, at Detroit's Brewster project.

Justice demanded for 2

our newspaper lets the public know what's going on, or actually what's not going on in the (Larry) Nevers and (Walter) Budzyn cases (two Detroit police officers convicted in the beating death of Malice Green several years ago). So far the judicial system and the executive office have denied them justice. The legislative branch attempted to but was blocked by the politically correct, too long in office, (state Attorney General) Frank Kelley.

Two officers who defended themselves from immediate, close danger rot in prison. Yet other police who shot unarmed citizens in the back from a distance walk free. Justice now for Larry Nevers and Walter Budzyn, scapegoats of bigotry. Beatrice Scalise, Westland here are two types of bad legislation. One is benign - unnecessary laws pressed into passage by special interest groups that have little, if any, public relevance. Sunday "blue" laws, for example, or some of the more obscure regulatory laws.

No reason to change gun law

The other is dangerous law. It is legislation that presents a threat to the public - either physically or philosophically. Michigan House Bill 4720, which would make it legal for nearly anyone to carry a concealed weapon, is danger ous on both counts.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt, and backed heavily by the National Rifle Association, mirrors similar laws passed by Florida and other states in recent years. In Michigan, it remains stalled in a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, unable to win enough support to send it to the House floor for a vote.

The proposed law has generated a lot of discussion, some of it heated, with gun control ad vocates squaring off against NRA members. and their supporters. Both sides use numbers to make their case.

Opponents, including most law enforcement agencies, say passage of the bill into law would put guns in the waistbands and purses of something like 360,000 more people statewide increasing the potential for criminal and accidental shootings tenfold. Supporters paint this as unwarranted hysteria, pointing out that in Florida, handgun-related homicides have decreased since a less-restrictive concealedweapons law was enacted in 1987.

But supporters don't address accidental shootings and the potential for increased gun incidents. Common sense tells us that whenever something is made widely available it becomes more likely. More cars on the road equals more motor vehicle accidents - it's that simple. At least the auto industry has emphasized safety with the addition of airbags and antilock brakes. The gun industry seems to be going in the opposite direction, with semiautomatic weapons and more powerful ammunition continually hitting the market.

And in their rush to lay claim to the Second Amendment, supporters are conveniently ignoring the fact that nobody is arguing against the right of the people to openly keep and bear arms. The proposed legislation deals only with concealed weapons.

The state has an obligation to protect all of its citizens, including those who don't own firearms and don't wish to purchase them. Yes, there have been instances where law enforcement has failed. But the police and courts still fulfill this function adequately for the majority of Michigan residents in most cases.

Current Michigan law requires a valid reason for obtaining a concealed weapon permit. Such reasons can include threats to personal safety or job-related duties, such as regular transport of large amounts of money.

We see no outcry among the general public. and no real validity for changing current law. There are enough accidents and deliberate acts of violence as it is. Why invite more?

High density low-income apartments are nearly always an unmitigated disaster for all concerned - except the landlords!

The reason that Westland's older Norwayne subdivisions have survived as long has they have is that they provide spread-out, low-density living. Property ownership in the subdivision is dispersed between owner-occupants and many resident and non-resident landlords, Also remember, Norwayne is not exclusively "low income."

Much of the recent trouble in the southern half of the city has been caused by outsiders. from Detroit, Inkster and Romulus who are trying desperately to recruit low-income youth into the "easy money" drug trade.

So far - the community has been strong --and resisted the outsiders' efforts to turn this. part of the city into a haven for "crack heads" and their senseless violence.

And it should also be noted that --- so far --much of the reported "gang activity" has been of the "kids fighting," "graffiti spraying" variety. The school playground can be a very cruel place --- it always has been. But, let's not confuse this relatively innocuous "kid" activity with adult-run criminal syndicates organized to profit from drug dealing. There is a big difference.

The last thing we need in the south end is a "mini-Brewster Project." Or, a Westland "Crack Ridge."

Every right thinking citizen should oppose this low-income project. Don't give the trouble-makers a "beachhead" in Westland. Please call the "gang" at City Hall and register your stern disapproval.

Powell's stand knocked

n light of retired Gen. Colin Powell's availability as a possible candidate for president of our nation, it ought to be noted that though his service in the Army was exceptional, his return to civilian life is not. Having in mind that he's witnessed the horrors of war and its destruction of human life, yet he has succumbed to mental "numbress," a lack of "moral conscience," and a "calloused heart" considering his support of an erroneous, perverse and medically unethical abortion legality for a woman to kill her unborn baby in the womb as a "birth control" ethic.

Our nation is in dire need of a strong, moral leader who will defend and protect all unborn babies in the womb from willful execution and the evident unrelenting, irresponsibility and savagery of contemporaries and their co-horts who seek an instant resolve to the latter.

It's quite evident that a consistent return to moral values is a complete answer to the woes of the present humanity and its generation.

Imagine --- there wouldn't be any "infanticide" and the AIDS epidemic would cease.

Is this far fetched? Not on your life. It is up to each individual to make a difference — and we can.

Expansion of Willow Run just doesn't add up

ayne County has made a proposal concerning the expansion of Willow Run Airport into an international tradeport. Essentially, the executive's office has said they will not expand the runways at Willow Run in exchange for Canton Township's support of the international tradeport concept.

As citizens of Wayne County, we should be very concerned with this "back door tactic."

To begin with, the main problem with expanding the runways at Willow Run is cost. The estimated cost for this project has escalated from an estimated $20 million to an estimated $120 million and it could be more. It's my understanding the developers of this "idea" don't have the money for this project anyway. Why are they suggesting a compromise at this time unless they plan to expand the runways at a future date? Think about it.

In addition, no such proposal has been brought before the Wayne County commissioners for review and ratification. Remember the golf course the executive purchased with our money and without the commissioners' knowledge (let alone their approval)? Come on, Mr. McNamara, there are two branches In any government (even Wayne County) and you need to follow the rules like everyone else. It's the only check and balance we voters have to ensure our monles are spent wisely and prudently. Think about it.

Second, the developers of this "Airport of Dreams" believe that if they talk about the international tradeport at Willow Run long enough, someone will believe it, and then if they build it, they will come!

This is a ridiculous idea. The "Field of Dreams" was a Hollywood movie; it had entertainment value only. It wasn't even nominated for an Oscar. Think about it. Who's going to "buy the farm," with a useless baseball diamond in the middle of nowhere? The runways are still going to have to be expanded to make this a viable tradeport.

Another thing. These people plan to: dump millions of dollars from state, federal and county funds (our money) into and around an aging airport thinking that if they develop an industrial park with so many square feet of office space, they will create "X" number of jobs and generate "X" amount of revenue for the surrounding communities. Do the math; it just doesn't add up.

When are they going to realize the futility of this project? The money they are planning to spend could really help to stimulate new businesses by supporting private enterprise. We don't need a government-funded industrial park. If there is going to be an industrial park at Willow Run, let the private sector develop it.

Third, Wayne County still has no idea of the costs involved with this pipe dream or if it will even be profitable. Let's see the business plan. They must have some concrete concepts on paper somewhere. They need to generate a list of other international tradeports in these United States and show us how successful they have been before they spend our money.

Lastly, if the international tradeport concept is a sound business concept. then why don't they develop it in an area that wants and needs the "economic boost?" Why do they continue to ignore Romulus' plea for the tradeport at Metro Airport? They would like to start reaping the "economic benefits" they were promised when changes were made to Metro Airport, Think about it.

This isn't a matter of "NIMBY" politics. Willow Run Airport is not the appropriate place for an international tradeport from a business point of view.

We need to write to Gov. Engler and elected local, state and federal representatives and let them know we don't want them spending our tax money on developing Willow Run Airport into a government-funded industrial park.

Consider kids before rushing to charter schools

he state Senate, prodded by ideologues on the State Board of Education, is about to ram through changes in the School Code. Few amendments will be allowed to alter the ideology of SB 679.

One major feature will be to lift the cap on the number of "public school academies" (PSAs) that may be chartered. Charter schools, as they're also called, are a year-old idea of untested merit. None is reported to have graduated anyone.

Why, then, are the ideologues in such a dither to charter more PSAs? Shouldn't we examine their effects on students? Shouldn't we study test scores and other measures of performance?

The answer comes from thalidomide economics. You remember that drug pregnant women took during the 1960s. with those ding-blasted bureaucratic regulations! Let the marketplace decide, by cracky - after a few dozen deformed babies are born.'

You would think our lawmakers would hesitate before exposing students' minds to potential educational thalidomide. Ah, but educating students isn't the name of the game. The name of the game is satisfying parents - particularly authoritarian, fundamentalist parents -- with tax dollars and government power.

Consider the "vision" statement Clark Durant concocted and rammed through the State Board of Edcuation: multiple references to parents. # Dysfunctional families root cause of social ills eter Luke is a reporter in the Booth Newspapers' Lansing bureau. In his column last Sunday, he produced the interesting idea that the Michigan Legislature may be on the way to giving something more than mere lip service to the now-trivialized phrase "family values."

As evidence, Luke pointed to bills now under consideration that would make it tougher to get. a divorce, crack down on underage drinking and restrict driving privileges for teenagers.

I think he's on to something.

Most thoughtful people are beginning to come around to conclude there is something terribly important about maintaining intact, functioning families as social units that can pass on values and ethics and discipline to the unruly impulses of adolescents.

Interestingly, the day after Luke's column was published, the wire services moved a piece reporting U.S. Census Bureau findings that the percentage of single-parent families is continuing to grow in the U.S. From a low 13 percent in 1970, the figure rose to 22 percent in 1980 and to 28 percent in 1990. Last year it was nearly 31 percent.

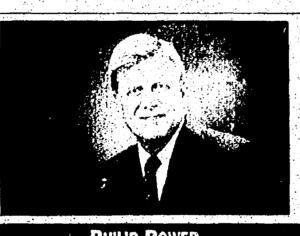

Of the 11.5 million single-parent families nationwide, 9.9 million are headed by mothers and 1.6 million by fathers. Nearly two-thirds of black familles with children are headed by single parents; for whites, it's 25 percent.

Nationwide, 30.5 percent of all births (22 percent white, 68 percent black) are now out of wedlock, the highest in the world.

Ask the cops. The kids who get in trouble . with the law tend to come from broken homes. Ask the teachers. The kids who are in trouble at school are more often than not from single-parent families. Ask the social workers. Dysfunctional families are the single most common root cause for a whole range of social ills from drug abuse to sexual abuse.

Our society's crisis is not legal. It's no longer even racial. It is social, Whole neighborhoods of children are growing up without families, mostly without fathers and usually without the habits, schooling and skills required to survive in today's world.

The obvious question is whether a device as clumsy as a bill enacted by the Michigan Legislature can really do anything concrete or effective about reversing the trend toward deteriorating families.

law, it seems clear that passing a law would have an undeniable effect. If a couple is childless, the divorce would be granted if both parties want it. But if one spouse objects or if there are kids, the divorce would be granted only if a spouse broke the marriage contract - i.e., adultery, abuse, drugs, drinking.

But most abuses remain stubbornly immune even to legislative prohibition.

I think instead we should explore novel ways to punish (and, hopefully, deter) bad behavior and to stimulate that old-fashioned feeling, shame, Newspapers already print the names of "johns," men who are arrested for soliciting prostitutes, as well as people convicted of drunk driving. What about requiring convicted drunk drivers to put an icon of a bottle or a big red "D" on their license plates? Big-time troublemakers in school used to be made to wear dunce caps; why not now?

Why shouldn't unwed, underage mothers be required to live with their parent(s) instead of using welfare to get their own apartments? And why shouldn't we start enforcing the old regulation that every birth certificate has to contain the Social Security number of the father?

Wringing our hands about the decline in fam-Ily values seems pointless. What we need to do is identify concrete ways in which our social institutions can help the values of the family, now under assault from a complex, rapidly changing, and sometimes threatening world:

Finding good ın macaroni

— an average, Midwestern, Caucasian, stay-at-home mom and housewife — have an opinion on the Million Man March.

It's been 11/2 weeks since that march took place. And I remember cleaning up the lunch mess in my kitchen that Monday (the usual sort of mess created by my 3- and 1-year-old) when I first saw a televised report of the march. As the camera panned around, I saw that the day was sunny and bright on the Mall. And the spirits were high and the speakers were energetic.

As I scrubbed the macaroni and cheese off my kitchen floor, I heard parts of speeches, taped earlier that morning. The speakers spoke of family and fatherhood and responsibility and hope and community. The messages were good and strong. And it was at that point, crouched under my kitchen table, that I tossed aside the negative stuff swirling-about this event, like the macaroni and cheese stuck on my floor, and looked at all the good that was left.

I know, I know. That's pretty simplistic. But I do that sort of thing all the time: look at the bright side and if I can't see the bright side, I search for it. And I usually find it, and things turn out just fine.

Seeing the bright side isn't always easy. Hopelessness and discouragement can creep in most anywhere. Even into a life filled with sim-

They said it's more powerful and spoke to them deeper than others. That's pretty impressive."

"Herstory" will be performed at two area locations next week. On Friday, Oct. 27, and Sunday, Oct. 29, the play, co-sponsored by Resurrection Parish, will come to St. John Neumann Church in Canton. Madonna University will co-host the Monday, Oct. 30; and Wednesday, Nov. 1, performances at St. Mary Cultural Center in Livonia.

The play's visit to Canton and Livonia marks the first time "Herstory" has been brought to this side of the Mississippi, thanks to Deacon Joe and Margo Daratony who saw the performance in Palm Springs, Calif.

"I thought it was very entertaining, very professional and the music was just outstanding," Marge Daratony sald. "The music still haunts me. I play it all the time."

In "Herstory," Mary talks with who have toured the country and the evangelist Luke near the end of her life. She recounts her challenges of being an unwed mother, a refugee in a strange land, a frantic mother of a missing child and a grief-stricken witness of her own son's suffering and death.

She tells how Jesus transformed the lives of some of the people in the Scripture and about his unconditional love for all.

"Basically, it's the story of Jesus as told by his mother and the women who followed it," Roberts said. "It starts out at the creation in the garden of Eden, and goes all through Jesus' childhood. It's really cheese on the floor, car keys down the laundry chute, misplaced shoes, mateless socks, toothbrushes in the toilet, toilet brushes in the front hall, nothing but bills in the mailbox, and no time to brush your own hair. Even these things can be discouraging.

On the day of that Million Man-Match, I, indeed, cleaned macaroni and cheese off the floor. And while the Million Man March inspired me, my floor did not. Not at first anyway. But then I paused to consider some things. And I came up with this. Even though sticky noodles were on my floor, more had wound up inside Jack and Joe. And that meant they'd had good, warm, from-scratch food for lunch. That was good. And by cleaning the glop off the floor, all of us could walk in the kitchen without sticking, squishing and sliding. That also was good.

As for the keys down the laundry chute, the dirty clothes had silenced their jangle as Jack — I'm sure he did it — tossed them down. And so my task of driving children to school that Million Man March day had been, you could say, severely hampered. I searched for the keys, and I searched for the bright side.

The bright side I found over and over again. The keys weren't in the diaper pail. That was good. And they weren't in the ignition where someone could've taken them and the vehicle in the predawn hours. Furthermore, we have a vehicle, and it runs and we make steady payments on it. That's all good stuff And if children are late for school because the Ekeys are buried in dirty clothes in the chute, that's not a big deal. I am thankful to have children to be late to school and that there is a school for them to go to. And the dirty clothes in the chute? The bright side is that those are the very ones that, when they're clean, keep my family decent and warm.

And baby Jack's missing shoe that same morning was inconvenient, but at least he had socks. And he has feet. And I have him. And that old shoe was just a hand-me-down anyway, rather worn at the toe. And Jack is still small enough that he can easily be carried over the mud and wet grass and pavement puddles. Again, the scales were tipped way in favor of the positive side.

Now, the discovery of the toothbrush in the tollet mid-morning, not a lot can be said positive about that. Except that I'd already brushed my teeth. And I am fortunate to have a toothbrush and a toilet. And teeth that still need brushing. That's all good. 'And the fact the toilet was flushed when the toothbrush went in was a little bit good, but a new toothbrush was warranted anyway.

Brightness and goodness can be found most anywhere . . I believe that. In homes with moms at the helm and in marches with men gathered.

Indeed, the organizer of the Million Man March has said things which are offensive to many and that's not a good thing. But the hundreds of thousands of men on that bright, sunny, mid-October day who marched, who set their sights on family and community, who joined arms under the blue fall sky in our nation's capital, their actions spoke louder than the words of just the one man. And that's the hugely positive nature of the event that this floor-scrubbing, key-retrieying, toothbrush-buying mom saw that day.

"Our purpose is to help people it can be a difficult time, fraught with stress, sadness and depres-during the holidays and to introduce the community to the people who work here and the programs. we offer," said Ken Hall, a therapist and the clinic's director.

The open house will be 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and include four presentations focusing on preparing yourself for the holidays ---tips for holiday stress busting, dealing with difficult family matters, surviving the holiday blues and keeping the holidays holy.

Visitors also will be invited to enjoy a free 15 minute massage, provided by the newest addition to the staff, Heidi Barrows, a certified massage therapist.

A student at the Health and Enrichment Center in Lapeer, Barrows started working at the clinic in January to complete a 100-hour internship program. The feedback was so positive that she was invited to become a regular part of the program, Hall said.

"It's the kind of supportive program we knew people would enjoy because it's done in a safe setting," Hall said. "We had talked about it, but we didn't know how to find someone who was a certified professional. And then here comes Heidi showing up on our doorstep."

"I believe people tried massage therapy here because they neverwould have gone anywhere else," cope with stress, to deal with it said Barrows of her internship."I enjoy touching and manipulating body tissue. By working together (with the therapist) you can see the change in people.'

New Directions opened its doors in 1987. While its foundation is Christian - the staff of eight therapists "belong to one denomination or another" --- religion is not a prerequisite for treatment, according to Hall.

About 160 clients visit the clinic each week. The center's services cover a wide spectrum parenting skills, children and adults with Attention Deficit Disorder or other learning problems, career counseling, help for victims of physical and sexual abure, stress management, anxiety and depression and men's issues.

The center also has a certified substance abuse counselor, provides marriage counseling and work with clients on recovering from trauma, grief and loss and spiritual direction.

And including massage therapy in the lineup fits in with the center's philosophy of paying attention to the whole person. The philosophy is based on the Jewish and Christian traditions concerning the nature of man which includes his body, soul and spirit.

"If something goes wrong in one area, it affects the other two," Hall said. "So we pay attention to all three areas, how the body affects the soul and spirit and how the other two affect each other." Intern Suzanne Hamilton, who will receive her master's degree in counseling from Oakland University in December, was one of the staff members who tried massage therapy. She also uses it with severat of her clients, including one who suffers from anxiety attacks and chronic pain:

"We have people come in who are stressed out and uptight and we would try to teach them a combination of deep breathing and progressive muscle relaxation, but we didn't have the massage component to give us a full spectrum of treatment," she said. "We try to teach them how they carry their stress in different parts of their bodies.

"What makes us unique is our focus on two aspects. We try to reduce the problems in life and . try to increase the person's strengths and positive things."

Most of the therapists will be on hand to talk to visitors during the open house and hopes are they will take advantage of the free massages. Registration is required and if there is an overflow crowd, a second open house will he held the following weekend.

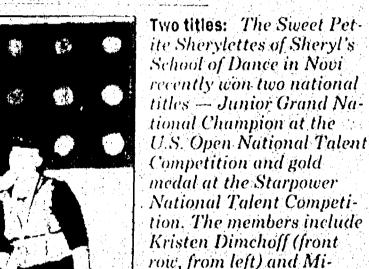

For more information or to register, people can call the center at (313) 464-8882,

Book traces local world of engineering

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

If you think Detroit's only claim to fame is designing and manufacturing automobiles, think again.

Over the last century, Detroit area manufacturers and inventors have turned out enough technological innovations to fill a coffee table book. With that in mind, Engineering Society of Detroit (ESD) commissioned such a book to celebrate its centennial.

"The Technology Century" chronicles hundreds of local engineering fetes and reviews ESD's first 100 years. Its cover boasts Diego Rivera's famous work, "Detroit Industry."

The richly illustrated book includes more than 50 brightly written essays about prominent and little-known innovations created by Detroit's finest researchers and engineers. Nearly everything conceived in metro Detroit is included — from the outboard motor and electric refrigerator to the one-piece gelatin capsule.

Local history hounds will learn Sidney Oldberg patented the first air-bag system, Solvay Automotive in Troy first patented a process to make soda ash, and Stin"There hasn't been a good Detroit history book written in a long time. Most books provide the political, social and anecdotal history, but not the history of industry and infrastructure."

> Mike Davis editor

son Aircraft of Detroit designed the first cabin sirplane before moving to Northville in the late 1920s.

The area's rich cultural history also is chronicled in this 262-page book written by more than 30 local journalists and historians, including many from Observer area communities. The book's editor is Mike Davis, former executive director of the Detroit Historical Society.

"There hasn't been a good Detroit history book written in a long time. Most books provide the political, social and anecdotal history, but not the history of industry and infrastructure," Davis said.

Detroit's endless infrastructure — a subject that could be dry provides lively and interesting reading. Chapters are devoted to the groundbreaking works of Consumers Power, Detroit Edison, Ameritech and the railways that once carried assembly line automobiles out of the Motor City.

"People think Detroit is primarily an automotive city, but it's not so: Detroit has given a lot of interesting things to the world and hasn't gotten a lot of credit," said Anthony Yanik, a retired General Motors engineer. Yanik wrote a chapter on the independent automakers that surfaced in Detroit in the late 1930s.

Dan Jarvis, a communications struct specialist for Detroit Edison, media wrote about Henry Ford, a promising Edison engineer who by day ($45) worked from Detroit's Washington and State Street plant in the logica 1890s. After hours, he "tinkered order with his experimental gaspowered motorcar," the author 1446.

The book couldn't chronicle Detroit's achievements without a big chapter devoted to the automobile industry. Besides an industry overview, there are histories of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

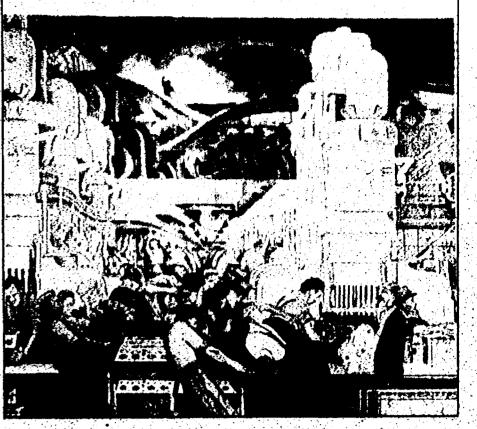

Michael Kollins assembled a timeline of the century's automotive industry achievements. Since the gas-powered automobile was built in 1893, he wrote, "almost every year of progressive development is marked by an outstanding first in the automobile industry."

Al Fleming gathered the history of Detroit's automotive suppliers. Frank Buttler, revealed Detroit was the fridge-making capital before it became Motor City.

The book also mentions Detroit's first concrete mile — on Woodward between Six and Seven Mile Road — and covers the history of the city's architecture, construction, health care and news media.

"The Technology Century" ($45) is available at Border's in Southfield and Lawrence Technological University, Southfield. To order by mail, contact Eisbrenner Public Relations, Troy, (810) 641-

THE TECHNOLOGY CENTURY

Century of achlevement: "The Technology Century," a book commissioned by the Engineering Society of Detroit, chronicles 100 years of innovations created by metro area inventors, manufacturers and engineers.

Business school plans to open metro area campus

The University of Phoenix expects to open a metro area campus in Southfield within four tao six months.

The University of Phoenix's Michigan is a multi-campus school targeting professional adults for bachelor's and master's programs finish negotiations for a building.

"We hope to open in Southfield in four to six months," director of the Michigan campus, Sarah Serra, said, adding that the school has been directing its search for a campus in Southfield because of its central location.

The University of Phoenix's Michigan campus currently has offices in Southfield's American Center. However, the first classes, which start at the end of the month, will be held at the Ford Fairlane Training and Development Center in Dearborn.

The accredited university is trying to attract students who are at least 23 years old and have fulltime jobs to enroll in five- and six-week courses to earn degrees in business administration. The school held two information sesslong in Dearborn to attract enrollment.

So far, there are 27 students enrolled for the first session, according to Serra, who said she expects many more in the years to come.

"With such a large area, I can easily see us growing to 3,000 to 5,000 students," she said. "As it stands now, we have interest from Clarkston to Warren to Windsor to Ann Arbor."

The private University of Phoenix, which is a subsidiary of the Apollo Group public company, has graduated more than 60,000 students in business, education and nursing programs. It has 30 campuses spread throughout Lousianna, Utah, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada and San Juan, and was ranked as the nation's 12th largest private university in 1994.

Serra said the university awards credit for classes at other universities as well as for on-thejob training and experience. Instructors must have full-time jobs in the field they teach as well as advanced degrees.

"We have the same high standards as other universities," Serra said about the school's North Central Association Accreditation. But, she said, the school works around the busy schedules most people with full-time jobs keep.

Each class meets one night a are the week from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. If students can't attend, they can make school it up through the university's 3003.

electronic classroom on CompuServe.

Tuition is $187 per class hour for undergraduate courses, which last for five weeks and $245 per class hour for master's courses, which run six weeks. Most classes are three credit hours.

my

Cemeteries are. NOWICKI places are places that spark much emotion. In reality, cemeteries are some of the more natural, peaceful places found in both urban, suburban and rural areas.

The large trees provide shade, the grass a cool mat and the wildflowers and wildlife reflect a varietv of life forms.

As soon as I entered the plot of land identified as the cemetery, I was greeted by the solemn pitched song of the bird that endears happiness - the Eastern Bluebird.

A bluebird's song does not reflect the heavenly blues seen on its back feathers, nor the earthy reddish-brown of its breast, but it of discreet duration with is modest inflections for the cemetery setting.

Cemeteries found near open fields are excellent places to find bluebirds. As long as the cemetery is sufficiently open so the birds can hunt, they will take advantage of trees or promontories that will aid them in finding food.

The song of the bluebird directed me to the dark blue male perched on a high promontory. Between songs it would hawk for insects by flying out to grab an insect it had spotted from its vantage point.

Hunting perches

Hunting perches for a bird may be on branches of the tall trees that are often associated with long-established cemeteries. Cemetery trees are often larger than trees nearby because they are left undisturbed. They may have been planted as a living memorial to those buried in the cemetery, or they may have been seeded naturally.

Most cemeteries are main-attain that goal, trees, shrubs and wildflowers in appropriate areas will go untouched. These plants help provide food for birds and other animals in the area.

Some wildflowers, and certainly shrubs and trees, can provide hawking promontories for bluehirds, but the bluebird I saw was on the top of a spiked monument. As I approached the bird for a better look, I could see he had used it many times before.

Ringing the pointed apex where the bird would perch was a halo of guano. He evidently perched in every direction equally because the halo was of equal height all around. It may seem disrespectful to have guano on the monument of a loved one, but think of it as providing a perfect perch for birds finding food to feed themselves and their young.

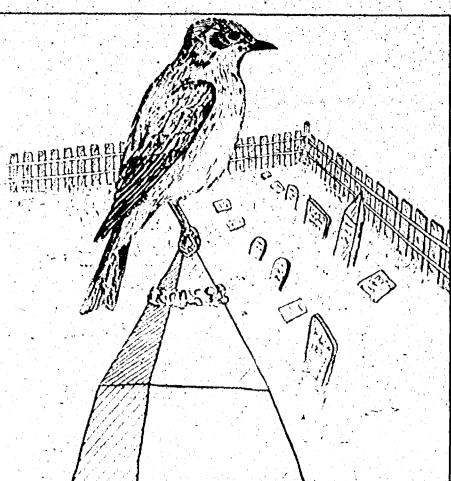

While watching the bluebird I was distracted in a different direction by a chipping sound. Reminiscent of the sound of a stonecutter rapidly tapping on his chisel engraving the name on a headstone, I recognized the song of a Chipping Sparrow. This small red-capped sparrow has a clear gray breast and a black bill. A black line goes from the bill, through the eye and stops above the ear. It was probably attracted to the cemetery by the evergreens edging the fence.

Evergreens help to liven the scenery of a cemetery even in winter. When deciduous trees lose their leaves and expose their skeleton of bare branches, evergreens continue to remain robust and lively. Chipping Sparrows often build their mug-sized nests in the lower branches. They collect grasses from the vicinity and line the cup with animal hair.

Nesting places

After about two weeks, four or five young nestlings will hatch from their eggs. One of the headstones I saw identified the Hatch family; maybe indirectly they were encouraging the young to emerge.

Some of the headstones dated back to early 1798. I began to see other signs of life and ironic cycles. Headstones are erected to from long lasting materials such as granite, limestone and slate. Yet as soon as a cemetery is created, it is subject to the forces and principles of nature. Like the people it represents, it too will die and be buried in time.

The cold slabs of stone marking the graves of those who lived have never exhibited the characteristics of life - breathing, reproducing, digesting and sensing the environment. But the headstones 1 examined were the foundations for the renaissance of life.

Just as life may start on a volcanic island of raw rock, life started on the lifeless headstones of the Allens and Fredericks. To the untrained eye, they may have been likened to old, dried and cracked paint, but to me the colorful chartreuse lichens on the slate gray of the headstones were a true beginning of life.

As the wind carries spiders, spores and seeds to distant places, sometime in the past 200 surface of the headstones.

Despite the lack of soil for nutrients and water, lichens bring their own unique form of life to the lifeless headstone. Together, a fungus and an algae interact to grow. The algae provides food, while the fungus provides support. Separately, each would perish.

On several different headstones there were lichens that were leafy. On other headstones there were blotches that looked like dried paint with black spots scattered against a textured background. Some patches grew so densely that is was hard to see the neatly engraved letters and numbers on the headstone.

Part of that defacing process was not the density of the lichens. but the by products of their existence.

Chemicals produced by the symbiotic relationship of the algae and the fungus caused the stone to erode. Little by little, the lichen chemicals caused the headstone to decay.

II The cold slabs of stone marking the graves of those who lived have never exhibited the characteristics of life.

Soil forms

Small particles of rock and once living material, together, form the most important mixture here on earth - soil. All living things depend on soil. The grasses, wildflowers, trees, insects, birds and worms all depend on soil. Like lichens, the two components work together: Unlike lichens, the two components can be separated to function individually.

This was evident on the sides of several headstones I examined. Attached at one end of its halfinch long length by a pad of silk were the cocoons of bagworm moths.

Bagworm moth cocoons are created by attaching available material to the sticky cocoon for camouflage. One cocoon was decorated with the fragments of pine or hemlock needles in a pattern parallel to the axis of the cocoon. Another cocoon incorporated sandsized grains from the headstone. What perfect camouflage.

In this cemetery full of coffins marked by headstones were the "coffins" of the bagworms in which the most marvelous transformation of life occurs.

Though a worm-like caterpillar enters the "coffin," an entirely different looking animal emerges. Dangling beneath many were the pupal cases from which the males emerged. Those without pupal cases housed the wingless females.

After the males emerge they search for a female and copulate with her while she is inside the cocoon. Before she emerges she lays her eggs and eventually the cocoon becomes the womb of the new bagworms.

Life cycles

As I continued my walk and made more observations, it be-

and animals all dependent on each other had developed. In fact, tucked in cracks and engravings of the headstones were insects and spiders. It was the insects that attracted the bluebirds to the cemetery and it was the insects that were attractive to the spiders. Easily visible on many of the headstones were the spiders' doilies of death. Thin silk was intricately woven into a pattern designed to ensnare unsuspecting prey. After capture the spider entombs its prey in a sarcophagus of silk.

While walking through a cemetery, I came upon a mourning cloak butterfly. The mourning cloak is named because of its dark chocolate colored wings, reminiscent of the dark clothing worn by mourners at a funeral.

I spotted the butterfly because it was basking with open dark wings in the resurrecting rays of the rising sun. As a caterpillar, it probably fed on the elm or cottonwood tree leaves in the cemetery. It pupated in its own "coffin" in a secluded place, either on a headstone, or stem of vegetation sustained by the enriched soil beneath.

From its "coffin" in the cemetery emerged the transformed life of a butterfly warming in rays of the sun. As it feeds on nearby nectar, it will mate, lay its eggs and start the cycle of life again.

As I processed all these forms of life in a landscape of death, I found it ironic that a cemetery is not the end point of a life. To the observant, it is a graphic example of the dynamic nature of life and its many manifestations.

Cemeteries are natural undisturbed areas and provide all the necessary requirements for life, and like a living organism they will succumb to the pressures of the natural world.

Science Funding: By a vote of 248 for and 161 against, the House passed a bill (HR 2405) authorizing $21.5 billion in fiscal 1996 for the civilian science activities of seven agencies including the Environmental Protection Agency, National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Department of Energy. The bill, which cuts spending by about 12 percent from 1995 levels, embodies the new Republican majority's approach to funding non-military science in times of tight budgets. For example, it combines what had been seven separate bills into a single measure, and it gives priority to basic research while de-emphasizing applied research that could be undertaken by the private sector. Democratic critics said the cuts will hurt domestically in areas such as health and the environment, while benefiting Japan and other foreign competitors that invest more heavily in government-Industry research ventures.

Sponsor Robert Walker, R-Pa., said the bill recognizes that "a strong basic research foundation is essential to the future of our nation" but that "we do not have the luxury, and it is not a wise use of resources, to continue steering taxpayer dollars in the direction of applied research which can and should be market-driven and conducted by the private sector."

Opponent George Brown, D-Calif, called the bill "the first installment" in the Republican plan to reduce science spending by 33 percent over five years as part of its balanced budget timetable, adding: "It is ironic that the Republican plan requires that in order to pay for a tax cut, we must sacrifice the very thing that we know leads to long-term economic growth." A yes vote was to pass the bill.

Area representatives voting yes were: Joe Knollenberg, R-Birmingham. Voting nó: Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, and Lynn Rivers, D-

Ann Arbor.

Global Warming: The House relected. 199 for and 215 against, an amendment by Democrats to continue an Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) research program into the long-term climate changes known as global warming. The vote occurred during debate on HR 2405 (above) which would kill the program, leaving global warming research up to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Defenders of the new policy said it would eliminate costly EPA-NOAA overlap, while foes said it gives short shrift to the threat posed by slowly rising temperatures.

Amendment supporter Henry Waxman, D-Calif., sald "We are talking about taking another sad step into the realm of anti-science . . . How do you stop (the EPA) In its tracks from reducing some of these manmade chemicals that are causing this problem?"

Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif., said: "Global warming should not be handled in EPA . . . long-term climate research is something that should be done in NOAA... the (Democratic) amendment would take funding away from all other. areas of EPA in order to fund something that it should not be doing." A yes vote was to preserve EPA's global warming research program.

Area representatives voting yes were: Dale Kildee, Sander Levin, Lynn Rivers. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg.

Indoor Air: By a vote of 195 for and 218 against, the House rejected an amendment to preserve Environmental Protection Agency research into indoor air pollution. The vote occurred during debate on HR 2405 (above) which would end EPA's responsibility in this area and put the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) in charge of indoor air research. Amendment sponsor Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., sald: "Viruses and bacteria that thrive in air ducts have been proven to cause influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis and dozens of other diseases . . . Yes, folks, believe it or not, the bill that is before us today would eliminate research program."

Opponent Robert Walker, R-Pa., said, "The American people made a fundamental change in Congress. because of some of the lousy policles we passed in the past Congress and, in fact, mandated us to do something towards balancing the budget . . . We think that one of the ways to do that is by rationalizing what agencies do. EPA Is in fact not that place that regulates Indoor air. OSHA Is."

A yes vote was to preserve EPA research into indoor air pollution.

Area representatives voting yes were: Kildee, Levin and Rivers. Voting no: Knollenberg.

SENATE

Job Training: Voting 95 for and two against, the Senate passed a bill (S 143) to transfer job training from Washington to the states, eliminating more than 80 federal programs designed for the unemployed. States, with assistance from the private sector, would set up one-stop centers to teach new skills to the jobless and help them find work. States would receive few strings-attached federal grants to run their programs. While empowering states, the Senate voted (below) to keep Washington in charge of the Job Corps and the Trade Adjustment Assistance entitlement program for workers displaced by imports.

Supporter Nancy Kaseebaum, R-Kan., said: "This is a critical change if we want to be successful. In helping people find jobs. (The bill) would combine funds from these 80-odd programs and turn them over to the states and, in turn, to local communities, so that training programs will be tailored to actual jobs available in the community."

Opponent Paul Simon, D-III., sald he liked much about the bill. including its streamlining of existing programs, but is "not an enthusiastic supporter of just saying to the states, 'You have this money and you make all the decisions.' I want to give some flexibility to the states, but I also want to make sure people get served who need to be served."

A yes vote was to pass the bill.

Michigan Senators Carl Levin, D, voted yes. Spencer Abraham, R, voted yes.

Tips to keep your pets safe, healthy on Halloween

Halloween night generates constant traffic at the front door, and while some pets are very interested in the trick or treaters who visit, others are frightened and confused.

To ensure that your pet stays healthy and safe this Halloween, The Pet Practice has issued guidelines and safety tips to keep #### your animal free from harm.

The number one health hazard for pets during Halloween, said Ken Genova, Michigan area vice president of The Pet Practice, is the ingredient in chocolate called theobromine.

Even small amounts of theobromine can cause vomiting and restlessness in pets, and larger doses can be fatal, Genova said.

"If a pet accidentally ingests chocolate, contact your veterinarian, then feed it one tablespoon of 3 percent hydrogen peroxide per every 20 pounds the animal weighs. Continue to give the peroxide orally once every 10 minutes until the animal vomits, but do not exceed three doses. If the in order to cool the tissue and animal ingested the chocolate one hour or more before it was discovered, contact a veterinarian immediately."

Keep pumpkins with candles out of pets' reach. If a pet does burn its nose or paws from a candle, Genova suggests applying cool water to the burned area first then consulting a veterinarian. Consider keeping outdoor pets inside during trick or treating hours to avoid the possibility of them getting loose or excessively barking. If your pet must stay outside, make sure it is safely secured and out of the sight of curious children.

Remember to take pets outside before trick or treating begins, to avoid having to take them out during the evening hours.

Keep pets confined when sorting out the children's candy.

Place all candy out of reach so pets don't have access to it.

plans town hall session

Commission

The Wayne County Commission has scheduled its first Town Hall meeting for 6.8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 8, in Allen Park City Hall, 16850 Southfield Road. The meeting will be preceded by a welcoming reception from 5.6 p.m. The Town Hall meeting is open to the public.

The downriver meeting is the first of three Town Hall meetings the commission will hold throughout the county. The other Town Hall meetings will be scheduled in the western Wayne area and the city of Detroit.

The commission established these Town Hall meetings to give county residents a new avenue to discuss issues and voice their opinions directly to their commissioners, The Nov. 8 Town Hall meeting will give residents in the downriver communities an opportunity to hear updates from various county departments as well as discuss issues of particular interest to the area. The commission encourages all downriver residents and community organiza. tions to attend. For more information call 313-

Report says lawmakers curtailed foreign travel

Members of the House of Representatives, under pressure by voters to cut back on perks, sharply reduced their taxpayerfunded foreign travel in the congressional election year of 1994.

Even so, a survey by Roll Call Report Syndicate revealed that more than one-third of the membership took at least one official overseas trip last year on either a committee fact-finding mission or an official U.S. delegation visit to an international event or parliamentary conference.

The news service's sixth annual survey of official House travel found that 166 members recorded 275 trips over 1,847 days to 668 countries in 1994. This compared to the 1993 figures of 180 members making 308 visits over 2,042

Doug Bereuter of Nebraska, with not seek re-election "gave me five trips over 29 days to six countries,

Top travelers

Ranking next were Republican Floyd Spence of South Carolina (four trips, 32 days, 11 countries), Democrats Donald Payne of New Jersey (4-32-15), Robert Torricelli of New Jersey (4-32-7) and Ellot Engel of New York (4-23-8), Republican Alex McMillan of North Carolina (4-24-7) and Democrat Patricia Schroeder of Colorado (4-21.7).

Funding for congressional travel comes from State Department and Pentagon accounts. The total cost can't be determined because there are no line items for the activity. When members use milimore time to travel and represent our country . . . à U.S. congressman has the responsibility to represent his country abroad, to learn how other people think, to study other forms of government."

He sat on the Rules Committee, which has only intra-House responsibilities. He said the committee paid for the trips because "we met; other parliamentarians and heads of governments."

Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., was another Rules Committee member who used the panel to sponsor trips.

'He was participating as a parliamentarian" at meetings with legislators from other countries. said aide Bill Treator. "As a member of the Rules Committee, days to 681 countries. The number of travelers decreased last year by 7 percent, trips were down 10 percent, days abroad off 10 percent and countries visited down 17 percent.

Survey of members

The survey is based on information published in the Congressional Record by House committees and other trip sponsors such as the House Speaker. The State Department authorizing law requires that House trips abroad be reported in the Record, the official daily publication of Congress. This stems from the involvement of U.S. embassies in handling per diem expenses, currency exchanges and other fiscal matters for visiting lawmakera.

The leading 1994 traveler was Rep. Earl Hilliard, D-Ala., who took six trips over 34 days to eight countries, mainly to international parliamentary conferences.

"I don't remember the actual number of trips," Hilliard told Roll Call Report Syndicate, "hut I certainly went to all places you mentioned" - Norway, Belgium, Austria, Japan, South Africa, Portugal and France (twice).

Sharing second place were Democrat Tom Lantos of California and Republican Butler Derrick of South Carolina - each with five trips to 12 countries, with Lantos spending 42 days abroad and Derrick 41 - and tary jets, which they usually do, the overall trip sums reported in the Congressional Record represent only a fraction of the cost to taxpayers.

"The public hates this stuff," said Bob Schiff of Congress Watch, a Ralph Nader advocacy group. "Members are more reluctant to take these trips because of how it looks to the public. It may be that members are going only when it's really necessary, otherwise they'd be more willing to defend the travel."

But top travelers were quick to defend their jaunts.

Defending travels

"I feel I would be derelict in my duties if I did not participate in these assignments," said Lantos, a member of the International Relations Committee. For example, as "one of a handful of Russian experts in Congress," he was part of a delegation to Russia which. followed up on meetings between Presidents Clinton and Yeltsin.

Lantos was included in Clinton's official delegation to Normandy marking the 50th anniversary of D-Day. A May visit to sunny Bermuda was to meet with British parliamentarians.

Butler Derrick's globetrotting. occurred in his last year in Congress. He had no apologies about traveling extensively on his way out after years of hardly ever taking trips.

Now working for a Washington law firm, he said his decision to that was his role.

Money for trips

Payne, an International Relations Committee and Congressional Black Caucus member, took trips to Africa and Halti, after which he made a number of speeches and gave congressional testimony based on what he learned.

Torricelli said of his International Relations Committee jaunts to Europe and Latin America: "All of the trips provided significant insight and understanding into foreign affairs issues facing the United States and the world."

Engel's trips included visits to Britain and Northern Ireland. and he met with Gerry Adams, leader of Sinn Fein, the political wing of the Irish Republican Army, Spence's trips were mainly sponsored by the National Security Committee, which he now chairs.

Explaining her employer's National Security Committee jaunts, Schroeder alde Andrea Camp said voters seldom understand the reason for auch trips. "Oversight and fact-finding are the most difficult. part of committee work to communicate to the voters," she said. "They don't ace the amount of work that is done."

The Roll Call Report Syndicate survey did not cover Senate travel or privately-financed foreign trips by House members.

Pastel and watercolor paintings incorporate handmade paper, colored pencil, or oil pustel. There's a lesson here in her one woman show at the Livonia Civic Center Library Fine Arts Gallery - Cronenwett is creative and that those who can, do teach.

Cronenwett began teaching art in the Livonia Public Schools in 1966. She presently is art department chairperson at Stevenson High School where she teaches drawing, painting, advanced art techniques, and jewelry. All of the works in the Livonia Arts Commission sponsored exhibit continuing through Nov. 9 seem to have one element in common, water: Much of Cronenwett's twodimensional work is inspired by the heauty of Lake Michigan, Although other Michigan lakes and forests were instrumental as well. Impressionistic pastels of water scenes with a palette reminiscent of Claude Monet create a peacefulness sought after by man through the agos,

Her masks, which include antural materials like bark and a loon's skeleton, were found on jounts along the lakes' shores. Could Mother Nature be behind these masks?

"I didn't realize until I put all of the work up that they all have water," said Gronenwett who lives in Apo Athor.

> "I try to capture the spirit of a place, the feeling and soul of a place, When I put it all up I got a cortain spirit from it."

> Cronenwett, a member of the Ann Arbor Women Painters, completed her master's degree with an emphasis on printmaking and jewelry at Eastern Michigan University. She has exhibited at the Ann Arbor Art Association, Mid-Michigan Show in Midland, Fremont Heritage Festival, Wayne State University, and Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. One of her masks took Third Place in competition sponsored by the Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Graphic Design.

> She started her teaching career at Holmes Junior High then taught at Dickinson Junior High, followed by Bentley High School and finally, Stevenson. The knowledge she passes on daily to students in her classroom about creative problem solving is strongly evident in the paintings. The masks, inspired by the personalities of people she has known, demonstrate her innate creativity. Who else could see, at first glance, a face in the piece of weathered, wood called Found Lakeshore Mask?

"Why masks? I love faces. They're a window to the soul."

The exhibit, which Cronenwett calls a retrospective of sorts, includes a watercolor and pastel from the collection of her sister, Christine Cronenwett Bunch. Titled "The Farm," the painting is the view Cronenwett and her sister shared from an upstairs window: Many images, such as Christino's horse Silver the Dilver, recapture memorics. There's an ethereal quality to the work like a dream through the haze of the past.

"Red. Green, Purple Landscape" recalls her invigorating experience studying papermaking in Japan. Cronenwett spent five weeks at Kyoto Seika University, as part of a reciprocal agreement with the University of Michigan art school, making paper, studying Japanese wood block, and visiting a village of papermakers.

"It was great. We studied printmakers and papermaking. After I returned I made this using some of the paper I made there," Cronenwett said.

The experience infused the vibrant color combinations and different techniques in her landscape that she is appreciative to show.

"I'd like to thank the Livenia Arts" Commission for giving me this opportunity. It's so wonderful having this art gallery for the community," she said.

Prices range from $150 for a pastel to $225 for the Wasp Woman mask.

ering Halloween is just around the corner, this scene doesn't seem all that unusual. But the witches and their sisters have been here for a while. You see, Woodworth creates soft sculpture figures and animals for a living.

For her, the haunting holiday has been a long time coming. She's been scaring up Hagatha and Helga Hags for Halloween for months: Several sit on the floor in various stages of assembly with heads and bodies but no legs or arms. The eeriness here, and fun is contagious,

"They all have names. They're just fun. They make people laugh. Sometimes people buy them just because of the name," said Woodworth, who at one time taught art and gym in the Redford Union School District.

"I hope people look at it and laugh, and feel good. It's feel good art.

Woodworth is a sculptor in every sense of the word. She sculpts the crooked and long pointed noses on the witches to denote crotchiness in the old crones. Woodworth began creating the characters about six years ago in order to be able to stay home with her children: Mackenzie, 3; Tyler,

"I try to make the faces as in-

If they can survive the process of being born and it's kid-proof, you want people to touch. # Being scared can be fun

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

Why is it then, that so many demur and law-abiding citizens are drawn like mystical magnets to haunted houses - those harrowing, habitats of horrendous happenings?

"People like the thrill of being scared," explained Sue Sirada, clinical psychologist at Northwestern Community Services in Livonia. "That's why they like roller coasters or any of those scary rides at amusement. parks. It's a way to master your fears - 'If I can get through this and be scared and still come out whole, I'm OK.''

Teenagers seem to be drawn by a very powerful magnet to those dastardly domains. "It is a power: type of thing," said Sirada, who pointed out that teens often like to brag to their friends about their accomplishments. "It's being one of the gang for the teenager."

Sirada counts herself among the many who have no desire to cross those possessed portals. "I know they're fake, and I still am not going to walk through one of those things," she conceded.

Parents of young children, Sirada cautions, should steer clear of those nightmare-provoking spectacles. "A little bit of being frightened is OK," she contends, like trolls and ogres in fairy tales, often read from the security of Mom or Dad's lap.

Sharon Arthur has been in charge of the Wayne-Westland YMCA haunted house for the past 12 years and has seen many frightened children brought by parents.

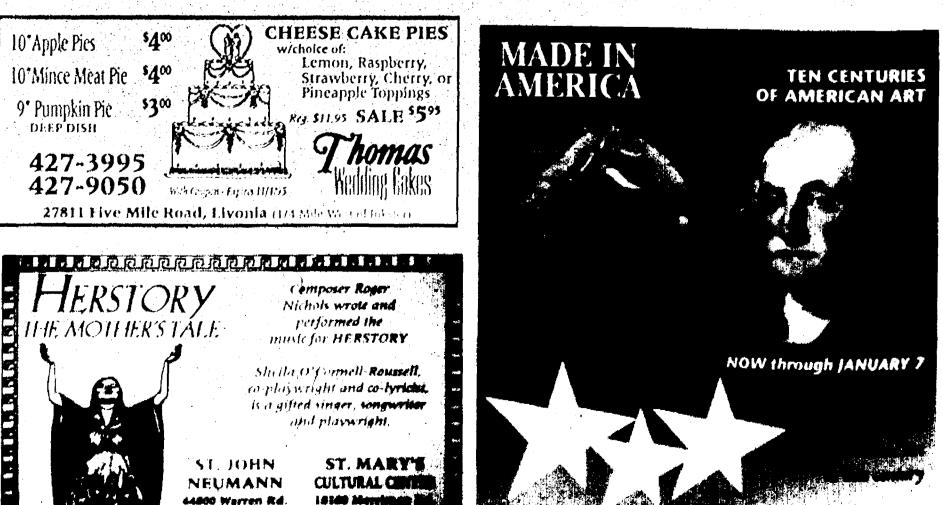

Arthur does not recommend parents bring the children to the nighttime haunting. There is only one price in the evening because, "Frankly, we don't want to encourage people to bring their little kids to that," she said.

'A little mind has an imagination that won't quit," said Arthur who believes parents sometimes don't realize what they are doing and offers to refund money and watch children who don't want to go through with their parents at the last minute.

For those looking for alternatives to hauntings and even to the now questionable safety of the age-old practice of begging door to door for candy, there are plenty of area alternatives.

Some communities, like Garden City, offer children's parties on the 31st. Sponsored by the Jaycees, the party offers free food, games and prizes for kids through. 12 years old.

Jaycee member and party planner Laura Ewing says her own children, Jessica, 8; Ashley, 4; and Audrey 5 months, love it.

Museum offers hands-on fun for kids

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

remember. I do and I understand." That old Chinese proverb is basic to the philosophy on which the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum was developed.

And there is plenty to do at the museum in the old fire station on East Huron Ave. The firehouse. built in 1882, is on the National Registry of Historic Places.

Cynthia Yao, director of the museum, wrote the proposal for the hands on facility 15 years ago. "Interactive science was just sort of an idea in people's heads," recounted associate director. Leslie Kimmell. "She (Yao) was very, very excited about it and conveyed that excitement to the rest of the community, and the response that we got was just incredible. The whole community just pitched in and made this work." The museum has expanded "I hear and I forget. I see and I over the years to four floors of fascinating exhibits and is undergoing even more expansion with the recent purchase of adjacent buildings on East Huron, A preschool gallery and a multi-cultural gallery have already been added.

> There is also space for traveling exhibitions. Currently, that space is cleared for the museum's annual fund-raising auction, but new exhibits should be coming in again in November.

Tiffany Mapes of Dearborn was at the museum on a bright Saturday afternoon with her husband, Daniel and sons, Ryan, 11, and Adam, 6.

They have a family membership, and Tiffany confessed, "We come here often because there's so much for them to do. This is fairly inexpensive. It's safe. They can touch everything. They can play a glass globe with constantly flucanything. You can be here for hours. We usually stay about three hours."

According to Kimmel, "This museum probably never has an exhibit down. You can imagine how sturdy the exhibits have to be to take all these thousands and thousands of hands that are pushing and pulling buttons."

What a marvelous way for kids to experience first hand so many scientific principles. And adults need not be a science whiz to explain the workings since each exhibit has a sign posted nearby with the facts in layman's terms.

With more than 75 exhibits, everyone has a favorite. Ryan Mapes liked everything, but one particular favorite was the echo earphones, Adam Mapes' favorite was, "the globe thing." Better known as the Star Sculpture, it's with it. They're not going to break tuating electrical currents, kind of like a continuous lightning storm. From the giggles of delight, it was obvious that four-year-old Lindsey Schwartz loved being enveloped in the giant bubble. Oblivious to the principles of surface tension and light refraction through the swirling panels of soap film, she may be able to call on that experience in years to come.

Lindsey and sister; Blair 7, had come with their grandmother, Lois Howard of West Bloomfield. This was their first trip to the museum.

"Their parents are out of town, and we wanted to find a hands-on type place, and we were very pleased," said Howard. "It's very cleverly done. Children are not afraid to touch.".

MOVIES Smoke' sequel generates little heat

"Blue in the Face" was probably a lot more fun to make than it is to watch. Shot in less than. a week and featuring bits by stars like Michael J. Fox and JOHN Roseanne, it's an MONAGHAN odd little film in search of a truly inspired inoment.

The project came about this way: director Wayne Wang and writer Paul Auster had just finished shooting "Smoke," the art house hit about a Brooklyn cigar store and its neighborhood clientele. They talked star Harvey Keitel into sticking around and let word get out that an improvisational film was in the making.

They came up with situations and then shot 10-minute takes with a single camera, both Wang and Auster taking turns in the director's chair. They culled the best material from these bits and strung them together with video interviews and newsreel footage of Brooklyn in its glory days.

Voila, A feature film. Well, sort of.

"Smoke" was a nice little movie about how chance meetings can lead to poignant relationships with Auggie's corner cigar store as emotional epicenter. "Blue in the Face" tries to examine the Brooklyn experience through its residents, attitude and history.

People from different ethnic groups stand in front of the store and rattle off facts about the borough, things like 742 murders last year or 2,232 Belgian waffles sold in a given week. Others recount how Brooklyn has never recovered from the day when the Dodgers moved to Los Angeles.

Belgian waffles become something of a running gag throughout the film. They're the food of choice for Lily Tomlin, who plays a fairly unconvincing homeless person, complete with chest hair and a mustache.

Madonna delivers a singing. telegram to Keitel's Auggie and both wear an enjoyably smart-alec grin. Roseanne, as the frustrated wife of Auggie's boss, takes her part in some surprising directions (apparently even for Keitel), but they don't make much sense dramatically.

American Quilt

every day of hard living and drug abuse waxing philosophical about New York. His bits are interspersed at intervals throughout the film, possibly because he selfconsciously adjusts his glasses so many times that you couldn't watch in a single sitting.

Director Jim Jarmusch ("Stranger than Paradise," "Mystery Train") fares beat as a guy who has decided to quit smoking. What better place to have his last Lucky Strike than with his buddy Auggie?

"I like to watch the smoke rise from it," he says reflectively, just three drags away from cold turkey. "It trails off like a thought, a memory."

As with "Smoke" the Brooklyn Cigar Company itself remains the film's most vivid creation. Framed pictures of cigar-chomping celebrities hang above ancient wood and glass display cases

You'll find Lou Reed showing while Auggie's slow-witted assistant endlessly sweeps the buttscarred floor.

The movie rightly says that litthe shops like this keep neighborhoods alive and give them character. "Blue in the Face" would like to send a similar message to Hollywood about how quirky, viable films can be made (need to be made) with a little pluck and talent.

With few exceptions, however, this well-intentioned movie might be renamed "Red in the Face" for its lackluster performance with critics and at the box office. It plays through next week exclusively at Bloomfield's Maple Theatre.

Girlhood ties strong in endearing 'Now and Then'

BY BOB THOMAS AP NEWSTEATLRES

Q. How do you sell a female coming-of-age movie in today's male-oriented market?

A. By filling the cast with big names to play the girls as grownups.

That seems to be the formula for "Now and Then," a New Line Cinema release, and the results are generally satisfying, even endearing. Demi Moore, who produced the film along with Suzanne Todd, appears in it, along with Melanie Griffith, Rosie O'Donnell and Rita Wilson.

Most of "Now and Then" is devoted to a quartet of spirited 12year-olds who portray the stars as youngsters. They are Christina Ricci (O'Donnell), Thora Birch (Griffith), Gaby Hoffmann (Moore) andAshleigh Aston

REVIEW

The four girls wheel their bikes around town, dreaming up pranks and battling with four pesky brothers. They are gathering information about sex, some of it sputious, and are mostly problem-free, except for one girl whose parents are getting divorced.

They discover the four brothers skinny-dipping in a pond and get their revenge by scattering the boys' clothes over the landscape. They perform odd jobs to raise enough money for a tree house where they can hold their meetings.

The girls hold a seance in a graveyard, summoning the soul of a boy whose marker reads "Dear Johnny." They are consumed with curiosity to learn now the boy died. Bit by bit they unravel the 25-year-old mystery.

Moore (Wilson).

The story begins in a small Indiana town where the four women grew up. They have been summoned by Wilson, who is fearful as she faces the birth of her first baby. She is the only housewife of the four, her home suggesting a time warp back to the 1970s.

The other three are overachievers. The sardonic O'Donnell is a doctor who has stayed in town and lives with a man. Griffith is a fluffed-up movie star who arrives in a white stretch limo. The embittered Moore writes best-selling books. Antagonisms crupt until the four begin to reminisce.

Flashback to a more innocent time.

When the girls' story ends, the film returns to their adult counterparts. They realize their girlhood ties are just as strong as ever.

Lesli Linka Glatter, director of television series and prize-winning shorts, makes an impressive debut in features, eliciting heartfelt performances from both generations of actresses. The youngsters perform just as adeptly as the women. The script, by I. Marlene King, is reportedly semi-autobiographical, and it is obviously deeply felt.

Southpaw Grammar - Morrissey

"To be finished would be a rellef," sings Morrissey on "The Teachers Are Afraid of the Pupils," the 11 minute-plus opener on his seventh solo album "Southpaw Grammar" (Reprise). It's his umpteenth suicide line; with such lyrics, it's no wonder he's been forever pegged as the music world's most impeccably coiffed moper.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

The band Phish has sold out yenues like Madison Square Gardens in New York, and is expected to pack The Palace on Saturday, Sure, banda do that all the time but what's so unusual about Phish is that they've done it without the benefit of a hit single or much radio airplay.

Drummer Jon Fishman admits hisband's strategy for collecting such a cult following has a lot to do with pure luck and the way they treat their audience.

"Well other than paying our audience .... I guess we're not like mean to them. We don't throw things at them, break their limbs and treat them (horribly) like some bands who do nasty things to their audiences. Although it does seem like the nastier the bands are to their audience, the more response they get," Fishman said.

"I think it's just getting out and playing a lot of gigs throughout the years. We've had some airplay but in general it's all been from word of mouth. We just got lucky.'

It has nothing to do with the fact that rock magazines and industry insiders have dubbed them "the next Grateful Dead."

"That's a bunch of (crap). A bunch of malarkey. No one's the next anybody. They're still looking for 'the next Jimi Hendrix.' It's just because we've got a lot of hippies in our crowd; we're known as a live band and there's some similarities to our reputations as far as the consciousness. I think the comparisons end there.

"We do have music where we jam and improvise. We're a rock band that improvises. A rock band that improvises is a pretty general statement of comparison. . . . There's certainly been no mass exodus from the Grateful Dead crowd as it were over to our crowd. It's not like all the wealthy businessmen who bought blocks of tickets for Grateful Dead shows suddenly started doing that for our shows, or all the old hippies who used to go to the Grateful Dead 30 years ago throw on the tie-dies and suddeny started doing that for us.' Phish's success has a lot to do with pure talent. The band's live shows stray from the strict boundaries of the "typical" rock show. During the freeform musical happening it's not uncommon for the band to break into a polka, an a cappella Hebrew folk song in the middle of a rock set, an acoustical bluegrass number, or a 15-minute plugged in jam session. Fishman is proud to have captured that feeling on Phish's latest album "A Live One," which he calls one of their best records. "For years I said, 'I wish we could make an album that had the same kind of energy that our shows do.' We didn't necessarily want one that sounds like a gig but we did want that level of energy. It seemed like (during

10B(F.★)

What's continually overlooked is how much fun moping with Morrissey can be. Since the exalted heights of the Smiths in the '80s to his last solo album earlier this year, few artists have presented their listeners with such a thorough, complete exploration of a certain mood and feeling in a body of work. Notoriously guarded in his personal life, over the course of his career Morrissey has nevertheless revealed more of himself through his music than any artist this writer can think of. He is a genius.

That said, there is astonishingly little doom and gloom on "Southpaw Grammar." The guitars of co-writers Boz Boorer and Alain Whyte are once again brought to the fore, making for Morrissey's. noisiest album yet. It is also his most difficult. For beginners, it's hard to decide what to make of "Teachers" and the 10-minute closer, "Southpaw." These two elephantine tracks loudly and ponderously sandwich the other six songs, but despite them, "Grammar" careens at an astonishing pace.

Morrissey's lyrics are typically thoughtful and evocative, but as always, ring true later, after the rush of the music fades. He is in fine voice, his band in top form, so it's no surprise that cuts like "Reader Meet Author" and "Daghenham Dave" are aggressively catchy and satisfying. The album's real treasure is "The Boy Racer," as excit-ing a slab of riflage as the Mozzer has ever crooned over, taken at a full gallop.

Despite its lack of a trademark, meditative brooder and its epic, confusing bookends, "Southpaw Grammar" has muscle to spare. In fact, the album's intensity threatens to alienate his fans, the number of which seem to steadily decrease each year. However, at this point in his career, Morrissey has the success, the clout and the mind to do whatever he wishes. One gets the feeling he wouldn't despair if his latest career move throws a few more fans. After all, what other artists can truly say that the older they got, the harder they rocked?

Now that they're "no longer hung up on the idea of imitating the energy of a live concert" and they've tackled the live album rock 'n' roll rite of passage, the band is looking forward to spending the beginning of next year starting "a different chapter of our life."

Superchunk goes it alone for quality

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

For frenzied rockers Superchunk, recording its latest album "Here's Where The Strings Come In" (Merge) was a stretch.

"We spent more time on it than others, which is five days recording and five days mixing," said guitarist/ vocalist Mac McCaughan of a process that takes other bands months. "For us that's a luxurious amount of time in the studio. We just tend to work fast."

The result is a stunning punk/pop gem. The manic "Hyper Enough" leads off the album which also includes slower, more expansive songs. One song, "Detroit Has A Skyline," takes a look at the brighter side of touring.

"It was kind of about our last tour which was kind of a drag of a tour. There's a friend of mine who lives in Detroit who I hadn't seen in a long time and I got to see her. It's about something good happening in the middle of a bad tour and how it is possible to have a good time on tour, like getting to see people you never get to see. All different kinds of stuff."

The band has done its share of touring since Superchunk was formed in 1989 by McCaughan and bassist Laura Ballance, Jim Williur was added on millar just before the band's first tear, and Jon Wurster joined in Jale 1991 to complete the present line up.

Relish raises sauces to an art

BY ELENOR & RAY HEALD Special Warters

Since its opening Sept. 21, Relish has been drawing crowds attracted to its new concept ---relishes, "Every cuisine in the world has some sort of relish," said Jim Barnett, Unique Restaurant Corp.'s corporate chef.

"We consider them sauces and they include salsas, Pacific Island sambal and Indian chutney, the original relish. We go further and include ketchup, chow chows and piccalillis, a sweeter version of chow chow. From Indonesia, we offer blatjangs (blat-yong) and atjars."

While waiting to be seated, diners can get in the mood. There's a table with three relish samplings plus a basket of tortilla chips and sweet potato chips for dipping and nibbling. In all, 95 percent of menu items come with at least one of 24 different relish. es at this latest addition to the Unique Restaurant Corp.'s growing number of area restaurants.

Browsing the ambitious menu, one gets an immediate sense that it is produce intensive. "We have a distinct freshness advantage because the corporation owns G.W. Produce in Eastern Market and Sourdough Bakery in Pontiac," said Relish's 30year-old executive chef Robert Oliver, a Livonia resident and Schoolcraft College Culinary School graduate who extended his training at the prestigious Culinary Institute of America. "The corporation trusted me to participate in Relish's kitchen design and menu development. My creativity was challenged."

Oliver observed that the Michigan Potato Soup with Corn and Roasted Pepper Relish, Wood Grilled Portabella Mushrooms with Chutney of Roasted Garlie and Shallots plus the Oriental Shrimp Satay with Oriental Vegetables and a Plum Wine Ginger and Almond Sambal were the Roasted Pepper Sauce plus

"The kids menu is great and they love it," Mrs. Garfield noted.

This is not surprising considering that Matt Prentice, proprietor, president and CEO of Unique Restaurant Corp., has four children. He commented that families must feel comfortable at all his restaurants which includo Morels in Bingham Farms, America on Woodward in Royal Oak, Bruschetta Cafe in Troy's Oakland Mall, Novi's Trattoria Bruschetta in the Hotel Baronette, Sebastian's Grill and Cafe Jardin in Troy's Somerset Collection and Birmingham's Tavern on 13. There are also two Deli Unique locations in West Bloomfield and Bingham Farms. In 1980, at ago 21, a Dell Unique then located in Oak Park was Prentice's first restaurant purchase.

Also dining at Relish for the third time were Farmington Hills residents Diane and Tom Martin, "Matt Prontice is resourceful and the concept of Relish is novel," Tom noted. Diane observed that the service was consistent, that she enjoyed the atmosphere and additionally "it's a good bang for the buck," she concluded.

"We belong to the Unique Restaurant Corp. Frequent Diner Program where every dollar counts as one point," Tom explained. "With 500 points we receive a free dining club card that gives us discounts at all the URC restaurants and that amounts to a two for one deal. You can't beat it."

Company honored for offering healthy choices

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

Wellness Works." Indeed, it does. Just ask one of Spectrum Human Services' 730 employees. Perhaps one of those who has recently lost weight or who has stopped smoking. Maybe one of those who has just delivered a healthy baby because of good prenatal care. Or, how about one who has lowered his/her cholesterol significantly or raised the level of exercise?

"The first thing you see when you come into the building is our big "Wellness Works' sign," said Shirley Edwards, deputy director of Spectrum Human Services In Livonia.

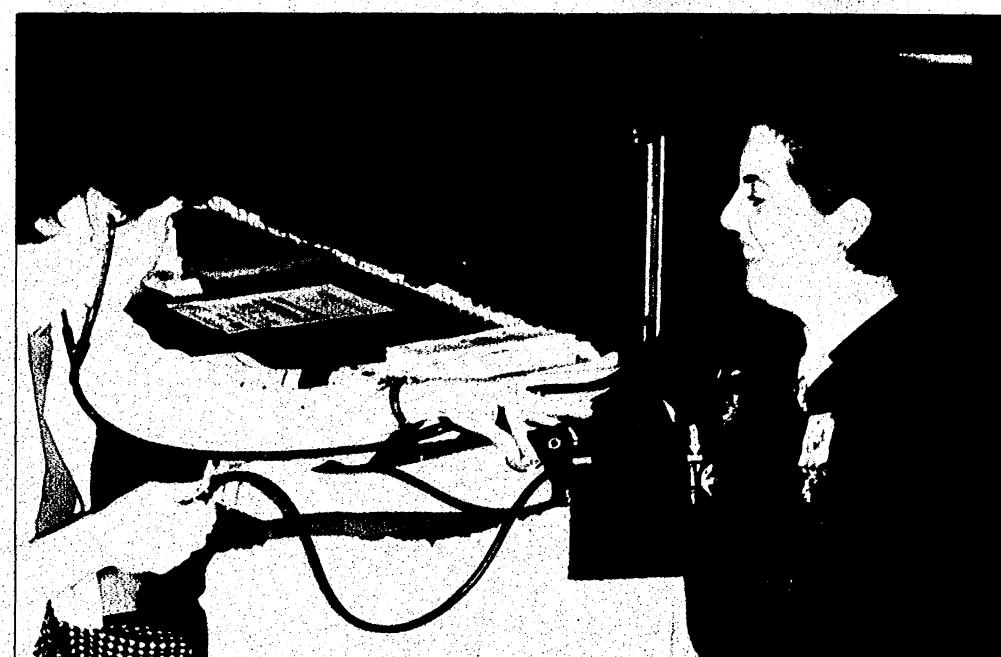

The company, with branch offices in Southfield, Detroit, Grand Rapids and Berrien County, was one of 15 Detroitarea businesses recognized and awarded by the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports for its worksite fitness programs:

"It has become part of our milieu here. It's not something that we do once a year," said Edwards.

Turnaround

That wasn't always the case for the 11th largest nonprofit company in the state of Michigan. Spectrum is a private, nonprofit, human service organization that works with the Department of Social Services, Community Mental Health and with the courts to provide programming for children, youth and adults involved in foster care, in-home services, group homes, independent living, etc. About five years ago, the company began to look into ways to reduce high-risk pregnancies as a way to cut down on health care costs. Edwards pointed out that it would cost from $20,000 to $100,000 for one hospital stay for a mother with her premature infant.

Spectrum instituted a well-the event with the day off for all employees who were strongly encouraged to come take part in the programs at the office. In addition to vendors promoting a myriad of healthy products, there were workshops going on throughout the day. This year's menu consisted of such topics as homeopathic medicine, women's health issues and holistic health issues. Masseuses available for a 10minute massage, facials and door prizes were other little perks of the day. A video room was available for informational videos on a variety of pertinent health tonica Edwards pointed out that most of the employees turned out for the event, but admitted, "We do some things to encourage it, like everybody had to come here to pick up their paychecks. The way we had it arranged, they literally had to go through the fair to get their checks." She was quick to point out, "Once people came, they enjoyed baby program for its employees, and was there a payoff? Absolutely. Not just in savings to the company, but in healthy babies for the parents. Since the program's inception, there has not been a single premature birth.

"We have a lot of statistics that bear this out financially in terms of health care costs that have been saved," Edwards said.

Expanding wellness

That initial program stressing good prenatal care, exercise and nutrition has ballooned into a comprehensive companywide program encouraging the development and maintenance of good health habits for all its employces.

"It literally has taken on a life of its own," said Edwards, Spectrum held its fourth annual health fair Sept. 29. The company declared a holiday for #### themselves and didn't leave." Attitude counts

Healthy attitudes at the company spread quickly with the help of company incentives like a credit toward health insurance premiums each pay period for employees participating in companysponsored health programs and activities.

The programs, including weight loss and maintenance classes, are all free of charge to employees thanks to being Spectrum Human Services. The women are from Stressage Health Spa in Detroit which specializes in aromatherapy.

partially funded by Worksite Health Promotion, a state-run funding program. Edwards gave kudos to the administration at Spectrum for the wholehearted support of the ongoing programs. James Minder, CEO, and Roger Swaninger, executive director at Spectrum, just completed an eight-week Weight Management and Nutrition program. Approximately 70 employees participated and collectively lost nearly 300 pounds. Swaninger lost 20 pounds. "Moving Across America" was a program developed to reinforce healthy habits. Employees could accumulate miles by doing such healthful things as not salting food, exercising and drinking plenty of water. Starting in Maine, they could chart their way across the United States to visit eight national parks. For each park visited on the chart, an hour of personal leave time would be awarded. By visiting all eight parks on the way to California, a free vacation day could be earned. A lot of little things that have become a way of life at Spectrum have added up to make a healthy lifestyle for its employees. Walk groups have replaced a walk to the coffee pot. Fruit and bagels have edged out doughnuts and danish. Fruits and vegetables in vending machines? You bet. A healthy recipe box produces more offerings than the suggestion.

Steppin' up: Nathan Kitchen helps coach an unidentified Spectrum employee on the basics of step aerobics.

CDC recognition

In September, The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., selected Spectrum Human Services to be featured in a training module video for company health promotions as an example of what a small company can do. The large company featured was Coca-Cola. Edwards, who is sometimes affectionately referred to as the health guru by fellow employees, is a staunch supporter and advocate of all the health programs offered at Spectrum. Indeed, she has lost 45 pounds in the past year. And the big payoff? "I feel good!" she said.

within the next 12 months, remained unchanged at 48 percent in September, the same probability level recorded in August and July. The Detroitbased bank has several branches in western Wayne County.

"After rising continuously since the middle of last year, the index has remained at the same level for three months now," said Comerica economist William T. Wilson. "The Recession Watch Index is forecasting modest economic growth throughout the remainder of 1995 before turning anemic in 1996. The index still is not calling for a full-fledged recession like the ones that occurred during 1981-82 or 1990-91," Wilson said.

Comerica's Recession Watch Index is a weighted average of three leading indicators: spread in the yield curve, adjusted bank reserve growth, and the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators. The index forecasts the probability of recession or an economic slowdown over the next 12 months.

UNEMPLOYMENT TAXES

Michigan employers will qualify for a cut in their 1996 unemployment taxes thanks to recently approved changes to the state's unemployment insurance (UI) law, "Because we have a solid cash reserve in the state's unemployment taxes, totaling $139 million," F: Robert Edwards, Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) director, announced at the annual meeting of the Employers Unemployment Compensation Council in Troy.

The tax cut will save employers an average of $38 per employee and up to as much $95 per employee, depending upon the employer's tax rate. The tax cut is across the board and all fully experienced employers, generally those who have been in operation for more than four years, should receive it.

Edwards estimated that cut will affect 180,000 Michigan employers. According to state law, the tax cut is triggered if the cash reserves in Michigan's UI trust fund are at least 1.2 percent of all Michigan total payrolls as of the June 30 prior to the tax year. By June 30, 1995, the fund's reserve was $1.315 billion, which exceeds the requirement. Money from the UI trust fund is used to pay unemployment benefits to jobless workers, while employer pay state unemployment taxes into the fund. The reduced tax rato will appear on next year's tax rate notices, which will be issued around April 1, 1996. The April mailing is later than usual due to

Program offers home care for psychiatric patients

BY JILL HALPIN SPECIAL WRITER

28B*

The many issues surrounding the nation's growing population of senior citizens have captured the country's collective concern. Who will care for them and how to do

While many entrepreneurs are busily trying to find answers to these perplexing questions, some local medical facilities are working toward another goal: How to help them care for themselves. Focusing on patients' mental health as well as physical, home health care providers have introduced psychiatric home care.

Psychiatric home care is a type of managed patient care that allows patients diagnosed with psychiatric illnesses to work closely with doctors, nurses and social workers while still remaining in their homes, according to Theresa Foley, head of United Home, their medication and how it influ-Health Services Inc. psychiatric home care unit.

Located in Canton Township, the Medicare-certified service provides home health care for patients of all ages in western Wayne County and surrounding communities.

Treatment at home

"We are the eyes of the physician in the home. We provide services to patients who have both primary and secondary psychiatric diagnoses," said Foley.

A primary psychiatric diagnosis applies to patients who are receiving care only for a psychiatric conditions, while a secondary paychiatric diagnosis applies to patients who suffer from both physic cal and psychiatric illness, Foley said

Working with a supervising physician, psychiatric nurses and social workers strive to help patients and their families learn to manage their care in their homes, Foley said.

Nurses and social workers do more than assess the patient condition. "We also do some teaching," said Foley.

"We talk to patients about ences or exacerbates their condition.

Teaching component "We also talk about the relationship between their physical illness and their emotional response and teach them coping skills such as how to be proactive with their illness," said Foley.

Social workers provide additional support, including providing caregiver resources for finding transportation and helping with household chores.

Although psychiatric home care has been available in the past, it is only recently that health professionals have started offering this service on a wide basis.

Some say one reason for the change may be the growth of the elderly population.

"The geriatric population is increasing. As with any segment of the population that grows, with the growth comes an increased need for mental health services for that population. There is definitely a growing need for this," said Sari Abromovich, clinical intake coordinator with Botsford Hospital's gero-psychiatric unit. Abromovich notes that economic factors and the advent of managed care has also contributed to services, Abromovich said. the expansion of home health care. Increased medical costs have also caused both insurance companies and health professionals to reassess treatment for patients.

'There was a time when a person was admitted into the hospital and we really didn't look at the length of stay," Abromovich said.

"Now, we are looking at whether or not patients really need in hospital care. Inpatient care is now used for stabilizing the patient in a safe setting and then getting them back into the swing of things. It can be therapeutic to get people back with their families," she said.

Hughley also noted that referrals for additional psychiatric care are not uncommon among patients suffering from physical illnesses that require home health.care.

"When patients are isolated: there is a tendency toward depres: sion. It is a very natural outcome of being home-bound. If a nurse recognizes that a patient may need additional treatment, we are able to assess it and work with doctors to treat that need. Home psychiatric care gives us the opportunity to address all of the needs of the patients," said Hughley. In addition to the psychiatric home care program, United Home Health Services Inc. offers pa tients community health nurses, home health aides, medical social workers, physical, occupational and speech therapists and medical nutrition therapy.

The distributions will vary from fund to fund. It depends on the fund's high turnover rate of securities traded and management style.

If a fund manager is trying to replace present stocks with companies of greater upside potential, the portfolio is frequently buying and selling.

If you are thinking about buying a mutual fund now, call the fund company and ask for an estimated year-end distribution rate. The company may have one, but will warn you that the numbers could change dramatically between now and the declaration date, especially if the company isn't making their distributions until December.

It's difficult to say what could happen in the stock market this. last quarter. A suggestion for large fund purchases for taxable accounts is to wait until after the year end distributions are declared. This would avoid any chances of creating a tax trap. For an investor who doesn't mind paying taxes on income he or she will receive or if the added income doesn't raise the tax bracket then year-end buying can be a benefit.

United Technologies starts Internet site

United Technologies Automotive has unveiled online availability of its new World Wide Web home page, with the Internet address http://www.uta.com.

Access to the site is available to anyone with an Internet connection. The site is believed to be the most comprehensive available by an automotive component supplier.

UTA's Web site offers highly graphical- or text-based information about the company, accessible from the following menu selections:

About Us - Background on UTA that includes a company overview and capabilities; brief history; a selection of articles from employee-circulated UTA News; and a comprehensive collection of news releases issued during 1995 with an online Email connection to the appropriate media contact. The site also will offer downloadable, high-resolution photo images to accompany the news releases at a future date.

■ People - Biographical information and photos on the company's key executives with hot links to their educational institutions. A section on media contacts, complete with bios and photos, as well as phone and fax numbers and Internet E-mail addresses, also is offered. These photos also are expected to be downloadable in high resolution format in the near future.

The internet is revolutionizing the way organizations communicate, and it's exciting to be among the first automotive suppliers to enter the world of cyberspace with our own, inhouse-developed Web pages.'

Locations - Shows UTA's global resources through a series of "image mapped" point-andclick graphics that let the viewerretrieve information on company facilities by pointing to the continent/ountry/city of interest. Information includes mailing address, phone, fax, and a listing of the products manufactured.

Products — A wire frame graphical representation of a generic car, showing UTA's comprehensive product offering. A product menu list allows viewers to jump to full product descriptions with a single click.

Employment - A brief description of employment opportunity categories at UTA, with a hot-linked E-mail connection to UTA's Human Resources group. The employment page is expected to offer on-line job postings at a later date.

'The Internet is revolutionizing the way organizations communicate," said David Long, vice president, Communications, for UTA, "and it's exciting to be among the first automotive suppliers to enter the world of cyberspace with our own, in-house-developed Web pages. Customers anywhere in the world can access information about UTA 24-hours a day. We created our Web site to provide the kind of information about our products, manufacturing locations and technical capabilities that our customers and others will find truly useful."

Long said the Web site is expected to help provide product engineers and purchasing managers at customer companies with a broader understanding of the fullservice systems capabilities and global manufacturing resources that UTA offers, UTA's Web site was developed entirely by the company's Communications Department, using information provided by marketing, engineering and executive personnel from product groups within the company. UTA is a major supplier of electrical, electronic and interior. trim systems and components to car and light truck manufacturers. Its products are part of nearly every passenger vehicle built in North America and Europe, and a growing number in Asia.

UTA is a subsidiary of Hartford, Conn.-based United Technologies Corp.

MISS DIG celebrates 25th anniversary

model for one call damage prevention programs, MISS DIG System Inc. celebrated its 25th anniversary Monday.

A proclamation signed by Gov. John Engler recognized the onecall utility damage prevention program for helping to save lives, prevent injuries and avert mil." lions of dollars in property damage since its inception in 1970.

The program received a similar proclamation from the Michigan Public Service Commission.

More than 700 Michigan utilities, including gas, electric, water, sewer, cable and long distance telephone carriers, participate in the MISS DIG System program.

"It is with a great deal of pride that we celebrate the silver anniversary of MISS DIG. This successful one call operation began as a pilot program in four townships and now covers all of Michigan's 83 counties, encompassing 58,000 square miles," said Kathleen A. Fournier, executive director for MISS DIG System.

Those who call the MISS DIG System three working days prior to the beginning of an excavation or construction project will have member utilities at the exact location staked with color-coded flags. free of charge.

The MISS DIG program recently received its seven millionth utility staking request. Dave Barnett, Invisible Fencing of Birmingham Inc., was recognized by the MISS DIG System for placing the record staking request at Monday's celebration in Lansing. Requests have increased steadily in the past several years, with a record-breaking 568,693 calls received in 1994.

"The underlying message of MISS DIG is that of safety," said

Fournier. 'One toll-free call is all it takes to have utilities staked. Proper staking and hand-digging around underground utilities as well as staying clear of overhead electric lines can mean the difference between safety and serious injury or death," Fournier said. "Millions of dollars in property damages have also been saved because MISS DIG was called prior to construction," she added.

Five of the state's largest utilities - Consumers Power Co., Detroit Edison, General Telephone, Ameritech and Michigan Consolidated Gas - started MISS DIG in 1970, and hold the administrative responsibility for the program.

The operation of the MISS DIG

System was under the direction of CMS Utility Services Inc., a subsidiary of CMS Energy Corp., until its incorporation in December 1994.

Public Act 53, approved by the Michigan Legislature in 1974, requires that any contractor or private individual using power equipment to excavate, blast or drill must notify MISS DIG of construction plans, Homeowners planning to excavate on their property for any reason are also encouraged to call the MISS DIG System.

The toll-free MISS DIG phone number is 1-800-482-7171. Calls can be made from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. Normal staking requests are taken three working days prior to the beginning of an excavation or construction project.

Emergency staking requests for situations such as water or gas main breaks and utility line repairs can be phoned in to MISS DIG System 24 hours a day.

hitney Crosby went 1-1 at No. 1 singles liefore losing to eventual Class A runnerup Megan Kearney of Okemos in the third round, 6.0, 6.4, of the state girls tennis tournament held last weekend at the Midland Community Tennis Center, Stevenson scored a total of five points. Crosby, a sophomore, won her opening-round match with a 7-5, 6-2 triumph over Sarah Soder man of Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central. Carrie Rose of Bloomfield Hills Lahser beat, Kearney in the finals, 6-2, 6-3,

At No. 4 singles, Stevenson's Mara Mazzoni won her first-round match against Joir Werschky of Flint Carman-Alnaworth, 6-4, 6-7, 7-5, but was ousted in the next round by Kristi Tasch of Traverse City, 6-0, 4-6, 6-2.

Stevenson's No. 1 doubles team of Lindsay Pleifer and Anita Plante opened with a 6-2, 7-8. win over Nikkl and Meri Hart of Wyandotte Roosevelt. Top seeds Allison McClelland and Jonny Abraham of Portage Northern ousted Pfelfer and Plante, 0-1, 6-3.

The Spartons carned their other point at No. 2 doubles when Kristi DiBasio and Pam Samsel downed Megan Matusik and Jacquie Seitz of Monroe, 6-3, 7-6. Top seeds Jessica Putz and Ann Tompkins of team champion Okemos ousted the Stevenson duo, 6-1, 6-2.

Darkness suspends city tussle

Livonia Franklin and Churchill will resume action tentatively for 4 p.m. Friday in a Class A district boys soccer semifinal match-up, Darkness halted play Wednesday with the two teams knotted at 2-2.

BY BRAD EMONH STAPP WRITER

The ongoing petition drive to install lights at Livonia Franklin's Claude Snarey Field couldn't happen soon enough as far as Chad Campau is concerned.

"You couldn't make stronger, case for lights at this school than you could today," said the Livonia Churchill boys soccer coach, who watched in frustration as the Class A district semi-final game with the host Patriots was suspended just before 7 p.m. Wednesday because of darkness.

The score was tled at 2-all when play was halted. The teams were deadlocked after 80 minutes of regulation time followed by the first 16minutes audden death overtime.

Franklin athletic director Dan Freeman said the match will resume at 4 p.m. Priday at Snarey. If a second 15-minute OF can't determine the outcome, then the teams will resort to a shootout. The winner will meet Redford Union for the district crown, 11 a.m. Baturday at Churchill, Wednesday's 4:30 p.m. start, more: than anything, caused the match to be suspended.

"This doesn't happen often enough. . that it's probably not covered in the rulebook," said Joe Trachy, the lead official. "I don't think the start ing time necessarily had anything to do with it."

Maybe it was the way Trachy let things go. The field resembled the Ballie of Gellyanning

"It was very physical," said Campau, whose Chargers are 9-4-4 overall. "It's two Livonia teams going at each other with the realization that one team moves on and the other packs up and goes home." Franklin led 1-0 with 7:08 left in MacGillis. (Mike Monson drew the assist).

With 12:44 left in the game, Churchill's Rob Bartoletti scored from the left side to make it 2-1, but Franklin's Eric Kracht sent the game into OT with a penalty kick after Churchill defender Jeff Kozlow was called for pulling down Franklin's Robert Vega in the box.

Kracht, who slid his shot into the lower left-hand corner past Churchill keeper Bryan Stramecki, is now 8-for-6 on the year on PKs.

"I thought we really dominated in the first half, but Churchill really had its way with us in the second half," said Franklin coach Dave Hebestreit, whose team is 13-6 overall. "The game kind of flipped-flopped again after that."

STEVENSON 4, NARRISON O. Cloalkeeper Jim Grews posted his eighth shutout Wednesday as the state's No. 2 ranked team in Class A, Livonia Stavenson (18-0-2) advanced to Vriday's district champlonship final by blanking Farmington Hills Harri-

Jason Itoy, Matt Quinter, Steve Ingreo and Mark Dietrich scored goals for the Spertans, who outshot the Hawks, 32-4. Stevenson meets North Farmingon (7.8-1) for the title, 4 p.m. Priday at Harrison. REDFORD UNION 2, JOHN OLENN D: Todd Cockfield and Andrew Hengatebeck tallied first-half goals Wednesday, leading host Redford Union past Westland John Glenn (2-11-1). Back where they belong? Tom Teeters would like nothing more for his Schoolcraft College volleyhall team. The Lady: Ocelots are certainly the kind of team Teeters appreciates most ---underdogs who jell late in the season to finish with a flourish.

On Tuesday, SC took the first major step back toward a position . It is very familiar with: first place. For a decade, the Ocelots were the team in the state, winning every Restern Conference match and every NJCAA Regional on their road to the NJCAA Tentrament.

Over the past two years, howey: er, SC allowed somewhat, The Ocelots were second in the conference both years and lost in the rekional tournament.

Against Macornh CC Tuesday, they regained some of that promi nence, but it didn't come ensily; it took five sets for SC to prevail, 14-16, 15-11, 13-15, 16-14, 15-11, at SC.

Poor weather conditions bother Churchill at state

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFT WRITER

It's every young golfer's dream to someday wear the traditional green jacket following a victory at the Masters Tournament in Augusta, Ga.

But they'd rather not wear something that heavy while playing.

So imagine how the golfers at last weekend's state meet at Forest Hills Golf Course in East Lansing felt wearing as much as four layers of clothes because of the rain, wind and cold. Livonia Churchill senior Dave Higham said he wore a T-shirt, turtleneck sweater, sweat shirt and a coat while taking his swings.

"And I wore another coat between shots," he said.

Higham handled the conditions better than most, finishing 13th in the individual standings with a two-day total of 156. His first-day total of 75 qualified him for Saturday's round, when he slumped 10 81.

The Chargers finished in a four-way tie for 13th in the team standings on Friday with 327 strokes. The top 10 teams advanced to the second round with Saline taking 10th at 322.

Churchill junior Gary Kraus had 79 on the first day and just missed qualifying for the second day. The Chargers' No. 1 golfer. senior Chris Kiehler, had 83 on the first day, which was his worst outing of the year, according to coach Kirk Ösler.

It was a tough way to end a season in which the Chargers were 13-1 in dual meets and third at the Brighton Invitational, and won the Western Lakes Activities

Association and Pinckney titles along with the Plymouth Best Ball

"It was a shock to see him shoot that high; but what can you say? He's been our workhorse all year," Osler said, "With cold, wind or rain, if you have one of those things it's no problem. Two gets to be a problem, and all three makes it next to impossible to score well."

The Chargers' fourth score came from Leon Kashawlic, who had 90. Mike Cotter finished with 91.

"We needed to eke out an 85from one of them," Osler said.

The rain on the first day was so severe, Higham had to rest his golf bag on the heater in his hotel room Friday night to dry it out. He's glad he didn't clean out his bag prior to the trip.

"I wore 12 gloves and they really helped me out, keeping my grip strong," Higham said. "I didn't realize I had that many in my bag.'

Osler said Higham hit 13 greens in regulation on Saturday, meaning he had a chance at that many birdies. But putting was his downfall after being only 1 over par through 10 holes.

He three-putted three greens on the back nine to finish with three bogeys and one double bogey on Saturday.

'It was tough to watch," Osler said. "But it was a good ride, a fun season. Next year will be a learning experience."

Brian's song Karabelski leads Shamrocks to 4th

BY STEVE KOWALSKI

STAFF WRITER

Redford Catholic Central senior Brian Karabelski's future plans include attending a college in the south "for a little bit of golf, a little bit of engi-neering."

After the way he handled the rain, wind and 50 degree temperatures last weekend at the Class A state meet at Michigan State University's Forest Akers Golf Course, maybe he should reconsider the location of his future school.

Despite conditions more sulted for an Eskimo than a golfer, Karabelski surprised the field by taking second overall with a two-day total of 149 and leading CC to a fourth-place team finish. Grand Ledge won with 621 strokes (303-318), followed by second-place Rochester (307-318, 625), Traverse City in third (311-314, 625) and CC in fourth (309.323, 632),

The Shamrocks have never won a state title. This year's finish was their best since 1988 when the state went to a twoday format.

Anyone who broke 80 it was a good score, a great score," CC coach Phil Heyer said.

Bay City Central's Brent Golk took first place in the individual standings (73-74, 147). Karabelski was in first place after Friday's round of 1-over par 72 on the East Course, before scoring a respectable 77 on the second day, playing on the par. 72 West Course.

CC senior Brandon DiPaola also placed in the top 10, taking seventh place (73-81, 154). Senfor Chris Mislak, usually the Shamrocks' No. 1 or 2 player, scored 164 (83-81) and senior Chris Hulgrave scored 165 (81-84).

DiPaola, from Plymouth, who stayed warm wearing three layers on his legs and four on his upper body, said: "When he (Brian) came in at 72 and I was at 73 the first day, I thought we'd be roal close to a state championship. Oh well, we had a good year. The cold and rain just got the better of us."

Karabelski's finish was surprising to most observers because he finished third in the CC lineup most of the year despite a strong summer in which he played in several competitive tournaments, including a championship at the Michigan Junior Champions Invitational at Whispering Pines in Pinck.

ney. He said he only started to play well near the end of the season. He scored 77 at the regional and wasn't about to let the bad weather spoil his time.

"I'm one of those guys," said. Karabelski when asked if he. can adjust to bad conditions. "I was just hoping to play solid rounds to help the team. It turned out a lot more solid than I thought it would be. I had a little feeling deep down I wasn't going to win the whole thing, but I knew it would be a strong finish."

Karabelski was just as anxlous as the rest of the players: however, to retreat to the clubhouse after each round,

"My hands were frozen, I couldn't even feel the club." Karabelski said.

Karabelski chose not to use his driver because he said he's been having trouble hitting woods lately. He got in trouble a couple times off the tee the second day when he finished with one bogey and two double bogeys. He had two bogeys the first day.

"I didn't pull out my driver either day, I just hit my three woods," he said.

DiPaola might have gone into the clubhouse as the No. 1 golfer Friday were it not for boreying two of his last three holes with a three putt on No. 16 and a bad chip on No. 17.

He recovered well Saturday after starting the round at eight over par after eight holes. He also bogeyed holes 10 and 12 before hitting the next six greens in regulation and finishing nine over par.

The players weren't allowed to have caddles, but his father Jim came in handy at the turn the first day.

"I brought only two towels the first day and after nine, I asked my dad to get more, Brandon said. "He came back with two dry ones."

Vega goal slips Franklin by CC, 1-0

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Livonia Franklin's boys soccer team used a goal by senior midfielder Roberto Vega to upset Redford Catholic Central, 1.0, in Monday's Class A district opening game hosted by the Patriots. After a scoreless first half, Vega scored on a crossing pass from teammate Eric Bowman with 29:16 remaining in the second half. Vega celebrated by sprinting about 50 yards past the goal line and sliding legs first into the steal fence.

It looked like the ecstatic Vega was headed to Disney World on foot.

"I do whatever I feel like at the time," Vega said, "I was going home, the game was over after that.'

Actually, it was far from it, but the Patriots held off a furious CC rally in the last 25 minutes to advance into Wednesday's district semifinal against Livonia Churchill, Among CC's chances was a penalty kick by senior Chris Kennedy with 6:38 remaining that hit the goal post behind Franklin goalkeeper Shawn MacGillis.

The shutout was the eighth of the year for MacGillis.

SOCCER

Five of the six games Franklin lost this year were by one goal and coach Dave Hebestrelt believes it was about time their luck changed.

"It was not a very pretty game, but the intensity was there," He-bestreit said. "We knew CO played 'long ball' and we made sure their outside backs wore marked tight. I've always told them, 'We're going to turn it around, and we'll get outplayed and win.' We've outplayed some teams and lost."

CC's season ended at 10-5-3 overall.

"They got one rush and scored, but give them credit," CC coach Phil LaJoy said, "They played a good game and capitalized when they had to, we didn't."

Bowman and Vega were moving at full speed when the crossing pass was made in front of CC goalkeeper Matt Kessler, who didn't have a chance. A similar crossing pass from Bowman to Vega minutes earlier just missed. "I saw him wide open and he just hit it," Bowman said.

Bowman and a couple teammates eventually caught up to Vega and congratulated him on the goal.

"I was just chasing him," said Bowman, "I didn't know where he was going."

The Patriots weren't through chasing people as CC put up a valiant effort to tie the score.

Franklin defenders William Fischer, Jose Cazares, Efic Kracht and Dan Schloff had the toughest time with Kennedy, a defender who moved up in the second half to play forward. Playing valuable minutes defensively off the bench were William Wojtas, Rich Bunje and Dan Schloff. Kennedy's shot from about 20 yards in front of the Franklin net went about two feet over the cross bar with 22 minutes left. About two minutes later, his header off a corner kick went just wide of the Franklin net.

Junior Tony Moucoulis had a good chance minutes later, but his shot from 20 yards went straight at MacGillis, who cradled the ball.

Another CC chance in front of the net was knocked away by Vega and junior midfielder Steve Finneran, who were crowding the penalty box area. The Patriots also appeared to get away with a hand ball with 17:30 left that would have given the Shamrocks a re-start about 35 yards in front of the Franklin net. By far the biggest save was the one by the goal post on Kennedy's penalty kick. Kennedy was pulled down in the penalty box area and got the one-on-one opportunity against MacGillis. Kennedy aimed to MacGillis' left.

"I practiced it for a whole week," Kennedy said. "I always go that way. We had the opportunities, we just didn't put the ball in the net.

MacGillis said he saved about two-thirds of the penalty kicks he faced in a recent practice.

"I just waited until he hit it and then reacted," MacGillis said.

Schoolcraft caps 6th straight conference season without loss

The streak is over.

Not that it was a major setback. But Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team finally allowed a goal in a Region 12 match when Cuyahoga CC scored in the first half of Saturday's game at SC.

Hardly made a difference. The Ocelots were ahead 3-1 at the intermission and went on to post a 7-1 victory. The win pushed their overall record to 11-2-2 and their regional mark to 8-0. It was their sixth consecutive undefeated season against regional foes.

Ryan Phipps (from Plymouth Canton) collected two goals and an assist, and Nasser Salame scored twice to pace the SU attack. Tawfiq Eldabaadani added a goal and two assists, with Eric Stoecklein (Canton) and Mo Hijazi adding single scores. Victor Rodopoulos (Livonia Franklin), George Abuamsha (Westland), Woytek Radz (Farmington) and Dave Binklewicz (Franklin) each had one assist. The Region 12 playoffs will be hosted by Lakeland CC in Mentor, Ohio, this weekend. No. 2seeded Lakeland plays third-seeded Macomb CC at noon Saturday, with No. 1 SC meeting fourth seed Cuyahoga at 2 p.m. Saturday. The championship is slated for noon Sunday.

Adding to his troubles, defender Jason Hazinski (Redford. Thurston) was red-carded in the loss to Mobile, which put him onthe bench against Sunday's opponent, No. 1-ranked William Carey College, Still, the Crusaders came out strongly, a Jason Stempien shot after the opening kickoff just missing.

'We outshot them in the first half," said Alexander. But Madonna's shots couldn't find the mark; William Carey led 2-0 at the half.

And Mobile took full advantage, rolling to a 4-0 lead by halftime. "Of the teams we played this weekend, they were the strongest;" said Alexander.

Madonna was without defender Keith Gniewek (from Plymouth Canton), who's suffering from mononucleosis, and midfielder Charlie Bell, who has a stress fracture in his right leg. Alexan-

"I really thought we could play with (William Carey)," said Alexander.

At least Hazinski will be able to play today at 4 p.m. against visiting Aquinas College. Neither Emert nor Garrett will, due to their disqualifications.

Lady Crusaders rule own tourney

Consistency was the key,

After a discouraging five-set loss to visiting Tri-State University Thursday, Madonna University's volloyball team rebounded with the kind of performance that: coaches love, winning the eightteam Madonna University Collegiate Classic Saturday without losing a single game.

The Lady Crusaders played with a consistency that had been missing most of the season.

Madonna rolled past University of Michigan-Dearborn 15-4, 15-13, 15-3 in the best-of-five final. In the semifinals, Madonna bested Walsh University 15-4, 15-10, 15.8.

"After what I thought was a very uninspired performance Thursday night in a loss versus Tri-State, where nothing seemed to go right, the kids responded very favorably by playing some of their best volleyball of the season," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham,

The tournament title was the Crusadera' fourth of the season. Kelly McCausland (from Redford Union), Karin Sisung and Erin Comment were named to the alltournament team, with Comment chosen as the tournament's most valuable performer.

In best-of-three pool play, the Crusaders beat the University of Illinois-Springfield 15-2, 15-10; Olivet College 15-0, 15-4; and Ohio Dominican 15-12, 15-9.

McCausland paced Madonna's offense in the tournament with 37 kills and five service aces. Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) had 36 kills, eight aces and three blocks; Sisung added 28 kills; and Comment totaled 17 kills and two aces. Setter Meg Paris collected 131 assists-to-kills and 10 kills.

"We played with great balance the whole weekend, offensively and defensively," said Abraham. "It's always great winning tournaments, but especially at this part of the season where I feel our team is really peaking and getting ready for the post-season.'

On Tuesday, the Crusaders continued their roll by handling the University of Windsor easily, 15-8, 15-7, 15-10. The victory upped their record to 33-10 overall; they are ranked 19th in the NAIA.

McCausland again paced the offense with 11 kills; she also had 14 digs. Martin added 10 kills and seven digs, Heather Steinhelper had nine kills and 11 digs, and Sisung finished with five kills and nine digs. Paris totaled 33 assists to kills and 10 tlige, and Comment had 12 digs.

The Crusaders next travel to the Big Guns Classic, hosted by the College of St. Francis in Jollet, Ill., this weekend. The roundrobin tournament will feature fifth-ranked Montivello (Ala.); St. Xavier (Ill.); host St. Francis, ranked 14th; and Juniata (Pa.), ranked in the top three in the NCAA Division III.

CC captures league behind Leo's efforts

Redford Catholic Central captured its sixth Catholic League . boys cross country title in the last eight years by destroying its competition Saturday at Marshbank Park.

All seven of the CC runners finished in the top 13 as the Shamrocks won with 31 points - 38 ahead of runner-up Harper Woods Notre Dame.

Birmingham Brother Rice finished third with 93, followed by Dearborn Divine Child 126, Warren DeLaSalle 127, University of Detroit-Jesuit and Orchard Lake St. Mary's 128 and Riverview Gabriel Richard 200.

It was the Shamrocks' second consecutive league title and ninth since 1982.

Not surprisingly, the one-sided affair was led by senior Joe Leo. who crossed first in 16:05. Leo finished 23 seconds ahead of secondplace finisher Matt Hartung of Notre Dame.

CC's John Griffin finished fifth in 17:16, with Rick Stachura (17:30) and Joe Hubert taking seventh and eighth, respectively. Other Shamrocks making All-

Catholic League were Chris Laney (10th), Rick Kowal (12th) and Anthony Wolfe (13th). "We were hoping coming into the meet that our seven would finish ahead of the third runners of the other team, but as it turned out, they all finished before any other team's second runner," CC coach Tony Magni said.

The Shamrocks used Tuesday's Operation-Friendship meet at Marshbank, pitting the best of the Detroit Public School League and the Detroit Catholic League, as good warm-up for the regionals.

CC won its eighth consecutive Operation-Friendship, scoring 34 points - 86 ahead of secondplace Brother Rice. Detroit Denby was third with 144, followed by Notre Dame (145), Detroit Mumford (198) and Detroit Osborn (238).

"We told the team going into the meet not to get hurt and to get a good workout," Magni said. "It was a good way for us to prepare for the regionals."

Leo capped his career at Marshbank by winning in a time of 16:55. Mumford's Anthony Spiers took second (17:08) with St.

chura, seventh (17:46); and Kowal, ninth (17:50). The Shamrocks also captured 13th, 14th and 15th place behind Hubert (17:59), Wolfe (18:05) and Dan Danie (18:05).

Mercy places 1st

Farmington Hills Mercy's hold on the Catholic League girls cross-country title now spans half a decade.

The Marlins won their fifth consecutive championship Saturday and added as many Operation Friendship victories Tuesday.

All seven Mercy runners placed among the top 15 and earned All-Catholic honors at Marshbank Park in West Bloomfield.

The Marlins had 28 team points, Harper Woods Regina (79), Dearborn Divine Child (83) and Livonia Ladywood (86).

"Our kids have worked hard all year and kept the tradition going," Mercy coach Gary Servais said. "We have a good nucleus of young kids who are eager to improve, and that's what a coach wants.'

Junior Betsy Gignac was third (20:56) and sophomore Jackie Segue fourth (20:58) in the league meet to pace the Marlins. Servais was pleasantly freshmen Erin Thomas and Christina Andriola, who finished sixth (21:33) and seventh (21:34), respectively.

Senior Lisa Nobles was eighth (21:37), sophomore Mandy Phelps 10th (21:43) and senior Melissa Tluczek 15th (22:08) to complete Mercy's top seven.

The race winner was Regina's Natalie Celuch (20:31), and the runner-up was Liz Fernandez of Marian (20:48).

Leading Ladywood was Jackie Urbanczyk, who was 13th overall (22:04). Carrie Walsh was 16th (22:14), Jessica Hayden finished 17th (22:25) and Lindsay Soter placed 18th (22:26). Meagan Reardon took 22nd (22:58), Emma Deigel was 25th (23:01) and Jessica VanBuhler 26th (23:05).

On Tuesday, Mercy scored 45 points in the Friendship meet to easily outpace Regina (88).

Gignac was fourth (21:09). Segue fifth (21:14), Phelps 10th (21:59), Nobles 11th (22:10), Thomas 15th (22:22), Tluczek 16th (22:30) and Andriola 19th (22:39).

Mary's Kevin Rossitter in third (17:21).

Griffin's 17:30 was good for fourth place, followed by Sta- surprised by the performances of

The top 15 runners are considered All-City. Fernandez was first (20:21) followed by Celuch and a Detroit Cass Tech runner.

Lutheran Westland takes boys, girls titles

Lutheran Westland ran away with the boys and girls titles in the Metro Conference cross country championships held Monday at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook.

"This was our second year of winning the conference," boys coach John Gerlach said. "And one of our goals was to repeat. Now it's on to the regionals.

"One of our goals is at the regionals Saturday - trying to repeat."

Lutheran Westland's boys team scored 17 points to easily had 54. Bloomfield Hills Kingswood was third with 57.

The girls team of coach Dave Brown edged Lutheran North, 29-35, with Harper Woods and Lutheran East third and fourth.

The boy Warriors swept the top three places and five of the first six. Sam Patterson nipped teammate Brad Polkinghorne by two seconds, 16:58 to 17:00. Jason Collins was third, 30 seconds behind Polkinghorne while Andy Ebendick was fifth in 17:44, and Phil Kimmel sixth another four

"We had a very good squad." Gerlach said. "We had the leadership of four seniors (the top three finishers plus Kimmel) who have been really strong throughout their high school careers.'

Justin Koch finished 12th with a time of 18:37 while Greg Strang was 13th at 19:02.

"Our two keys," Brown said of his girls' winning effort, "was the fact of having the first- and second-place finishers."

Jodi Werman won the meet with a time of 20:48 with team-finished 11th with a clocking of 23:40. Sarah Voigt was 13th in 23:54, Deb Unger 14th at 24:08, Jill Gerlach 15th in 24:24 and Sarah Unger 18th with a 25:42 time.

"My third and fourth runners (Clark and Voigt) are new to the sport this year," Brown said. "Their improvement the last few weeks has really helped us.

"But that solid 1-2 punch meant a lot to us during the season.'

The Observer/THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1995

'Danny Boy' goes for broke

BY BRAD EMONS

STATE WRITER t's desperation time for the un-lucky (?) Irlshman, Five games still separate vours truly (97-19) and Mr. Dan O'Meara (92-24).

Both, however, had mediocre performances in Week No. 8 --each going 11 for 15.

But the Fat Lady isn't about to sing just yet because the final week could create some chaos.

As for the other playoff race, the post-season jamboree, Redford Catholic (8-0) has already clinched a berth in Class AA-Region III, even if it loses its rematch Saturday in the Catholic League championship to Birmingham Brother Rice.

Meanwhile, two other Observerland teams, Livonia Stevenson (6-2) and Westland John Glenn (6.2) are battling Dearborn Ford. son (6-2) for the fourth and final playoff spot in that same region.

Farmington Hills Harrison (7-1) appears to be a lock in Class A-Region III. The defending champlon Hawks appeared to be head. ed for the third seed behind South Lyon (7.0) and Dearborn (8.0), the latter team which has been unscored upon.

In Class D-Region IV, Redford St. Agatha (4-4) could clinch a berth with a victory over Marine City Cardinal Mooney (5-3).

Here is a look at Week No. 9:

THURSDAY'S GAME

Redford Thurston (1-7) vs. Redford Union (2-6), 5:30 p.m. at Pontlac Silverdome: Junior tight end Matt Kuksa has been an unheraided player for the Eagles, while RU counters with William Mustang, who gained over 100 yards in a 22-20 loss last week to Taylor Truman PICKS: Emons says RU looks like the LIons against Frisco, but O'Meara joins the Eagles' nest.

FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Bishop Borgess (3-5) at Ecorse (1-7), 3:30 p.m.: This is a rematch of the season opener, won by Borgess 28-0. The Spartans, however, have lost four in a row after being defeated by Allen Park. Cabrini, Ecorse, meanwhile, is coming off its first win of the year, a 32-6 victory against Taylor Light & Life PICKS: Bortess makes it two for two against the Red

GRID PICKS (0.8): A lot is at stake in this one. Stevenson, fighting Lakes Division rival

Westland Glenn and Dearborn Fordson in Class AA-Region III, can keep its state playoff hopes alive with a victory. Churchill, meanwhile, is trying to avoid its fifth winless season in the past six years. PICKS: Stevenson wins and sits by the phone Sunday night awaiting word from the MHSAA.

Liv, Franklin (2-6) at Trenton (4-4): Franklin, which has lost six games by a mere total of 32 points, has definitely played the tougher schedule this year. But Trenton, a runaway 53-6 winner last week over Redford Thurston, is a formidable team when running back Ryan Szokola is in the lineup. PICKS: Emons goes. with the home team, but O'Meara rides. with the Patriots.

Westland Glenn (8-2) at Wayne (2-6): Glenn can put itself in position to garner its eighth post-season playoff berth under Chuck Gordon since 1985. with a victory. The Rockets, who have the edge up front, have dominated the city series, 18-3. Wayne, perhaps better at the skill positions, last won in 1992. PICKS: it's lift-off toward the playoffs for the Rockets again.

Ply. Canton (5-3) vs. Ply. Salem (2-8) at CEP: What appeared to be a lopsided matchup only weeks ago now looks a lot closer. Canton took itself out of Class AA-Region II playoff contention by losing to Walled Lake Central In a rematch, 10-3. The Rocks lost last week to Walled Lake Western, 28-14, PICKS: Emons says the Chiefs repeat last year's victory, but O'Meara says the Salem is Rock-solid.

Farmington (3-5) at Milford Lakeland (1.7): The Falcons, despite a 17-12 win over Livonia Franklin last week, have not lived up to their preseason expectations. But perennial Kensington Valley doormat Lakeland rarely has high expectations. The Eagles, however, beat Imlay City, 24-21, to pick up their first win of the year. PICKS: Farmington's Jake Siskosky ends his stellar career on a high note.

Romulus (2-6) at Garden City (2-6): These are two Mega Conference teams that are meant for each other. Romulus is coming off a 34-22 win over Wayne Memodal; while the Cougars were pounded. by Dearborn Edsel Ford, 48-0. GC gave up 34 points in the first period alone. PICKS: The Mega-Red Division is supposed to be tougher than the Mega-White; so Romulus finds a way to win, Emons predicts: O'Meara, however, likes . GC's chances.

Clarenceville (3-5, 3-3) at H.W. Lu-by tailback Marlon Fair, is trying to main-tain its grip on first place in the Metro Conference. The Eagles can gain at least a title share along with Hamtramck and Harper Woods by winning. PICKS: East clinches a co-title.

St. Agatha (4-4) vs. M.C. Cardinal Mooney (5-3): Could this be a preview of a potential playoff matchup in Class D-Region IV, Mooney, a 35-13 loser last week to Detroit Holy Redeemer, is running second in the region, while the Aggies, who got back on the winning track by beating Hamtramck St. Florian, is running third. We could be doing it all over again next week. The two teams met earlier this year with Mooney prevailing 14-0. PICKS: Emons says Mooney beats Agatha a second time, but O'Meara takes the Aggies.

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all at 1 p.m. unless noted)

South Lyon (7-0) at N. Farmington (2-8): Holy Mackerall South Lyon is loaded again this year with the running duo of Mike Watson and Greg McGuire. The two combined for 460 yards rushing in a 47-6 blitzing of Hartland last week. North, coming off a 26-7 win over winless Livonia Churchill, is going to have its hands full. PICKS: It's a jungle out there, South Lyon roars.

Oxford (5-3) at F.H. Harrison (7-1): Oxford has put together some very competitive, playoff teams the past few years, but these Hawks are flying high after beating Livonia Stevenson for its 11th Western Lakes championship, 31-18. Oxford, a member of the Flint-Metro Conference, is coming off a 13-3 loss to Lapeer West. PICKS: Harrison wins its eighth straight.

Hamtramck (6-2, 5-1) at Lutheran Westland (3.5, 3.3): The Cosmos can claim a share of the Metro Conference title with a victory over the Warriors. But Harper Woods handed the Cosmos their first conference loss last week in the big way, 35-6, Lutheran Westland, a hard team to figure, stumbled last week against Class D-Region IV playoff leader Peck. PICKS: Where was Rudy Tomjanovich last week when Hamtramck needed him? Both stick with the Cosmos.

Redford CC (8-0) vs. Birm. Brother Rice (7-1), 7 p.m. at Pontlac Silverdome: Rice, a 26-23 Boys Bowl overtime. loser to CC earlier this year, needs a victory to stay alive in the Class A-Region IV playoff hunt. Backup quarterback Eric Marcy has filled admirably the past two games for injured starter Dave Sofran, who is out this week because of a shoulder Injury: Junior tallback Brian Marshall has rushed for nearly 1,500 yards. But CC, ranked No. 1 in the state, counters with a punishing offense; led by fullback theran East (7-1, 6-1): The Trojans put John Spoisky, PICKS: It should be anothup a good struggle last week in losing to good one. Emons says CC prevails, but

Catholic Central trips Divine Child

Must be a big game coming up somewhere on the schedule - Redford Catholic Central was airing it out against Dearborn Divine Child

OK, so six passes isn't airing it out for your high school. But for Redford Catholic Central, trust me, throwing six passes in a game definitely qualifies as a razzle dazzle offense.

Especially in a game CC won by a score of 23-8 in the cold and rain, as the Shamrocks did Saturday night when they shot down the Falcons of Dearborn Divine Child.

The weather may have had. something to do with the fact the game was scoreless after a quarter. Maybe Divine Child had a bit to do with it, too.

But Eron Kosmowski kicked a 38-yard field goal with 11:01 showing on the clock in the second quarter and Catholic Central was off and running to its eighth win in as many tries. (Divine Child drops to 3-5.)

FOOTBALL

Quay ripped off a 63-yard run to give the Shamrocks a 10-0 halftime lead. Quay averaged 15 yards a carry for 10 rushes.

John Spolsky scored on a 12yard run with 8:59 left in the third quarter and tallied again on a 9-yard run with 4:19 to play to cement the outcome. In between, the Falcons' Shaun Harvey scored on a 1-yard run with 14 seconds left in the third quarter.

Quarterback Greg Call threw six times in the game, completing two passes for 27 yards. Laugh if you will, but Coach Tom Mach's team sometimes won't even register six passes in defeat. Both of Call's passes. were hauled in by senior tight. end Eric Gilbo.

But an upper echelon football team must be able to run when it wants to in order to win. And Catholic Central does just that Two minutes later, Kevin - to the tune of 347 yards and

Builders showcase their 'distinctive' homes

Builders have their thoughts. They aubmitted nearly 40 floor plans and photographs of their best work for evaluation by a panel of architects during a recent Showcase of Distinctive Homes competition.

"What we looked for was creative and effective use of space, what we felt was the best value for the dollar," said Robert R. Bryce, a West Bloomfield architect and judge. "The other factor was attractive elevation (exterior)."

The houses are actually built and used as models throughout the metro area.

This scattered size showcase of new homes gives buyers the opportunity to see a wide selection of outstanding homes," said Janet L. Compo, president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan.

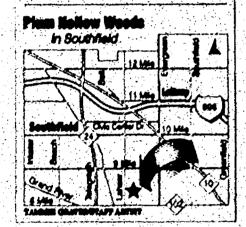

Builders competed according to price categories. Following is a brief description of the winners. and where they can be found.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Housing starts slipped 0.1 percent in September, the second straight drop after bouncing back from a winter slump. All regions shared In the decline except for the West.

Many analysts expected the housing industry to plateau during the second half of 1995. They say the current level is relatively healthy and consistent with the moderate growth elsewhere in the economy.

The Commerce Department said today that overall starts totaled 1.390 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate in September, down from a revised 1.392 million the previous month, when they fell 2.8 percent.

The government initially had estimated that starts rose 0.6 percent in August, to 1.398 million.

In another report, the Labor Department said today that new by 5,000 last week, to a seasonally adjusted 381,000. It was the third advance in a row and boosted applications to the highest level since 366,000 during the week ended Sept. 16.

Analysts had expected claims fast week to fall slightly to: 345,000.

Many analysts have predicted that housing starts would level off at about the 1.40 million rate after rebounding from the year's low of 1.24 million rate in March, when high mortgage rates curbed sales and construction.

But rates have fallen through much of the year and averaged 7.61 percent in September, down from 9.15 percent last January. That made housing costs more affordable and sparked the spring and summer housing rebound.

The monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7.5 percent interest rate is $599, while the payment on the same loan with a 9 percent rate is $805 - a 611,000.

That would be down from the 1.46 million foundations laid in 1994, but well above the 1.29 mili llon new homes started in 1993.

Applications for building permits --- often a gauge of future activity --- rose 1.5 percent in September, to a 1.39 million annual rate, the fourth straight increase.

The latest monthly membership survey by the National Assoclation of Home Builders also suggested continued housing activity.

After remaining unchanged in September, its Housing Market Index rose in October, the fifth advance in six months. Two of the index categories - present home sales and expected sales for the claims for jobless benefits jumped next six months -- were up. A third --- builders' ratings of traffic of prospective buyers - was unchanged.

> Single family starts, about 80 percent of new residential construction, fell 0.8 percent, to a 1.12 million rate, the first drop since last May.

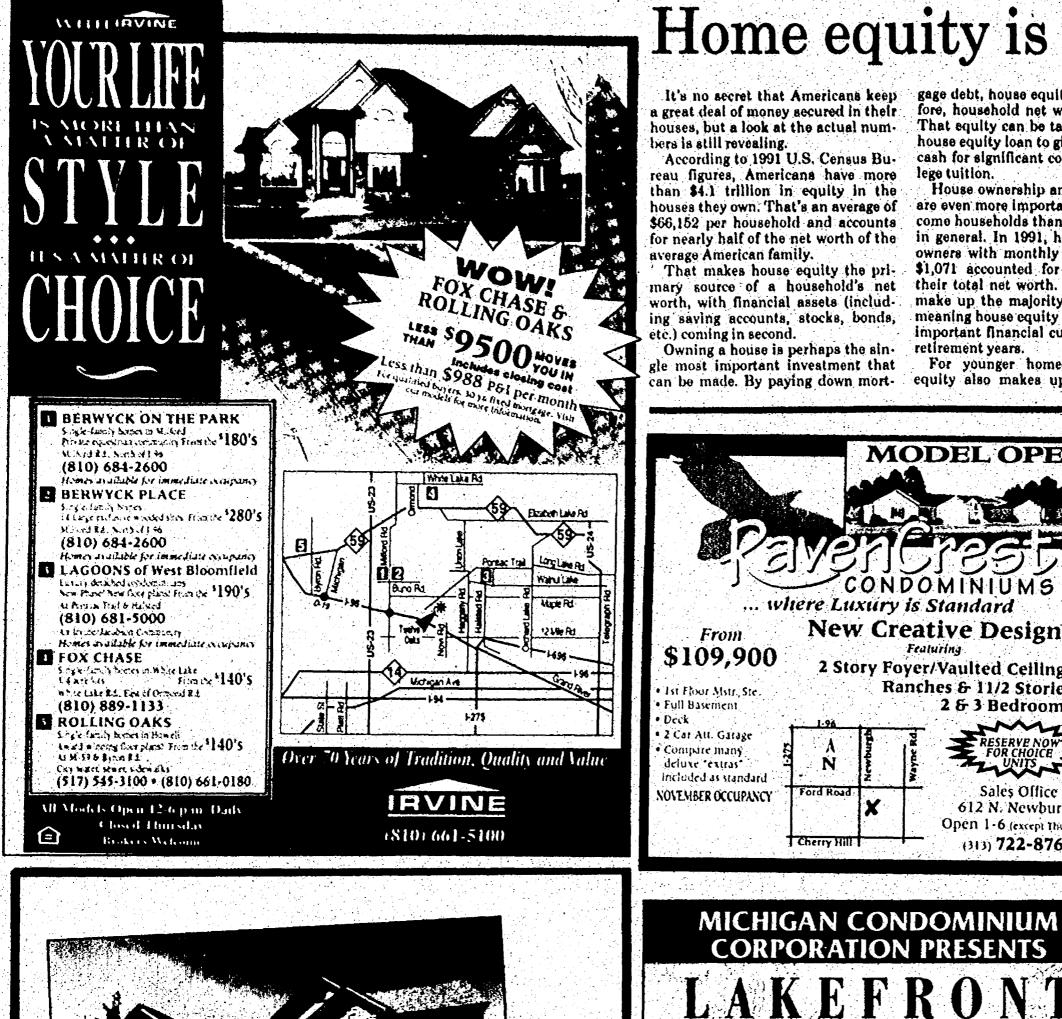

But construction of new apartments and condominiums, which often is volatile, increased 1.9 percent, to a 272,000 rate, after plunging 18.5 percent in August.

Home equity is major wealth

It's no secret that Americans keep a great deal of money secured in their houses, but a look at the actual num-

According to 1991 U.S. Census Bureau figures, Americans have more than $4.1 trillion in equity in the houses they own. That's an average of $66,152 per household and accounts for nearly half of the net worth of the average American family.

That makes house equity the primary source of a household's net worth, with financial assets (including saving accounts, stocks, bonds, gage debt, house equity - and therefore, household net wealth --- grows. That equity can be tapped through a house equity loan to give homeowners cash for significant costs such as college tuition.

House ownership and house equity are even more important for lower-income households than for households in general. In 1991, house equity for owners with monthly incomes below $1,071 accounted for 75 percent of their total net worth. People over 65 make up the majority of this group, meaning house equity is an extremely important financial cushion for postretirement years.

For younger homeowners, house equity also makes up a significant portion of their wealth. For example, for households headed by a person age 35 or under, house equity accounted for 54 percent of total net worth in 1991.

For households with limited net worth, house equity takes on great significance as well. For homeowners with net worth from $5,000 to $10,000. 71 percent of that net worth is house equity. As net worth rises, house equity as a percentage declines since those households typically have greater financial assets of other types.

For homeowners of all ages and income levels, it's clear that buying a house and building equity in the house offers a stepping stone to a secure finance future.

Mortgage rates still affordable

Don't let rising mortgage interest rates keep you out of the market if you're thinking of buying a new house.

Even though rates have increased steadily. since early 1994 in response to the Federal Reserve Board's efforts to curb inflation, they are still in the single digits and are expected by economists at the National Association of Home Builders to remain below 10 percent throughout this year.

To most consumers, rates in the 9 to 10 percent range may seem high compared to 1993 when the average rate for 30-year fixed-rate loans was 7.3 percent. Nevertheless, today's rates are still low by historic standards, From 1979 through 1990, average annual rates never dropped below 10 percent. And in 1981 and 1982 the average annual rate topped 16 percent.

Furthermore, adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs) are available with first-year rates that are about 2 percent lower than fixed-rate mortgages, and a growing number of buyers are choosing this option. At the beginning of 1994, about 25 percent of all new mortgages had adjustable rates. By the end of the year, about 60 percent of new loans had adjustable rates.

You may also find that builders in your area. have arranged special below-market-rate financing through a specific lender. Sometimes builders "buy down" interest rates for two or three years or for the term of the mortgage to help their buyers qualify for mortgages. If your heart is set on a new house, but you still think you just can't afford the house of your dreams, you might also want to consider. cutting back on the upgrades and luxury options in you new house. Scaling back slightly to standard appliances, carpeting and fixtures can trim thousands of dollars off the cost of the house and lower your mortgage payments in the bargain. Later, when you are comfort. able in you house — and your household in-come has increased — you might want to upgrade or add certain items. Or, if interest rates drop, you can refinance and use the money that you save each month to add or upgrade appliances, carpeting and other features. In short, it's a great time to buy a new house. Mortgage rates are still reasonable -and affordable - for most prospective buyers. Builders have enough inventory to ensure that buyers have a wide range of choices. And there are a number of things that you can do, such as using an adjustable rate mortgage, to keep costs in check.

Software aids mortgage seekers

BY JAMES H. RUBIN AP NEWSPEATURES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Homehuyers who have trouble getting mortgages are receiving help from the Federal Reserve in the form of a computer diskette designed to be a road map for loan applicants:

The Fed unveiled its new "Partners" software program Thursday and will distribute it free of charge to lenders, community groups, government agencies and consumers.

The purpose is to provide low- and moderate-income families a quick, comprehensive understanding of what they can do to qualify for a mortgage.

"The program attempts to break down the barriers between the loan officer and the potential applicant by offering new and innovative ways to look at home purchase financing," said Federal Reserve board member Lawrence Lindsey.

Officials demonstrated the software for reporters on a large movie screen in the ornate board room where Fed policy-makers meet to discuss the nation's economy and decide the course of interest rates. The diskette offers 10 options for anyone denied a loan. A lender can quickly rejigger various numbers to tell applicants what they can do to qualify.

Lindsey said the software will be a big help to harried lenders who have little time to explore such options with marginal home-buyers. Some of the steps are simple and obvious, he said, such as buying a slightly cheaper home.

But many loan applicants now are dismissed without being told such precise numbers.

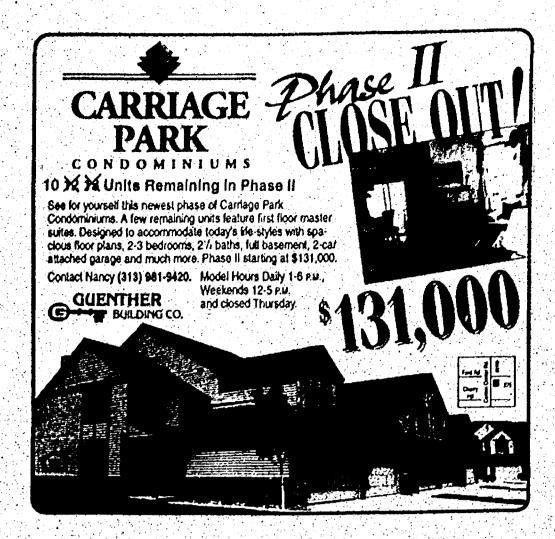

For example, Lindsey said, some applicants might be able to qualify for a mortgage by using some of their savings to pay off credit card debt. Surprisingly, he said, home-buyers are not told that option because it involves doing the math and lenders are too pressed for time.

The software also could prove a bonus for local government officials planning to rehabilitate dilapidated housing, Lindsey said. They can quickly determine how big a property tax abatement to offer a prospective buyer who might need just that help to qualify for a mortgage. The purpose is to provide low- and moderate-income families a quick, comprehensive understanding of what they can do to qualify for a mortgage.

Nothing as comprehensive as Partners is available commercially, the Fed said. The diskette can be installed in an IBM-compatible computer and operates in a Microsoft Windows environment.

Consumers who want a diskette can call the community affairs office at one of the Federal Reserve's 12 regional banks.

New community in Waterford offers affordable homes in picturesque wooded, lakefront setting

Adler Building & Development, Co. may be best known for its affordable single-family home communities in the South Lyon/ Brighton/Hartland/Whitmore Lake areas. Many such homes have indeed been built by Adler over the past 25 years, including Eagle Heights in South Lyon and Eagle Run in Hamburg and more.

The newest community by Adler, however, is in a new area for this Brighton-based builder. Eagle Landings on the Lake is a subdivision of 170 single-family homes in Waterford. "This community is unique because of its proximity to Pleasant Lake, an all-sports lake to which homeowners will have access via a private park," says Tom Adler, president of Adler Building & Development Co.

Homes begin at $129,900 with the Lakeview model which includes 1410 square feet in a three bedroom two-story plan. A full basement and two-car garage are included. A three-car garage is available as an option as well.

Three models will be started soon. In addition to the Lakeview, the Harbour, another two-story plan will be on display which includes 1825 square in a three bedroom two-story plan with a fourth bedroom as an option. This home includes a main floor laundry room, an island kitchen, twostory foyer, great room with a cathedral ceiling and large breakfast nook/sitting room near the kitchen.

There will also be a model of the Seabreeze, which is a 1 1/2 story plan with almost 2000 square feet. It features a main floor master suite with walk-in closet and private bath, a main floor laundry room, great room with cathedral ceiling and an island kitchen which includes a bay window in the nook area. Two additional bedrooms are upstairs, along with a loft area which could be an additional bedroom, or could be used as a play area, home office, exercise room or den.

"Every home we build must address the homeowner's needs—at Eagle Landings on the Lake we are able to offer this in an exciting wooded, lakefront setting at an affordable price." Lakeview Model: This two-story home, the Lakeview, features a traditional plan with a large country kitchen, three bedrooms and one-and-a-half baths and is priced from $129,900. (above)

Many kitchens offered at Eagle Landings on the Lake include Islands, built-in pantries, and breakfast nooks. (right)

With These Great Locations, The Time To Purchase An Adler Home Is Right Now!

Program!

Says Mark Adler, vice president, "every home we build must address the homeowner's needs--for value, livability, easy maintenance. At Eagle Landings on the Lake we are able to offer this in an exciting wooded, lakefront setting at an affordable price."

Two-by-six construction will be used in each home, allowing for additional insulation in walls and ceilings and providing for enhanced energy savings. "The best advertising we have are the homes we built over the years. You can still see and experience the quality and workmanship in these homes."

When roads are completed in the next few weeks, a private entrance will enhance the feeling of community. Mature woodlands will be preserved in several private recreational park areas. Sidewalks will also contribute to the neighborhood. At Lake Park, residents will enjoy a picnic area with a gazebo and a large dock on the lake.

Located on Hospital Road, just south of Elizabeth Lake Road in Waterford, Fagle Landings on the Lake is well-located for those who commute to either the Southfield/Detroit area or to the Auburn Hills area.

As today's home buyers become more and more sophisticated about the range of features and options that are available to customize their new home, Adler is adapting to meet their changing needs. As one step in this process, innovative concept allows homebuyers to choose the materials and colors to be featured in their home in a relaxed environment assisted by a design professional. An array of features and options are displayed to allow the homebuyer to customize their home to meet their exact needs.

The Adler New Home Design Studio combines with the company's computer-assisted design capabilities to allow for flexibility in both the home's floorplan and exterior design. While Adler has long been known for its willingness to customize its homes, the new studio offers an even greater range of options while also making the planning and designing of a home a more enjoyable event for the future homeowner.

It is such dedication to fulfilling customer's needs and providing quality and honesty that has sustained Adler Building & Development Co. over the past 25 years. Adler is now the largest Livingston county-based builder, and one of the top ten in the state of Michigan.

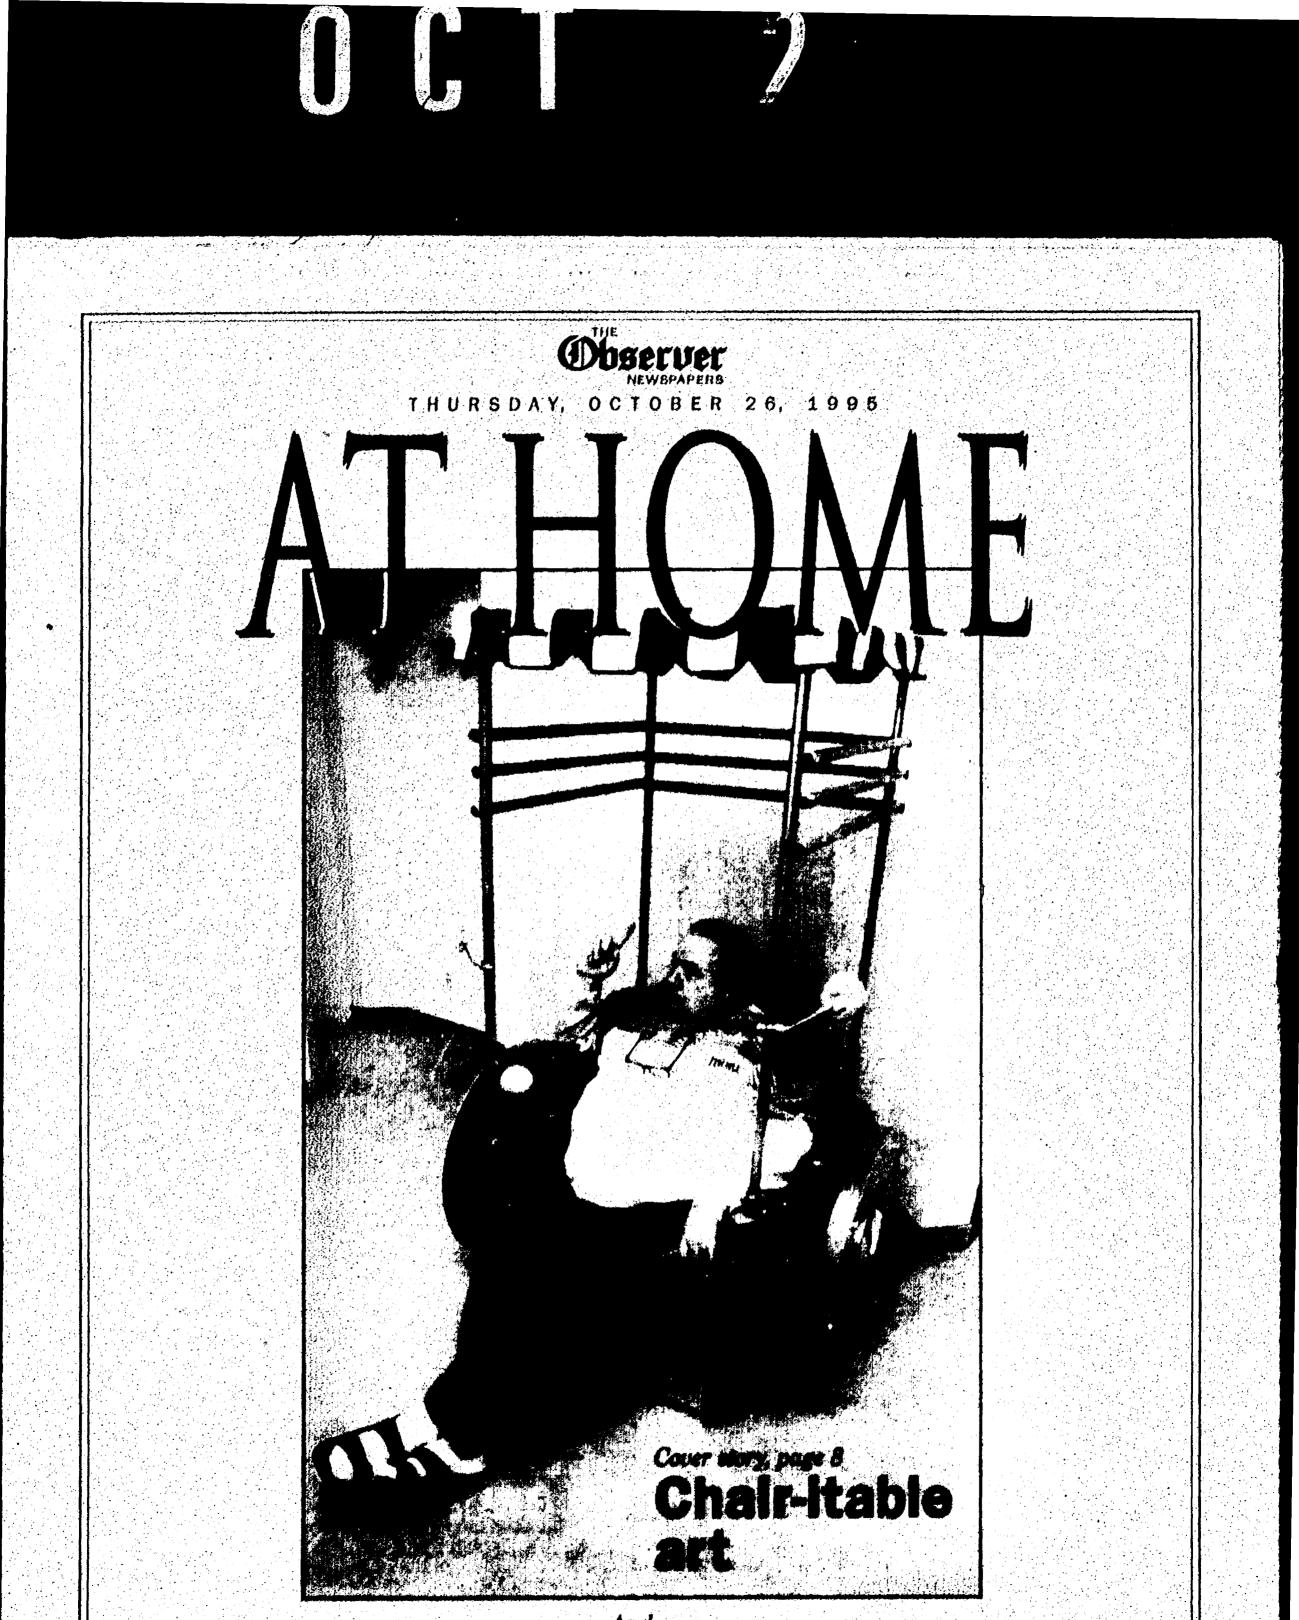

The sales office at Eagle Landings on the Lake, (810) 681– 0096, is open daily 12 noon to 6 p.m., closed Thursdays. (Except during December and January when it is open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.)

INVITING IDEAS Surprise your host with some nutty gifts

It's time to start thinking about the holidays! Fancy nuts, sweet nuts, savory nuts, and nut butters are a perfect Thanksgiving gift to take to your hosts, or an added treat for your own guests.

Chestnuts have great versatility --- working well in "sweets" as well as "savories" - soups, purees and butters.

Pecans are the all American nut that everyone associates with the South. Pecans have the versatility of the walnut with the mildness that most palates delight in.

Almonds are a favorite eaten as a snack, as coating on fish entrees, as a crunchy addition to salads, or in many desserts.

Do make sure whenever serving or giving nuts, that the recipient is not allergic to these delicious morsels - nut allergies can be deadly! Never hide nuts in a dessert or bread - always let your guests know if nuts are one of the ingredients included in your recipe, especially if they are not obvious! Try some of these sumptuous nutty.

- 1 pound fresh sweet chestnuts,
- peeled and boiled (or 11/2 pounds canned chestnuts)."
- 2 cups sugar

treats:

Milk

- 1 (16 ounce) jar liquid glucose 8 drops pure vanilla extract 2 cups sugar
- 2/3 cup cold water

If using fresh sweet chestnuts -- make a slit in the deep brown chestnut skin near the pointed end. Place in a saucenan and cover with boiling water. After 2-3 minutes, remove the chestnuts one at a time and peel off the outer skin, then the inner skin - make sure this is done while they are warm.

Place all of the peeled chestnuts in the saucepan covering with a combination of 1/4 milk and 1/4 water (to cover). Cover the saucepan with a lid and simmer for 20-30

If using canned chestnuts skip the first steps --- drain the canned chestnuts and pat dry carefully, so they will not break apart.

Place the sugar and glucose in a large saucepan - heat gently until the sugar has dissolved. Add the peeled, tender chestnuts to the sugar/glucose mixture and bring to a boil. Remove the saucepan from the heat source - carefully transfer the chestnuts to a low dish - place a plate on top to keep them submerged in the liquid. Put the dish in a warm spot (a place where you might let bread rise) for 24 hours.

Remove the chestnuts from the dish and place back in the saucepan - bring the mixture back to a boil --- again remove the saucepan and place back in the dish - let sit again for 24 hours.

On day 3 --- place the chestnuts and dissolved sugar mixture back into the saucepan with 8 drops of pure vanilla extract - bring back to a boil. Let the chestnuts cool slightly and then remove them from the saucepan with a slotted spoon to a wire rack (place something below it to catch the drips). Let them air dry for several days.

Prepare the glace. Place the 2 cups of sugar and ½ cup water in a saucepan and heat gently and mix until the sugar is dissolved. Bring the sugar mixture to a boil - let the mixture rapid boll for 2 minutes. Turn off heat, but keep warm by covering with a lid.

In another saucepan, bring 2 cups of water to a boil. Place some of the syrup in a small glass bowl keeping the remainder covered. After the plain water has boiled, take each chestnut, one at a time - dip in the boiling water, remove, shake off excess. water and dip in the small glass bowl of glace syrup. If the glace syrup becomes cloudy - replace it with the fresh syrup (only a small amount at a time). After dipping each chestnut into the glace place it on a clean wire rack. When all the chestnuts have been dipped, place them in a slow - low oven (120 degrees F.) for several hours.

Note: Liquid glucose can be purchased at the Kitchen Glamor Stores in Redford, West Bloomfield, Novi and Rochester.

CHOCOLATE PECAN-FRUIT CLUSTERS

- 12 ounces of your favorite solid chocolate, broken into pieces (you can use milk or semi-sweet chocolate)
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 11/2 cups pecans, shelled and roasted or toasted
- 11/2 cups dried chemies (you can use dried blueberries or dried cranberries)

Place the chocolate and butter in an oven-proof bowl over a saucepan of hot water - heat slowly and gently until completely melted. Be careful to keep the water in the saucepan and not in the bowl.

Stir in the pecans and dried cherries mix gently until the fruit and nuts are covered. Place teaspoonfuls of the chocolate covered nuts and fruit into lightly sprayed (no stick cooking spray) foil cups, or on waxed paper. Let clusters completely cool.

BOOK BREAK This holiday book is politically correct

At Home

Ah, the ignorance of childhood and the perfidy of man! Little did we know as children. that the December holidays we cherish are really a time of "callousness and insensitivity." That's when the "Genital Power ESTHER Elite" like Santa LITTMANN Claus and Kris Kringle grab center stage.

animals with antlers are abused, and shameless consumption and commercialism prevail.

Whether it's Christmas, Hanukkah or Kwanza, the exclusivity of our celebration rests on the self-centered assumption that our "heritage-himitage" is superior to other cultural identities.

At last comes an author who sets the record straight (I mean, unidirectionally)! Determined to raise our PC consciousness, he teaches "family, alternative household, or other social or nonsocial groups" the true meaning of the holidays.

The name of this master of cultural sensitivity is James Finn Garner, author of the best-selling "Politically Correct Bedtime Stories" and "Once Upon a More Enlightened Time."

The Observer/OCTOBER 26, 1995

His newest educational tool is the recently published "Politically Correct Holiday Stories" (Macmillan, 1995). The book is the size of a five-by-seven index card and contains just 99 pages, a clear indication of Garner's commitment to the conservation of our natural resources. (There's no mention of recvcled paper. though.)

"Politically Correct Holiday Stories" begins with the inspirational "Twas the Night Before Solstice." Transforming decadent indulgence into wholesomeness and virture, Garner writes: "The children are nestled all snug in their bed, Dreaming of lentils and warm whole-grained breads." Not for them the Barbie doll, that "icon of sexist, consumerist kitsch" or games that teach violence and rapaciousness. Responsible "pre-adults," writes Garner,

Herb society set to spice up show

BY MARTY FIGLEY SPECIAL WRITER

Dorothy Brown of Livonia has been gardening in that city for 15 years and has been an active member of The Southern Michigan Unit, The Herb Society of America, since 1986.

She began growing herbs 12 years ago when she attended an adult education class in Livonia and the speaker gave samples of mint, parsley and chives.

The herbs were carefully planted in the center of rubber tires. This lady soon needed more space for the herbs and for all the other plants in the growing garden.

"I got hooked on square foot gardening, bought a book about it and built nine four-by-four-foot squares of twoby-fours. Then I tried Jeff Ball's ideas (he is the garden expert on the Today TV show) and a friend made a four-byeight-foot bed with plastic hooped over the top. Soon the plastic didn't hold up and I gave that up."

She liked the idea of raised beds, though, and wanted a special place for the herbs. Now there are four big frames, each four by eight feet filled with all kinds of herb plants, from culinary to decorative. The frames are intersected with chip paths, which were spread over old carpeting to deter the weeds.

This year she has made 36 jars of peach chutney, spicy peach jam and grape basil jelly for her unit's participation in the Franklin Antiques Show, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Uct. 27, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 28. The show will be at the Franklin Community Church, 32473 Normandy, near the gazebo. Admission is $4. More than 30 select dealers will be offering choice pieces, and the church women will provide a country kitchen luncheon and bake sale.

Other members of The Southern Michigan Unit, HSA, have been fashioning wreaths and grapevine trees, packaging herby tidbits and making mustards, jellies, jams, vinegars, special spiced nuts, pomander ball kits and more. Wonderful gift items such as sundials, century potpourri and dried bundles of exclusive handpainted herb labels and pins will be for sale.

Brown has used her culinary herbs for pesto (which she freezes), vinegars and oils. She also makes a green tomato, zucchini, green bean and carrot pickle flavored with dill, which she cans, and makes several other kinds of relish. She dries the flowers such as feverfew and yarrow. Her favorite herbs are chives, parsley and sage. Members of the SMU choose a signature herb as identification, and study and report about their own; Brown's is borage, Borago officianalis, which blooms with star-like blue blossoms.

She is a true gardener. As winter approaches she will take borage, chives and parsley inside, and this year she is trying pineapple sage that will set on a shelf in a window, under regular fluorescent lights in the kitchen. In another room of her home African violets will be grown in the same manner along with geraniums. These she cuts back before setting them under the lights; sometimes she takes cuttings if the plants grown outdoors are too large.

This year she plans to try something new.

"Since the garage is heated, I can make a place so I can start plants earlier next year to get a jump on the season," she said.

Antiques sale set

The Franklin Community Church Antiques Show will take place 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 27, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Satúrday, Oct. 28, at the church, 32473 Normandy.

Admission is $4. More than 30 quality dealers and the Herb Society of America will be featured. The church is at the corner of Wellington in Franklin. Call (810) 626-6606 for information.

A preview reception will take place 6-9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26. Admission is $30 per person. Advance reservations are required.

Artist to visit

Tomie dePaola has illustrated nearly 200 children's books and has written the stories for many of them as well. His newest creation is "Country Angel Christmas," a story about St. Nicholas and the Country Angels painting a Christmas celebration for all of heaven.

Tomie dePaola will kick off his fall book tour by making two special appearances at Hudson's Sunday, Oct. 29. He will be signing purchased copies of "Country Angel Christmas" and his exclusive ornaments and items 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Twelve Oaks and 4-6 p.m. at Summit Place. Due to time limitations, he will be able to sign a total of three items per customer.

Midwest of Cannon Falls has partnered with dePaola to produce a classical line of holiday ornaments and gift items all based on "Country Angel Christmas."

"take CPR so that they can save lives, And go door to door for the used clothing drives."

Social activiam is also the theme of two other childhood classics, "Frosty, the Persun of Snow" and "Rudolph, the Nasally Empowered Reindeer." Thrill to the youngsters' commitment as they march on Washington to protest the ozone layer that threatens their frosty friend. Discover that Rudolph's greatest contribution lay not in serving as Santa's glorified headlight but as labor leader of the exploited reindeer masses.

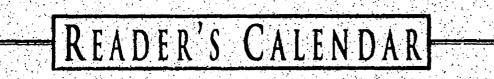

There's more, of course! Multiculturism makes an appearance in "The Nutcracker" when little Clara receives a dreidel for Christmas. And Dickens' Scrooge is purged of materialism once and for all by the "Supervising Spirit of Intercessory Therapeutics."

Is the author just tweaking our nose? Has his tongue become permanently lodged in his cheek? That would be quite politically incorrect. Surely a native son of Michigan, who attended Sacred Heart Elementary School In Dearborn, Detroit Catholic Central in Redford, and the University of Michigan, could never be guilty of discriminating against the humorless and satirically challenge among us. No, Mr. Garner's yuletide offering shows nothing but good will — to men, womyn, pre-adults and "companion animals" alike.

P.S. The book is hilarious! I can't wait to meet James Finn Garner at Border's Books and Music in Farmington Hills 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 27. He'll be reading and signing copies of his book.

Artist Harold Linton scaled down a chair into a butterfly shape, made of simple, brightly colored curves. The chair is for use by children to celebrate special times, he said. Black and white decorated the low chair by artist Greg Petty, who calls it "Guilty."

Interior designer Sara Scott Cullen calls her swivel chair "What I Did This Summer." Denim, ribbons, antique buttons, tassels, favorite fabrics and her children's Christmas trousers are among the materials she used to turn a somber seat into a lively work. Cullen was inspired by a Dolly Parton song, "The Coat of Many Colors" and said the piece is a "memory" chair

Other participants are designers Rick Carmody, Marilyn Gardner, Aleksis Lahti, Glenda Meads and Michael Willoughby: Gary Griffin, artist in residence and head of the metalsmithing department at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills; and Gerhardt Knodel, head of the fiber department at Cranbrook and Detroit Institute of Arts advisory board member.

The Furniture Resource Center was established in 1968 as a charitable, non-profit organization. It distributed more than 4,800 items last year. More than 700 families and individuals are on the waiting list. To donate furniture, appliances and household items in good condition, call (810) 373-7600. Donations are tax-deductible. All FRC clients are referred by recognized social service agencies.

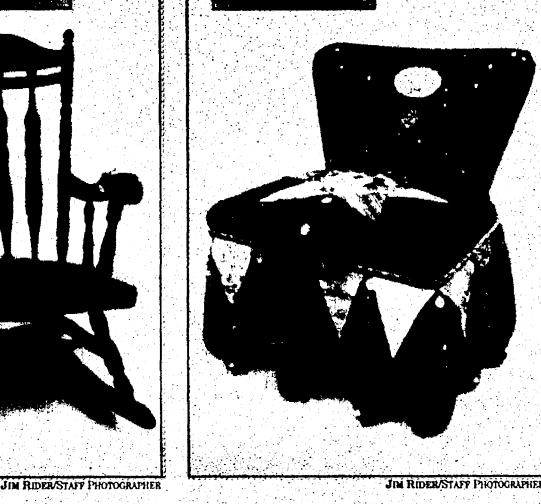

MDC is the resource marketplace for the interior design profession.

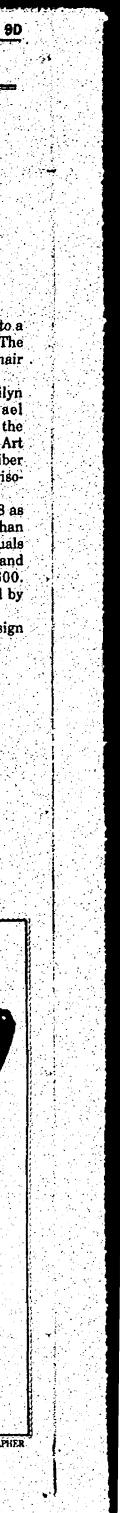

A new leaf: John Glick added ceramic leaves to a wooden rocker.

Memorable: Sara Scott Cullen turned a somber piece into a lively "memory" chair, using meaningful materials.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR The doctor is in emergency — and he needs help

GAGNON

I Home

In my column dated Sept. 7, I wrote about the service industry and how better laws are needed to protect the consumer from the few unethical appliance repair centers in business today. I mentioned that I would be meeting with state Rep. Lyn Bankes and that meeting was completed just a couple of weeks ago.

The meeting went very well and I can assure you that Ms. Bankes has a thorough understanding of why better protection is needed for you and that she knows how to accomplish this in Lansing. Even though the mood of the public wants less government involvement in our lives, let me say that in this case there is no other way.

I'm going to get very personal with each one of you who reads this article today. You may have read stories in the past or even recently about my involvement in consumerism and the appliance industry. The many television and radio interviews across the country have put me into a spotlight that I sometimes wish didn't exist. The creative process of this consumer gladiator (that's a quote from a newspaper) began in 1985 when I attacked my own industry. The result of my criticism was read about by thousands on the front page of a major newspaper and then things began to happen.

Many long hours and meetings with government people and the assurance that steps would be taken to help the consumer and get rid of the rip-offs. In the end, nothing did happen. The many good guys in the service industry were afraid to stand beside me and the bad guys were calling whoever they could to complain about me. Do you think that this time around some of the good guys will join me in this endeavor to clean up this appliance repair business? I sure hope so, because I'm getting awful tired of being the lone ranger.

I'm just a guy who can't stand to see any consumer receive the shaft treatment from anyone in business. There is nothing special about me, maybe I care a little too much for others, but I sure feel good inside. I don't care about money and will probably never have any, but that's OK, there are others much worse off than I am. Fame, well I'm as famous as I ever want to be and sometimes I get tired of it and embarrassed by it. I am just a normal hardworking guy with a degree in common sense who wants to do something for somebody else.

When I was trying to create new laws 10 years ago some very scary things happened to me. To be honest with you I am afraid to do this again fearing that some of the same my occur this time. Pictures were taken of my 6-year-old daughter on her way home from school by two guys in a car without a license plate. Phone calls were made to me that asked me to stop this consumer stuff or my daughter would be dead. Threats were made to my life several times by phone and much more. It was very frightening and yet the idiot that I am, I wouldn't stop. Even now, as I write this column, I'm thinking about the extra precautions I will be taking in my everyday life. I've said it before in an article, not everybody likes me. But wait a minute, I've had a terrific life and it's. going to be even better once we have better consumer protection in the State of Michigan.

I would like to say just a few words about this newspaper you're reading today. To my knowledge there is not another appliance doctor in the country who is writing a column for a newspaper. This paper asked me to this column knowing that it would be of interest to its readers.

The power of the press, I never knew what it meant until these last few months. I promise to never abuse that power and to use it to help to inform others. I need you, the readers of this column, to do something for me. As the bad guys come together and try to stop my efforts in Lansing, I need the good people to get behind me. Talk with your friends and family and tell them what Rep. Lyn Bankes and I are doing in our efforts toward consumer laws. If anyone has had an appliance service experience that was distasteful, put it in writing and send it to me. We will need all of the ammunition we can get if we are to make things happen in Lansing. This is emergency surgery and the doctor needs YOU.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

TREASURE SEARCH

Baby, baby grand piano can give you butterflies

Frank: Please estimate the value of this Wurlitzer Student Butterfly baby grand plano which is SO<sup>1</sup>/2 inches high by 31

M. Cooney,

Livonia

inches wide.

Dear Nancy and

NANCY AND FRANK BOOS

Dear M:

A baby grand piano is 5 feet 6 inches and under, so yours is really a baby, baby grand.

Most grand planos have one lid that lifts from the right side, while the piano photographed has two lids that lift from the center like butterfly wings, hence the whimsical name "butterfly" piano. A butterfly piano was displayed in the movie "Housesitter" starring Steve Martin and Goldie Hawn. The plano has only 77 keys as compared to the regular 88 found on a traditional grand piano.

You know, of course, there are two sides to every story, and we got both on the "butterfly."

The "butterfly" was made by Wurlitzer, which was sold to Baldwin. Someone at Baldwin Piano told us that he had heard only 50 "butterflies" were made and given to Wurlitzer's best dealers to be used for promotion. However, in finally tracking down the Wurlitzer archival material at the National Museum of American History, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., manuscripts archivist Craig Orr was able to help us with some detective work. Here's what we uncovered.

There were four different models, from a simple child's version to an elaborate Louis XIV model. These smaller pianos were intended for use by both children and adults who didn't have space for a regular size grand plano. The style photographed here is a 235, intended for quality introduction of children to the plano.

Every piano should have a serial number that tells you when the piano was made. We found out the serial number on this butterfly is 221,183. The last serial number on record in the Wurlitzer catalogues (some of which are missing) at the Smithsonian ends in 1938 with piano number 151,161. Shortly thereafter, Wurlitzer suspended piano production and converted its production capabilities 100 percent to the war effort. When they resumed postwar production, one would assume that it took a few years to reach serial number 221,183 and therefore also assume that this piano was made in the late 1940s or early to mid 1950s.

Baldwin is now reintroducing the "butterfly" in the form of a digital or electric plano, reducing interest in these older versions as most people will want the "high tech" model. Every president of the United States has had his own plano made especially for his tenure in the White House. We believe most of such planos are in museums, presidential libraries, etc. For some reason, Wurlitzer has never had the distinction of making a presidential plano.

The "butterfly" planos can be bought at retail anywhere from about $800 to $3,000, depending on their internal and external condition. However, in our sleuthing we found a dealer who sold a restored Louis XIV version for $9,000. Sherlock Holmes, Columbo and Monsieur Poirot have nothing on us!

Nancy and Frank Boos are with the Frank H. Boos Gallery, an appraisal firm and auction house at 420 Enterprise Court in Bloomfield Hills that has been in the auction business for more than 30 years. Do you have an item you would like to know about? Send in a good photo of it, along with its description (including size, working parts, etc.) and any known provenance (history) to Treasure Search, The Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009. Include your name, community and phone number.

Oh, baby: This baby grand is called a "butterfly" piano because it has two lids that lift from the center like butterfly wings.

been preparing for the sale. They are Ann Besner, Diane Burton, Stanley Gawel, Cecile Kaelin, Sue Lombardi, Laurie Murray, Margaret Nadrgiang, Frances Sturley, Julie Warshaw and Jane Zink. Paddy has been greenhouse chairman for four years.

Paddy and Nadrgiang were busy potting fems such as Boston, Whitman Lace, Petticoat and Fluffy Ruffle. These are just some of the varieties of ferns that are being offered.

Cranbrook uses a special potting mix that contains eight ingredients for all their house plants, with the exception of the one used for cacti and succulents because it needs to have a better drainage capacity.

Quimper president set to sign pottery purchases

Meet Quimper president Paul Janssens at La Belle Provence, 185 W. Maple, Birmingham, where he will sign your Quimper purchases.

Janssens has taken three years to perfect the process that preserves the brilliant colors of Quimper pottery, marrying it to the bakeware needs of today. The bakeware was introduced at the New York tabletop show in July and will make its debut in metropolitan Detroit at La Belle Provence Thursday. Saturday, Oct. 26-28.

Janssens will bring unusual pieces of "Vieux Quimper," highly detailed formal Quimper, based on the 1870 designs of master painter Alfred Beau, from the Porquier earthenware factory. He will be at the store noon to 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 27, and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 28. A wine reception will take place 6-8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26.

NTERIOR MOTIVES Table-toppers are important for decor

Your dining area: will be incomplete if you don't think of what is to top your table as a part of the entire decor.

This will include linens, glassware, china, flatware, flower holders, candlesticks, salt and pepper containers, trivets, jam and jelly holders, relish dishes, cake plates and bread baskets:

First consideration? Very informal living vs. more casual decor vs. more formal environs vs. extreme elegance. This involves your backgrounds. Is your space an extension of the kitchen? Is this a separate and more formal room? Where do we begin? I am ready - are you?

When the home or apartment is small, and the dining area has a Formica finish on a counter or island, your accoutrements will be altogether different from that topping a highly polished traditional mahogany dining table. For this I would suggest placemats and napkins of an informal nature. They are available in charming cotton prints, ofttimes quilted. This doesn't infer they need be inexpensive and without taste. The china can be pottery, the flatware black-handled, the glassware of heavier construction, perhaps in ruby red color, and a small, low bowl, always in evidence, and filled with real geraniums. This sets the less formal mood.

Stepping up

One step up the informal ladder would be a dining table of butcher block oak mounted on a pedestal. The mere fact that there are no legs interfering with seating allows the tabletop to be a mite larger.

Once again a lovely bowl filled with live greens should be permanently in use. Because the butcher block of white oak has its own charisma, linens aren't required. But I envision a colorful napkin folded in a fanlike manner.

See LEVY, 15D

The cutlery conceivably could be stainless steel in an informal finish. The dinnerware again can be pottery, in an appealing pattern. Include several sets of minute stainless steel colonialstyled salts and pepper mills. Include a set of four pewter candlesticks. Voila. you have the essence of "bon gout" (good taste).

At Home.

Maple, pine or oak rank as formidable woods for still another informal look. Please don't buy a suite. If you are desirous of any individuality don't match the chairs to the table. Paint or lacquer will enhance this scene. For added comfort use tie-on cushions in a durable, charming and synchronized; fabric.

Dictated by the shape and size of your dining area is the shape and size of the table. Without exception I prefer a. round table wherever it is feasible, because the conversation group is more pleasurable.

I sound like a needle stuck in a record track, but I never give up on an arrangement of fresh flowers. Once you have become accustomed to this look, you too will never give it up.

The bowl is critical to the final effect. Crystal, porcelain, brass, copper, pewter, silver, black glass, whatever. Just keep it low. The more distinctive the bowl the less important its contents. A few blossoms tucked in among pine needles is all that is necessary. The foregoing pertains to modern or traditional. The tabletop can range from glass through all manner of woods.

Contemporary

And so we venture into a contemporary dining room. This isn't necessarily all steel and glass. It is a combination of simple forms.

Top your table with a large grouping of candlesticks. All white bone china without any pattern would be a singular approach. Uncut crystal must follow classic forms. Flatware patterns range from the ultra simple English "Pistol" design to the more complex and remarkable Danish, whether stainless steel, silver plated, gold plated or sterling silver.

Linens cloths have become less necessary to the finished table. But our choices of napkins are awesome: real linen, extra wide hem-stitched edges, sheer, drawn threads, lace bordered, white or ecru, all elegant. I dislike the feeling of poly threads, merely because they are stiff and not very absorbent. Cotton is preferable by far. At this juncture it behooves me to list some of the trappings pertinent to all table topping.

Tableware sources include: Swid Powell — the gurus of modern; Rosenthal — fine bone china; Villeroy and Boch: Sasaki - mostly modern; Mikasa; Wedgwood - great traditional

Stemware in color: amethyst, royal blue and ruby red

Flatware and serving accessories in all finishes

Covered casseroles in pottery or china

Pyrex casseroles in basket, wire or iron holders

Cheese trays and servers: I love just a slab of marble

Demitasse cups and saucers: pottery or bone china

Relish dishes: sometimes divided

Chip and dip servers: casual or dres-8Y

Nambe serving pieces: Pewterlike in a myriad of forms

Cake plates on stands: china or crystal

- Mustard and catsup holders
- Jam and jelly containers
- 🖩 , , , and fun stuff!

Elegant

In a large and formal and extremely elegant background we should aspire to inordinate table toppings.

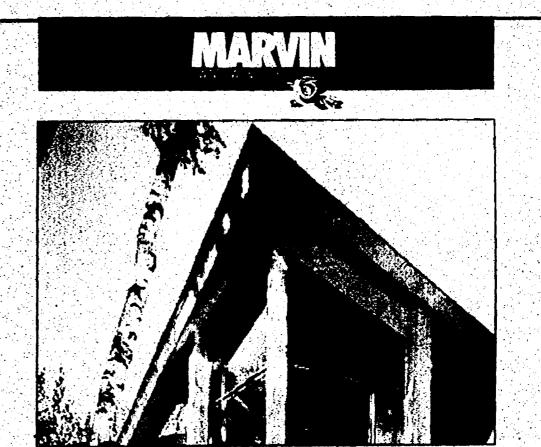

Envisage silver candleabra on a laceedged, white linen cloth. The ubiquitous floral arrangement must be low it is disconcerting to peer over the top of massive flowers to maintain a conversation. The flatware might be a heavily embossed pattern such as Francis I. I love it when each person has his or her individual small salt and pepper. Bread and butter plates are in evidence.

Service plates are in order in this venue. They conceivably could be silver, but they could also be 13-inch diameter, gold-banded porcelain, in contrast to the other bone china being used. (Pottery isn't correct for elegance.)

Not too many of us live the above lifestyle. We would find it difficult to maintain the glitter. Service is almost a thing of the past. Buffet service requires less assistants. Perhaps just someone to pour coffee and clear away plates. We can be almost as elegant and even enjoy the freedom more.

Remodeling pays off for auto dealers

BY BORAN R. TAURER Bracial Warren

Auto dealers have unique problems when it comes to renovating their buildings. What do they do when there is no shewroom to display new cars and trucks? Bill Brown Ford in Livonia solved that problem by renting a vacant building next door. Sales representatives and customers can walk to the new car lot in a matter of minutes,

Not having vehicles in a showroom was good for Jack Cauley Chevrolet Geo in West Bloomfield. "We had one of the best Junes in the history of this business, and we didn't have a car on the floor," reported Jeff Cauley, president. His business on Orchard Lake Road just underwent four months of renovations.

Other auto dealers find the hardships of construction worthwhile in return for better workspace and a more customer-friendly environment. Renovations at Jack Cauley Chevrolet Geo led to several new customer services. These include a new customer waiting room that contains nothing automotive. It is a place for our customers to come and relax," he added. The customer waiting room doesn't contain one thing related to the automobile industry. The dealership collaborates with Objects of Art in West Bloomfield, which fills the waiting rooms with art objects such

well that he is already considering annual Beautification Award from the Redford Township Chamber of Commerce. "We gave the award to the dealership because of the beautiful job it did fixing up an old building," said Jean Rouen, chamber secretary. The chamber also honored 16 other Redford businesses for their beautification projects. "What we did was buy the building that was the original Fretter's Appliance Store. It is right next door to our dealership," said Michele Johnson, general manager of the dealership on Telegraph Road. "The building was being used as a repair shop." Renovations began in October 1994 and were completed in April 1995. The results gave Bruce Campbell Dodge a new, 21,000-square-foot building for new car sales, for business offices and a space to get a new or used car ready for delivery to the customer. Dale Scrace from Benchmark Group in Grosse Pointe was the contractor.

working service bays and three wash bays for car delivery, partitioned work spaces for the sales staff, a showroom that can easily display 12 cars and trucks on the showroom floor, new landscaping, increased parking, brighter and more efficient lights, water-saving washroom appliances and more. "It was muddy, messy and somewhat miserable," Johnson added. "But it was worth it. Many customers" have said it's about time we did something. Sometimes people walk in to look at the changes in the old Fretter building and end up buying a car from us. Seeing the changes is a pretty wow' experience." Although Crestview Cadillac Inc. chose to move from one location to another, it found its customers were devoted enough to follow the business to a different city. "My brother, Lee, and I bought the former Arnold Gerome Cadillac dealership that had been in Pontiac for 50 years," said C.J. Ghesquire. "We found we needed much more land than we had. We found the perfect spot in Rochester on Rochester Road. We bought seven acres and haven't developed it all yet." When the Ghesquires did build on the new property, they designed a showroom that doesn't resemble a car dealership. "We have a colonial style building that reflects the uniqueness of the Cadillac automobile. The interior of the 30,000-square-foot showroum is decorated with dark oak paneling and dark green carpeting. Frank Rewold was the contractor for the construction. "We found it was easier to start fresh and design exactly what we wanted than to try to renovate an existing building on property thatdidn't serve our needs," Ghesquiere

Another unusual feature at Cauley Chevrolet is the boutique featuring car-oriented items for sale.

"We are one of the largest Corvette dealers in the nation. So we added a small Corvette museum and feature a 1959 white Corvette with red interior slowly revolving in the showroom," added Cauley.

The showroom interior was refurbished in grays, accented with Chevrolet-blue chairs and mapletopped work tables. "But the bathrooms are decorated in racing colors: red white and black." "It's working out well," said Gunnigle. We think we'll get into our new building in the early part of 1996."

Some may question why the dealership didn't move from its location, instead of enduring the temporary hardships of no showroom. Employees really appreciate all the changes, according to Johnson. "Our nine general office people were just crammed into a tiny office. Now they have an area about three times as large to work in. Another key question involves whether you should buy a new or an existing house. New houses cost more on average, but they have numerous advantages. Among these are:

Better designed kitchens with new appliances.

More energy efficient heating and cooling systems, resulting in lower monthly energy bills. Better insulation.

More electrical outlets.

Tastes and needs of homeowners change over time. Successful builders study changes in consumer lifestyles and incorporate features into their new houses that accommodate the changes. For instance, houses built in the 1960s catered to the needs of a people in the 1960s. At the time, a much smaller percentage of couples had two wage earners, while households were likely to have a larger average number of children. In the 1990s,are more two-income families.

Fewer number of children might mean that the house should have fewer rooms, but each room can be larger.

> Each year, about six times as many existing houses are sold than new houses. One reason is that people who move into a new house often come from an existing house. When they sell their existing house, the buyers may be coming from another existing house, which in turn must be sold. The chain stops only when someone is either moving out of an apartment, the home of a relative, or some other nonownership situation.

There are many fine existing houses household sizes have fallen and there on the market. But for quality, value; safety and convenience, a new house may be one of the smartest purchases you could ever make.

house, your remodeling dollar goes a long way when you use it to purchase new laundry equipment, say Whirlpool home economists.

The Consumer Price Index, a monthly listing put out by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showing the comparative costs of those day-today items that people buy, indicates that washers and dryers have gone up in price only a fraction of what other consumer items have over the years.

For example, college tuition went up a whopping 122.2% between December 1984 and December 1994. During the same period, fees for cable television went up 83,7% and the price for the Laundry equipment prices, on the other hand, say the Whirlpool home economists, have only gone up 6.4% over the past 10 years. In fact, in terms of how many work hours it takes a person to earn the money to buy a piece of laundry equipment, it actually takes less time today than it did in-1970. Back then, it would have taken: 71.3 hours on the job in order to afford the average automatic washer. In 1993, it took less than half that 32.5 equipment over the years, hours.

1993, though, the price to be paid had dropped to only about 27 hours for elther dryer.

So, with inflation, you're actually getting more washer and dryer for your dollar today than you did a decade ago! And, that doesn't even take into account all the improvements --- like reduced energy consumption, quieter operation and better cleaning performance --- that have made in laundry

So, if you're looking at ways to Dryers have also become a better stretch your remodeling or home improvement dollar, look to a new washer or dryer. It's a best buy!

Since many people have gotten use to the record low interest rates, these new numbers are throwing cold water on an overheated refinance market. But all you have to do is look at recent history to know that you should still be able to do well in the refinance and purchase markets even if rates continue to rise.

The mistake we make comparing today's 8% interest rate to yesterday's 7%, when only a few short years ago, rates were at 10% and higher. If you think that now is not a good time to enter the housing market, look at this example and see what you might be miss-

Jim and Janet Jones have a combined yearly income of about $70,000, which works out to a monthly income of approximately $5.800. According to most lending guidelines, the maximum monthly payment Jim and Janet could afford, including tax and interest, is about $1,600.

When the interest rate was 10% (which most people should remember), the highest mortgage amount Jim and Janet could acquire would be about $182,000. If you take into account a 20% down payment, the most expensive house they could afford would list for around $226,000. Not bad, but do a lot better.

Look at the difference if you plug in an interest rate of 9%. The mortgage amount goes up to almost $200,000 and the price of the house Jim and Janet can reasonably afford jumps to around $250,000, all for the same $1,600 a month mortgage payment At a rate of 8%, the difference is even more pronounced. The new mortgage amount is about $218,000 (which is more than the conforming limit), and the top price for a house comes in around $272,000.

Using this information, you can see that, even though today's interest rates are not as low as a with today's low rates, they can year or so ago, you can still afford to buy more house than you could afford just a few years back and keep the same monthly payment.

It's critical for you to realize that you can still buy the house of your dreams, instead of spending years building up equity in a house where you're really not comfortable. Of course, if you already have substantial equity in your current residence, you can now apply that equity towards a much more expensive house then you could have just a few years ago.

The key to success during this rate environment is attitude. If you take the approach that rates are going up so it is no time to be house hunting, then you could miss out on a great purchase opportunity. However, if you say, OK, rates are no longer lower than they have been in 30 years, but at least they're lower than they have . been in the last 20, then you give yourself a fighting chance to move. into that house you have always wanted.

Vinyl replacement windows light up remodeling projects

William and Jane Strauss know firsthand that the selection of replacement windows is one of the most important remodeling decisions a homeowner faces. Three years ago, they remodeled their center hall Colonial to create additional space and bring in more light. At the recommendation of their design/builder, they selected vinyl windows to replace their wood windows.

Myriad replacement window options existed for the Strausses vinyl, aluminum, and wood window materials in addition to numerous style options such as double-hungs, single-hungs, sliders, casements, bays, and bows. According to Ms. Strauss, "With vinyl windows, I got the look I wanted without paying extra for custom sizes and shapes such as the curved bow and the unusual angles we schieved."

"Older windows of all remodeling jobs today use vinyl windows - a significant accomplishment for a product that, in the early eightles, represented less than five percent of the replacement window market. Vinyl's increasing popularity is attributed to the high level of comfort and numerous style options it offers, In addition, vinyl windows require low maintenance and reduce energy costs. Homeowners should be aware that vinyl material composition, the window design, and the manufacturing process dictate the quality of vinyi windows. "Windows weak in any of these areas will not offer the long-term air and water resistance and overall energy efficiency that remodelers have come to expect in vinyl windows. Common problems associated with low-quality windows are the existence of drafts and water leakage," according to Mike. Maher, window product manager with Rehau, a vinyl window designer and extruder headquartered in Leesburg, Va. "Conversely, well-engineered window designs incorporating high-quality vinyl offer significantly extended life and performance." Some of the features that contribute to a vinyl window's ability to eliminate leaks and drafts are structural aspects such as frame corner construction, the number of internal chambers and weather-stripping seals, and profile wall entire window. thickness.

Window frame corners are elther welded together or mechanically joined. Welded corner joints offer seamless connection at each corner of the window, while mechanically joined corners require fasteners such as screws to hold the window frame together. Over a period of time, mechanical fasteners may loosen or rust, and gaps may form in the corners of the frame or sash (the inner frame to fade resistance, high-quality that, holds the glass pane in place).
